If this were done, a considerable amount each year would be saved in Interest on Loans.

Correspondence regarding 'Own Missionaries' should be addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Arrangements for Sermons and Meetings in connexion with Associations will be made by the Organizing Secretaries for the respective districts, a list of whom is given on page viii.

PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth Labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself through Thy labouring servants throughout the world pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith and hope and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee from the midst of them such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O most merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians! Convince them effectually by Thy Word and Spirit of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles!

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet. O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, Who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord;

shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory. May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the Heathen; we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory; and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy Word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace that they may continue Thine for ever, and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men and women of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the converts, the native catechists, and the native clergy, whom Thou hast granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great Name, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

Benefactors of Ten Guineas, and upwards, in one sum shall be Members for Life.

IV. Annual Subscribers of Five Guineas shall be Governors during the continuance of such Subscription; and Benefactors of Fifty Pounds, and upwards, in one sum, shall be Governors for Life.

V. Subscriptions and Benefactions shall confer the same privileges, whether paid to the Society direct or through an Auxiliary or Association.

VI. The COMMITTEE may appoint such persons as have rendered essential services to the Society, either Honorary Members for Life, or Honorary Governors for Life.

OF GENERAL MEETINGS

VII. An Annual Meeting of the Members of the Society shall be held in London, on the Tuesday next before the first Wednesday in May; when the proceedings of the foregoing year shall be reported, the Accounts presented, and the Treasurer and COMMITTEE chosen. And whenever any vacancy in the office of Treasurer shall occur, the COMMITTEE may fill up the vacancy, for the interval between the occurrence of such vacancy and the next Annual Meeting.

VIII. The COMMITTEE may summon a Special General Meeting of the Members of the Society, at which not less than Thirty shall constitute a Quorum, at any time, and they shall do so on receipt of a requisition in writing, addressed to the Secretaries, and signed by not less than Fifty Members of the Society, and specifying the object of the Meeting. Ten days' notice shall be given in Three London Daily Newspapers, and in two other Newspapers, of any such intended Meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called; which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

IX. None of the Laws and Regulations of the Society shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, but at the Annual Meeting or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose.

X. An Anniversary Sermon shall be preached at some Church in London, by a Clergyman appointed by the COMMITTEE. An Annual Report of the Society shall be printed for the use of its Members.

OF THE COMMITTEE

XI. The COMMITTEE shall consist of the following, being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland:—(a) Twenty-four Lay Members of the Society elected at the Annual Meeting. (b) All Clergymen who are Members of the Society and have been so for not less than one year. (c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year. In every year so many of the elected Members shall go out of office as, with the vacancies, if any, occurring among them during the preceding year, will make six vacancies, and shall not be re-eligible until the following year. The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. The COMMITTEE shall elect, at their First Meeting in every year, either from among themselves, or from the other Members of the Society (being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland), a Committee of Patronage, a Committee of Funds and Home Organization, a Committee of Correspondence, a Committee of Finance, and a Committee of Estimates, and shall have power to fill up vacancies. Each of the said Committees shall keep Minutes of its Proceedings, and shall make such reports of its proceedings to the COMMITTEE as the COMMITTEE shall require.

XIII. The office of the Committee of Patronage is to procure patronage and support to the Society; and to nominate to the COMMITTEE proper persons as Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Life Governors, Honorary Life Members of the Society, and preachers of the Anniversary Sermons.

XIV. The office of the Committee of Funds and Home Organization is to circulate information respecting the Society; to adopt means of obtaining Subscriptions, Benefactions, and Collections in Churches, Chapels, and at Meetings; to take a general oversight of the Associations; and to nominate, from time to time, to the COMMITTEE, suitable persons to act as Agents and Representatives of the Society for these objects.

XV. The office of the Committee of Correspondence is to seek for proper Missionaries, to nominate them to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction when necessary, to recommend their location, and to correspond with them when sent out, and generally to direct the foreign work of the Society. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Committee of Correspondence may delegate any of their duties to Committees elected from among themselves, and may authorize such Committees to report directly to the COMMITTEE, and may fix their Quorum.

XVI. The office of the Committee of Finance is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Committee of Estimates is to prepare and submit to the COMMITTEE an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Society.

XVIII. The Committee of Correspondence shall appoint from among themselves, at their First Meeting in every year, a Clerical Sub-Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. The COMMITTEE may make regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such regulations for the time being in force, the COMMITTEE shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The COMMITTEE may authorize any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their Quorum.

XX. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The COMMITTEE shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXIII. Five Members shall be necessary to form a Quorum of the COMMITTEE; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII.; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXIV. All payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Three Members of the COMMITTEE, in Committee, and the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the COMMITTEE), shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence; and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He 'prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help,' the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at Stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licences, in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licences will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connexion with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause,

STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, BUSINESS AGENTS AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1911

 A STATION is the place at which a clerical or lay missionary or a native clergyman is stationed. The main Stations (where more than one) in the following list are prefaced by a numeral to promote facility of reference in using the index on p. lvi. The post-town of each Station, when it is known, is given in parenthesis after the name of the Station, except in cases where the Station is itself a post-town. Where not otherwise stated, it may be assumed that the Stations which are not numbered have the same post-town as the main Stations after which they appear. For Palestine, where there is no delivery of letters, it is desirable to address letters intended for the Stations which are not numbered to the 'care of' one of the missionaries at the main Station. The figures immediately after the name of the Station or post-town refer to the year in which the Station was first occupied by a European missionary.

The figures after the names of the European and Colonial labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, 'Oxf.'; Cambridge, 'Camb.'; Dublin, 'Dub.'; Durham, 'Dur.'; Edinburgh, 'Edin.'; Glasgow, 'Glas.'; Liverpool, 'Liv.'; London, 'Lond.'; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, 'Lamb.'; Islington, 'Isl.'; London College of Divinity, 'Lond. Coll. Div.'; King's College, London, 'K.C.L.' After the names of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, first at Clapham but afterwards at Blackheath, the word 'Clapham' or 'Blackheath' is placed. In the case of women trained at The Willows, Stoke Newington, at The Olives, South Hampstead, or at the Society's late Highbury Training Home, the words 'The Willows,' 'The Olives,' or 'Highbury,' occur after their names. The letter D. after the name of an ordained man, whether European or native, indicates that he was a deacon on June 1, 1911. The word 'Nurse' after the name of a missionary denotes that she is a trained nurse.

*The mark * before a missionary's name signifies that he or she is specially connected as 'Own Missionary' with, and, as regards personal allowances, is wholly or partially supported by, individual friends of the Society or by the Associations or other bodies whose names are given in brackets [thus ( )]. The terms 'Hon.' and 'partly Hon.,' in parenthesis, after the name of a missionary, mean that such missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. In nearly all the instances referred to, the Society is responsible for all other than ersonal allowances, as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.*

The mark † denotes that the missionaries to whose names it is prefixed are in local connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions, or, in Canada, by the Canadian C.M.S. Missionaries' wives take the status of their husbands as concerns local connexion.

The names of native clergymen are printed in italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination as deacon. The mark ‡ denotes that the person to whose name it is prefixed is supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society.

The maiden names of wives of European and Colonial missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each lady who was a missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are stated; and in the case of ladies who were missionaries of other Societies, the initials indicating the Society ('C.E.Z.M.S.' = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; 'Z.B.M.M.' = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; 'F.E.S.' = the late Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children and instructing the adult women.

The names of all missionaries in the field are placed under the Stations at which they were working on June 1, 1911. The names of those who on that date were at home or on the way home or on the way out are placed under the Stations at which they last resided, unless, in the case of those on the way out, they have been definitely assigned to some other Station. The names under each Station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders or other difference; except that the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the Stations where they reside, and wives of missionaries are placed immediately after their husbands.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE ONE-HUNDRED-AND-TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Queen's Hall, Langham Place, London, Tuesday, May 2, 1911, being the Society's One-Hundred-and-Twelfth Anniversary,

THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, BART., C.B., President, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

'The General Review of the Year' was presented, and, on the motion of Sydney Gedge, Esq., seconded by Sir Richard Pennefather, C.B., the following Resolution was adopted:—

That the General Review of the Year (including the approval of the appointment of the Rev. C. C. B. Bardsley, as a Secretary of the Society), which has just been presented, together with the Report, of which an abstract has also been presented, be adopted, printed and circulated under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Rev. Prebendary H. E. Fox for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; and that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill vacancies.

After which, on a motion by the Chairman, seconded by S. H. Gladstone, Esq., it was resolved—

That this Meeting thanks Almighty God for the many tokens of His good hand upon the Society manifested in blessing upon the work at the front and in the prayer, self-denial, and fellowship of so many friends at home. It has, notwithstanding, to deplore the fact that the past year has been one in a succession of years in which the income, though maintained at a high level, has failed to cover the expenditure, and it recognizes with sorrow that the decision of the Committee to cut down expenditure to the average income of the past few years, though it must of necessity mean disappointment and pain, is a clear duty in order to place the Society's finances on a sound basis.

At the same time this Meeting cannot fail to recognize that the call of God to advance is as strong as ever. It believes that this will be best prepared for by the vitalizing of the old work with new life, and by the response to the summons to fuller consecration, more earnest prayer, and a truer spirit of discipleship. It prays that thus the present distress may result, by God's goodness, in eventual blessing to the whole work of the Society, and that soon it may look forward once more to the extension of its borders.

The following Meetings were also held in London in connexion with the Anniversary:—

On May 2 at CAXTON HALL, Westminster, at 3 P.M. (for women), The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Durham in the Chair;

And at ROYAL ALBERT HALL, South Kensington, at 7 P.M., His Grace the Lord Archbishop of York in the Chair;

On May 3 at CAXTON HALL, Westminster, at 7 P.M. (for men), Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., in the Chair;

And on May 5, at QUEEN'S HALL, Langham Place, W., at 7 P.M. (Medical Mission Auxiliary), Sir Alfred Pearce Gould, K.C.V.O., M.S., in the Chair.

Addresses were delivered at these Meetings by the Bishop of Kensington, the Bishop of Keewatin, the Rev. Cyril Bardsley, the Rev. E. Grose Hodge, the Rev. H. Gresford Jones, the Rev. A. B. G. Lillingston, Rear-Admiral C. W. Winnington-Ingram, T. R. W. Lunt, Esq., J. H. Oldham, Esq., the Rev. E. W. T. Greenshield (N.-W. Canada), Archdeacon F. Melville Jones (Yoruba), the Rev. J. B. Ost (Mid China), the Rev. T. Walker (S. India), Dr. A. E. Druitt (Niger), Dr. A. Neve (Punjab), Miss M. E. Baldwin (Fukien), Miss E. M. Furley (Uganda) and Miss D. C. Joynt (Mid China).

THE ANNUAL SERMON

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, May 1, 1911,

REV. HENRY ELLIOTT FOX, M.A.

PREBENDARY OF ST. PAUL'S

'WE PREACH CHRIST CRUCIFIED, UNTO THE JEWS A STUMBLING BLOCK, AND UNTO THE GREEKS FOOLISHNESS; BUT UNTO THEM WHICH ARE CALLED, BOTH JEWS AND GREEKS, CHRIST THE POWER OF GOD, AND THE WISDOM OF GOD.'—1 Corinthians i. 23, 24.

'WE preach Christ crucified.' The words ring out, not as in protest or defence, but as the summons of a herald, or as the message of an ambassador from his royal master. For this to St. Paul was the essence of his gospel, so vital, so comprehensive, that, as he adds presently, he had deliberately resolved to exclude from his teaching whatever was not directly concerned with the Person and work of his Lord, 'Jesus Christ and Him crucified.'

The declaration is the climax of a natural argument. There had been divisions in the Corinthian Church. Divisions, after their manner, had grown to contentions. Incidents, perhaps trivial, had roused a party spirit. Sharply the Apostle calls the Christians back to first principles. What meant this ranging themselves, some under one name, some under another? Was Christ divided? Had Paul been crucified for them? Had they been baptized in his name? Nay, his only office had been the ministry of the Good News, and to declare it with such definiteness and simplicity that its appeal to their consciences might come through no distorting medium and that their faith should stand not in the wisdom of men but in the power of God. Perhaps this very plainness of speech, this absence of philosophy or rhetoric, were resented by a Church where the eloquent Apollos had laboured. Offence had been taken, and on various grounds. The Apostle's preaching had come into conflict with the prejudices of one class of mind, and not less with the postulates of another. The pride of religion and the pride of reason both refused their assent. The man who sought for merit in some sterile series of acts, who based his hopes on national or ecclesiastical birthright, whose ethics lay in the practice of rules rather than the exercise of principles,—such a man could have little sympathy with the message that offered life to the lost and grace to the guilty. And to the other man, who had allowed reason to usurp the place of faith, whose range of research rose no higher than the plane of human thought, who measured the supernatural by the natural, to such a man the story of redemption would seem unreal and foolish. The Cross indeed had its answer for each. It could tell them of forces far beyond their vision, of wisdom compared with which their own was as naked ignorance. To those who will receive it in God's own way it will reveal secrets for which ages have laboured in vain. So comes the fourfold experience, which apart from Christ no human mind has ever conceived, that He 'of God is made unto us wisdom and righteousness and sanctification and redemption.'

World wisdom, or, to borrow an alien word; Zeitgeist, the spirit of the times, knows not God nor the things of God. It may talk about Him and criticize them, but it knows not either. That knowledge, as St. Paul reminds us, comes not by world methods, but by the exercise of spiritual and God-given faculties. In one of His deep sayings Jesus Christ declared His joy at this fact: 'I thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes.' What 'these things' are is clear from the context. The Baptist had sent to ask Him if He were the Messiah or not. The Master points to the evidence, and the rejection of it by the Zeitgeist of His own nation. And after nineteen centuries the world is no wiser. Our missionaries can tell us of many a man once ignorant of everything but the bare means of existence who has learnt to know and rejoice in facts far beyond the experience of numbers whom the world counts among its wisest and greatest.

The modern missionary may well follow apostolic precedent. A Cross whereon hung only a human victim is powerless to save. A message which has to be given with artificial attractions or concessions to intellectual pride is only suggestive of weakness. The old axiom of our Society, that spiritual work must be done by spiritual men, involves the corollary that it must be done also on spiritual lines. Even in days when we talk much of the Science of Missions, there is sometimes danger lest this should be forgotten. The Bishop of Madras, writing lately in a missionary magazine, has given a timely caution. He tells us that efforts to reach the hearts of educated Hindus by a 'philosophic presentation of Christianity' had entirely failed. Men were interested, but no more. Time proved that the real needs were moral not intellectual; 'first conviction of sin, and then a Gospel of salvation.' The Bishop continues, 'After an experience of twenty-six years in India, my own conviction is now far deeper than it was when I first landed, that what the peoples of India need is the old-fashioned Gospel of salvation from sin, and that the highest wisdom of the missionary is, as far as possible, to avoid philosophic discussions and, like St. Paul at Corinth, to determine to know nothing among them but Christ crucified.'

But here a question must be put, which perhaps would have seemed hardly necessary on such an occasion as the present to the honoured preachers of the Society's Anniversary Sermons a generation ago. To-day, however, we are compelled to ask, 'What Christ?' Is the Christ of modern thought identical with the Christ preached in the apostolic age? Has time dimmed the original portrait, or has spiritual eyesight grown less strong and clear than in the days of old? Zeitgeist, which spares nothing, however sacred, has laid its hands on the divine picture. Though only a few professing Christians in this country have as yet gone to the length of openly asserting that He Who claimed to be 'the Way, the Truth and the Life,' was frequently mistaken in what He believed and taught, there is a much larger number who, while sincerely believing in His divine nature, hesitate to accept His testimony as final in certain directions, and suggest limitations and reservations within which it is assumed that His knowledge, as judged by modern standards, was imperfect or even inaccurate. In this view of our Lord He is certainly not quite the same to-day as He was to the saints of old or even to the saints of yesterday.

Most of us are old enough to remember how loyal Churchmen, differing on other questions, united to oppose the teaching of certain distinguished writers on this very matter not many years ago. Opinions almost the same as theirs are now widely propagated in many a church, chapel and lecture room, and the few who protest, as our fathers did, are treated as ignorant and behind the age, though the quarter of a century has not produced a tittle of fact to alter the position held by Lightfoot, Liddon and Ryle, and a host of others as worthy of credit as any scholar or critic of to-day. However serious the effects of this may be in the Home Church, where habits of reverence and loyalty are still strong, the results must be much graver where Christianity is face to face with powerful foes, ready to take advantage of any weakness or wavering in its ranks. In more than one mission-field Christians and non-Christians are told of a Christ, whom St. Paul, at least, would not have recognized as 'the power of God and the wisdom of God.' The Bishop of Bombay has lately had occasion to warn his diocese of danger in this direction. Referring to the fatal results of defective views of our Lord's nature, he says, 'Those who present Christianity in a vague, undogmatic way, are, I believe, steering straight towards this horrible absorption of Christianity by Hinduism. But teach Christ as the Catholic Church has always taught Him, in His unique Sonship, as the only incarnation in the full sense of the word, as very Man and very God, and the fatal compromise is for ever impossible.'

I return to my question, 'Who is He of Whom the Apostle speaks?' Our answer, of course, can only come from the inspired records of His life, records whose authenticity even unfriendly but honest critics now frankly admit. Post-apostolic impressions or inferences, speculations, unscientific because they are only naturalistic, deductions, imperfect because they come from knowledge and authority incomparably inferior to that which they presume to judge,—all this can weigh nothing against the first hand witness of New Testament writers. To candid and unbiassed minds, the notes of truth are manifest in every line of the portrait. None perhaps is more striking than the paradox of the twofold nature of our Lord, and that every one of the nine writers is uniformly consistent in an apparent contradiction. It must suffice here that I give only the briefest outline and that drawn from the four Evangelists alone.

St. Matthew, addressing Jews and recalling Messianic hopes, speaks of Him as Emmanuel, God with us. In St. Mark He is the Son of God. St. Luke repeats the angelic witness to 'a Saviour which is Christ the Lord.' St. John at a later date, and to meet new currents of thought, speaks with greater fulness and describes Him as the eternal and creative Word, manifesting a glory that belonged to 'the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.' Here also He is 'the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.' He speaks the words of God, for not by measure has God given Him the Spirit. The Father 'hath committed all judgment unto the Son that all men should honour the Son even as they honour the Father.' Yet with the sharpest contrast every Evangelist records His humiliation. He grew as other children grow in mind and body. He was tempted, He endured poverty and privation, He was rejected by His own people and deserted by His friends, He was crushed with the acutest mental grief, submitted to the unknown horrors of an excruciating death, and was buried in a borrowed tomb.

His own words assert the same duality as the record of His biographers. He claimed to be the long foretold Messiah, the promised King of David's line. He displayed a knowledge, exercised an authority, and received honours which belong to no created being. He was living before Abraham, He had seen Satan fall from heaven, He had shared the glory of the Father before the world was, and to Him had been given all power in heaven and in earth.

Yet never for a moment did this alter the fact of His Perfect Manhood. He lived and mixed with all. He shrank not from the company of the degraded and despised. He entered with tenderest sympathy into the joys and sorrows of His fellow men. If His example was ideal, it was, at its highest, so human that all could follow it. His own familiar use of the title which described His humiliation illustrates this union in a striking way. On almost every occasion when He spoke of Himself as 'the Son of Man' it was in connexion with some supernatural fact. The Son of Man had come from heaven; because He is the Son of Man, He has received authority from the Father to execute judgment; the Son of Man forgives sins; He is Lord of the Sabbath; and at the appointed time (unknown to Him, as the Son, for it was not among the words which had been given Him to speak), 'He will send forth His angels, and will come in the glory of the Father.' The disciples are told that they shall 'see the Son of Man ascend up where He was before,' and they are bidden to constant prayer that they may escape the terrors of the last day and be 'accounted worthy . . . to stand before the Son of Man.'

The same picture is given by all the other New Testament writers, wholly justifying the words of our Catholic confession, 'Although He be God and Man, yet He is not two, but one Christ.' Scholars may talk about Pauline, Petrine, or Johannine Christology. The essential features are identical in each. Everywhere, with the assurance of true faith, the union of the two natures in the one Person is assumed. Nothing is said as to the inter-relation of the two or how far the co-existence of each in the same Person affects or is affected by the other. The speculation of the schoolmen whether our Lord was 'not able to sin' or 'able not to sin' have no place whatever in New Testament theology. Nor does it throw any light on those 'limitations' and 'accommodations' which modern wisdom has discovered in the mind and ministry of the great Teacher. Our Church has condensed the apostolic witness in words of balanced judgment which our age is not likely to surpass, 'Two whole and perfect natures, that is to say, the Godhead and the Manhood, were joined together in one Person, never to be divided, whereof is one Christ, very God and very Man.'

If it should please any to think that the perfect Manhood was so far imperfect that the testimony of our Lord needs to be corrected or supplemented many centuries afterwards, then the evidence must be sought for elsewhere than in the New Testament. Meantime let us thankfully accept the words of a great modern divine, whose learning and judgment none will dispute. Commenting on the opening verse of the Epistle to the Hebrews, Bishop Westcott says, 'The Son as Heir and Creator speaks with perfect knowledge and absolute sympathy.' The Bishop has expanded the thought in his Christus Consummator, from which I cannot forbear to quote a noble passage:—'Let the knowledge be complete: let the sympathy reach to every creature: let the holiness be absolute: and there is provision for the atonement of fallen humanity; there is a propitiation for sins co-extensive with their presence; there is a force of all most prevailing to kindle the activity of Faith. Each of these conditions was satisfied when the Word became flesh; and now we can see how the Gospel of Creation meets our misgivings. Christ the Son of God, the Son of Man, took to Himself a nature which from the first it was His good pleasure to crown. In Him every scattered fragment of manhood found its proper Head. Not one wrong through all its sad development was outside His penetrating knowledge. Not one least sorrow was alien from His spontaneous sympathy. Not one proud boast of self-sufficiency could maintain itself in the burning light of His holiness. In Him men were able to recognize the harmonious maturity of every human endowment. In Him each man was able to recognize the consecration of his peculiar gift. In Him every single personality finds its true self.'

Such is He of Whom the Apostle wrote, 'We preach Christ crucified.' Were we to stop there, even that message would be sublimely unique. The Christian does not go forth to propagate another religion, nor merely to preach Christianity. He stands for a fact presented by no world-religion. He is the servant of a living and reigning King. He is an ambassador for Christ. He tells of the 'one Mediator between God and men, Himself Man, Christ Jesus'; of One in Whom 'dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily'; yet One Who 'bare our sins in His own body,' and became thereby the propitiation for the sins of the whole world. And therefore the message must be of 'Christ crucified.' The Cross was both the proof and the purpose of the Incarnation, for 'God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself.' Anselm's old inquiry was not, 'Did God become Man?', but Cur Deus Homo. Why did

He? And the only true answer that can be given is that of one who had seen with his own eyes the pierced hands and feet and the wounded side of the risen Lord. 'Christ . . . suffered for sins, the just for the unjust that He might bring us to God.'

The world has often had its dreams of gods who have come down in the likeness of men, and even of a divine influence pervading all things, or an unknown force that 'makes for righteousness'; but no ethnic religion has ever told how men may come to God. None have ever solved the great problem of sin and its remedy. For all that world-wisdom knows Job's questions remain unanswered, 'Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean?' or, 'How should man be just with God?'

It is not Incarnation by itself, but Incarnation interpreting the Atonement, which gives the answer, 'It pleased the Father that in Him should all fulness dwell, and having made peace by the blood of His Cross, by Him to reconcile all things unto Himself.' However we may understand the term, and no man has measured its depths, Atonement demands the action not only of a sinless man, but of a divine man. That 'full perfect and sufficient sacrifice, oblation and satisfaction for the sins of the whole world,' commemorated in our Sacramental service, needed the whole Christ in His undivided Godhead and Manhood. So to the whole world we 'preach Christ crucified.' Still as of old it gives offence to some, and to others it seems foolishness. Still many of the world's wise men and great men turn away from it. But all down the ages countless millions of happy souls, convicted of their own weakness and ignorance, have found that Christ is for them the very power of God and the very wisdom of God.

The story of modern Missions in this respect is the same as the story of apostolic days, and the story of the living Church in every age. Conditions differ of course vastly. But the same causes are producing like results. The signs which follow the missionary to-day are just as much evidences of a divine presence and of divine forces at work with him, as those seen by the early Church. When we hear (as, thank God, we so often hear) of some bitter Moslem turning to worship the Son of God, some proud Brahman counting all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus his Lord, or some poor pagan cleansed from loathsome vice and superstition, are we not face to face with facts which are just as truly 'signs and wonders' as those which were wrought in Apostolic times? And they can only be explained in the same way. They are also to be seen, not only in separate instances, but on a wider scale. The Cross draws men together still as it did then. It influences communities as well as individuals. In the ordered growth of Christian Churches, in the creation of higher standards of social duty, in a new sense of brotherhood, in the elevation of home life, and not least in a wider outlook, and in service for them that are without,—in such facts as these, and many others of the same kind, must we not devoutly and gratefully recognize tokens of superhuman wisdom and supernatural power at work on the consciences and lives of men ?

The Reports presented to the Edinburgh Conference last year are rich in such evidence. Two lines of thought, as bearing on my subject, are specially prominent. The first is the unique adaptability of the Gospel to every crisis and condition of human life. Again and again it has confronted and conquered the perplexities and confusion of mankind. It alone of all religions has nothing to fear from the developments of physical science or modern research. It stands before every world religion, unable as they are to resist the impact of progressive thought, and it satisfies the needs which they confess but can never meet. To the pagan with his multiplicity of demons it tells of the one God and Saviour, it banishes fear, kindles hope and creates love. To China with its materialism and its text-book morality, it brings the message of the great Father Who gave His Son for the life of the world, and the eternal Spirit outpoured and indwelling to purify and perfect. For the Buddhist it opens new visions of an endless life, and the wisdom and power of a personal Redeemer, to take the place of hopeless negations and blind fate. The Hindu rescued from the paralysis of Pantheism finds life in the risen and living Christ and realizes an Immanence far beyond the dreams of his own philosophy. To the barren theism of Islam there comes the revelation of the Father in the only begotten Son, the Prophet long foretold, the Priest upon His eternal throne, and a brotherhood won by the love which naught in heaven or earth can ever conquer.

Larger still is the vision of the future. What the Church knows of her Lord is as nothing to that which will and may be known. Even now how vastly might that knowledge be increased. When each race, redeemed and enlightened by the Holy Spirit, shall bring its contribution to the common store, when East gives back to West treasures of the Truth more full than Western minds had brought, then the Church will have a deeper understanding of that great word 'unsearchable' twice used by St. Paul, once of the ways of God, and once of the riches of Christ ; then we shall begin to know as we have never known something of the unsearchable wisdom and the inexhaustible power of the crucified Christ. Then the Saviour, no longer dwarfed by our miserable conjectures, but expanding our minds and uplifting our faith, will be seen as He is ; and the standards of which we now know so little, will come into view, even 'the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.'

And yet we are still far from the end of the message. We have been thinking only of the manifestation of Christ with regard to ourselves, 'for us men and for our salvation.' We know, or think we know, what Christ did for us on the Cross, and we speak of 'the innumerable benefits which by His precious blood-shedding He hath obtained to us.' But there is another side on which few ponder. What is the Cross to Christ Himself? Are the redemption and reconciliation of fallen man (marvellous indeed beyond all human thought) the final objects of the Incarnation, the Death and the Resurrection of the Lord Jesus? May not reverent faith led by the teaching of the Spirit shew us that an even greater purpose lies beyond? There is a profound saying of Jonathan Edwards, 'The emanation of His own infinite fulness was aimed at by God, as the end of His creation.' How much more then of His creation restored in Christ? In one of those sublime glimpses of the other world which are given in the closing pages of the Bible, the occupants of the new heavens and new earth are seen engaged in the highest acts of which created beings are capable, and there rises the united offering of angelic and human adoration before the throne of the eternal God, 'Blessing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.' What loftier ideal can inspire the Church on earth?

Many voices call us. The voice of pain and despair, the voice of a world without hope and without God, the voice of divine providence in the story of our own race, the intensity of the present crisis, with its opportunities and responsibilities, the manifested power and wisdom of Christ in the mission-field, the infinite debt of each Christian to his Lord and to the world for which his Lord died, all these and many more are loudly insistent, yet rising stronger above them there comes the motive call which led the Lord Himself to Gethsemane and Calvary, 'Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in Him.' 'Father, the hour is come, glorify Thy Son, that Thy Son also may glorify Thee.'

At the coming Coronation, which will draw to England not only representatives of every part of the Empire but those also of every great nation on earth, behind all the splendour and dignity of the spectacle, will not every loyal British heart glow with a deeper sense of gratitude that God has given to our country a king so worthy of her history and her destiny? How much more then shall loyal Christians rejoice that by faith they have seen their Lord, Who was made 'lower than the angels for the suffering of death,' now 'crowned with glory and honour.' How much more shall they acknowledge with adoring worship His absolute 'pre-eminence in all things,' Whom God hath highly exalted and given a Name above every name in heaven or on earth.

Suffer me ere I close to draw from my subject one or two further thoughts, specially bearing upon our own share in the Church's witness to Christ. 'We preach Christ crucified.' Yes, but to others also beside the non-Christian world. It may not be the primary object of our Society, but it is an inevitable result that the witness which we bear to the world beyond the seas will exercise an influence on the Church at home. The constant and consistent action of any Christian community in any direction cannot but have a reflex effect on the larger body of which it is a member. It has been a peculiar privilege of our Society to have been recognized, not of course exclusively, but conspicuously, as standing for the great Evangelical truths which are centred in the Cross of Christ. While it has scrupulously refrained from engaging in party conflicts with fellow-Christians, it has been, by common admission, always identified with that definite form of doctrine, which once delivered by Apostles was recovered by the Reformers and revived by our fathers, that doctrine which accepts all Holy Scripture as 'God's Word written,' the one Rule of Faith, and Jesus Christ the subject of that Book, as the final and infallible revelation of the Father. It is not too much to say that our Society by its stedfast adherence to the primitive principles of its founders, and their successors from generation to generation, has strengthened the faith and the hope and the love of hundreds of thousands of grateful friends, who through it have gained for themselves a fuller knowledge of that which they have preached to others, 'Christ crucified. . . . the power of God and the wisdom of God.' If sometimes there have been differences on minor matters, we have ever been bound together in loyalty and devotion to our unchanging Christ. May He Who gave such grace to our fathers grant also to us that we may pass on the sacred heritage intact and untainted to those who follow us. But for this we must have learned also to preach Christ to ourselves, to preach Him from personal knowledge, from the devout study of Himself, from the intercourse of discipleship, and even from partnership with Him in His sufferings not less than in His joys.

Are there any of us whose advancing years do not force the confession, that, in the knowledge of Christ, we are like the children of Newton's parable, still on the shores of a vast ocean of which we know little more than what we hold in our hands? And yet how much more it might have been? We have grown wise in many other things. Other cares, other learning, other research have taken away time and pains and zeal from that which should have stood first. How few even of us who have been called to the ministry of the Gospel, could say as it was said by one of old, 'I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord.'

In our missionary circles, too, is there no danger that the increasing number of subjects which are thought necessary for the equipment of the missionary may not in his training encroach on that without which all the rest are worthless? Could our Study Bands, whose growth we welcome, find a nobler field for devout research than the 'riches of Christ'? Problems and policies, questions about races and religions, of history and methods would all gain in value and interest as they took their place in adjusted proportion to the study of the Lord Jesus Himself. For this must be first and distinct, personal and direct. It is not the study of Christologies, ancient or modern. It is not even the study of the Bible, except as the source from which the knowledge of Christ can be gained, and then only as the mind and will are led by Him of Whom it was said by the Lord Himself, 'He shall glorify Me, for He shall receive of Mine and shew it unto you.'

If it is a truism among us that the usefulness of the missionary is in direct proportion to his experimental knowledge of Christ, then let experience keep pace with theory. Just as needful also is it for those at home to whom has been given the responsibility of directing and administering mission affairs, of maintaining sacred stewardships of faith and practice, of discerning things that differ, of selecting and preparing mission workers, of calling forth the sympathy and sacrifice and service of fellow-Christians.

As at each Anniversary it is our custom to review the Society's work, to report its finances and record results, whether satisfactory or otherwise, so might we not with advantage take a further step, and from time to time trace the causes which have produced the results, and note the measure of the spiritual forces which are moving the whole body? The old-fashioned, but now neglected, practice of self-examination might be found as profitable for Committees and Societies as for their individual members. When St. Peter bids us 'Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ,' he leads up to the precept by a warning that implies heart-searching watchfulness, 'Beware lest ye . . . fall from your own stedfastness.' Never was such counsel more urgent than at the present time. Uncertainty and perplexity are everywhere, in the Church as in the world, in social, political and religious life. Seldom has our beloved Society been called to face more anxious questions than this year. Notwithstanding the special effort of the last few months and the generous response which it has received; notwithstanding the thrilling message and the broadcast lessons of the Edinburgh Conference; notwithstanding the labours and prayers and self-denial of many devoted servants of God—we find our resources again insufficient to maintain our existing work. Again our brethren across the seas, strained already to the utmost of body and soul, will hear the heart-breaking orders for retrenchment, restriction and even retrocession. Is there nothing to be done but bow our heads and adjust our policy to conditions of which we are content to say that God has permitted them? God permits nothing without a reason. In His Kingdom of grace as in His Kingdom of nature every effect has had its cause; and surely it is the wisdom of the spiritual pathologist to probe to the depths for whatever tends to arrested development, lowered vitality or other morbid conditions in the spiritual organism. The causes may be many and complex, but at all costs they are to be searched for if their effects are to be removed. This needs courage and faith and patience, but above all that true science which can only be learnt directly from the Spirit of Truth.

There are lines along which He will lead the honest seeker, ways which are His, not ours till we take them; tests for which world wisdom is of no value. These He will show us, and teach us to use. Among them it is certain that Christ Himself, Christ crucified, the power of God and the wisdom of God will be the surest criterion of all. For it cannot be doubted that the vital forces of the Body of Christ are strong or weak just as its members are influenced by the Spirit of Christ or the spirit of the world. And let it be remembered that by the world-spirit we do not mean what is commonly called worldliness. This kind comes in a far more refined and subtle form. It comes in the guise of religious culture. It appeals to the pride of intellect, to the ambition of progress, to the impatience of control. It disparages the old, it flatters the new. But it forgets that there are things which 'cannot be shaken,' and a kingdom which 'cannot be moved'; and the Sovereign Lord of that Kingdom is 'JESUS CHRIST, the same yesterday and to-day and for ever.'

More than thirty years ago Bishop Lightfoot in a memorable essay wrote what is as aptly true now as it was then:—'There is at least a presumption . . . . that the historical sense of seventeen or eighteen centuries is larger and truer than the critical insight of a section of men in one late half-century. The idols of our cave never present themselves in a more alluring form than when they appear as the "spirit of the age."' I must not follow the point further. It may be of use to illustrate others. The spirit of the age is and always has been contrary to the Spirit of God. Which of the two creates missionary motives, fosters missionary zeal, supports the missionary in difficulties and distresses, and produces the fruit of converted and consecrated souls, let the story of our own and kindred Societies bear witness. And here lies our hope. What the Lord has been to our fathers He can be to us. As we follow their faith, we shall receive their blessing. He changes not. 'Heaven and earth,' so runs His promise, 'shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away.' Grasping that sacred truth let every man deal honestly with the spiritual facts of his own life, and of his public stewardship. Let us all ask that the Holy Spirit may give us His view of Christ and ourselves. Let loyalty to our Lord, as the Son of God and the Saviour of men, as the Son of Man and the Lord of Life, be the supreme motive of every thought and act. Then will He shew to us such proofs of power and wisdom as we have never yet known. Then will He use us as He can use only those who trust Him wholly. Then grace and knowledge will grow, each strengthening the other, and making obedience the ever brightening pathway to glory. And so, to use words which have become familiar to us of late, 'A blessed thing it is, and will bring us everlasting blessedness in the end, when God speaketh unto us, to hearken: when He setteth His word before us to read it: when He stretcheth out His hand and calleth, to answer, "Here am I: here are we to do thy will, O God." The Lord work a care and conscience in us to know Him and serve Him, that we may be acknowledged of Him at the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, to Whom with the Holy Ghost, be all praise and thanksgiving Amen.'

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

General Review of the Year

[PRESENTED AT THE ANNIVERSARY IN QUEEN'S HALL, MAY 2, 1911]

'Have faith in God.' (St. Mark xi. 22)

A LIVING real faith—in His infinite love, wisdom and power. Have faith in the Lord God Almighty, Who ordereth all things by the might of His power, Who fulfils His purposes in many different ways, Who has been with us hitherto and Who has ever fresh blessings for those who put their trust in Him. Over the homes of workers at home and abroad, over every committee room, over every life consecrated to the great missionary cause, these words need to be written. The whole position is a call to truer faith which will result in deeper humility, fuller consecration, more implicit obedience and stronger service. This is the keynote which the Committee would strike at the beginning of another year in the life of the Society.

The World Missionary Conference

An event of supreme importance during the past year has been the World Missionary Conference, held in Edinburgh last June, a gathering which will stand out in the annals of Christianity for the Apostolic character of its aim, the timeliness of its conception, the comprehensiveness of its personnel and the statesmanship of its plans. No fewer than ninety-two representatives of the Society attended and several took part both in the work of preparation and in the discussions of the conference itself. At its conclusion letters were sent out 'to the members of the Church in Christian lands,' and 'to the members of the Christian Church in non-Christian lands.' Seldom or never has an appeal been issued to the members of the Church more impressive and more urgent than that contained in the following words: 'Our survey has impressed upon us the momentous character of the present hour. We have heard from many quarters of the awakening of great nations, of the opening of long-closed doors, and of movements which are placing all at once before the Church a new world to be won for Christ. The next ten years will, in all probability, constitute a turning-point in human history, and may be of more critical importance in determining the spiritual evolution of mankind than many centuries of ordinary experience. If those years are wasted, havoc may be wrought that centuries will not be able to repair. On the other hand, if they are rightly used they may be among the most glorious in Christian history.'

The Reports of the eight Commissions dealing with the most vital aspects of missionary effort are being carefully considered by the Committee. Inter alia, these Reports point to fuller co-operation with other societies, and Resolutions based upon them are being passed which must have great effect upon the future policy and hope of the Society.

New Visions

Through the Edinburgh Conference the Church has gained fresh vision of the world-field with its immense problems, difficulties, encouragements and possibilities. Best of all, it has gained new vision of the infinite resources of grace, wisdom and power which are in God, and are available to a Church contrite in spirit, strong in faith and daring in obedience.

Death of King Edward VII.

Immediately after the Society's last Anniversary the Empire was plunged into sorrow through the death of our beloved and world-honoured King. Edward the VIIth by nobility of birth had become Edward the Peace-maker by nobility of character, and the whole world shared in our national grief. At the General Committee on May 10, 1910, an Address of loyal homage and heartfelt condolence was passed, which was graciously received by his Majesty King George. For the gift of such a successor the whole Empire humbly thanks God, and soon will be uniting in prayer that at his Coronation he may be crowned with such grace and strength that through a long reign the good hand of God may be upon him, and that we may be 'godly and quietly governed.'

Resignation of Prebendary Fox

The news of the resignation of Prebendary Fox was received with the deepest regret by Members of the Society at home and abroad. He entered on his duties as Honorary Secretary in August, 1895, and for nearly fifteen years devoted to the work of the Society his great gifts of personality, intellect, speech and spiritual power. The Committee express their affectionate and grateful recollection of his close association with them during those fifteen years, of the wise counsel he had often given them, and of his self-denying devotion to the missionary enterprise manifested for many years and in various ways. They rejoice that he is still with them, and pray that he may be spared for many more years of honoured service.

The Rev. C. C. B. Bardsley appointed Hon. Clerical Secretary,

The Committee thank God for His gift of a fifth Honorary Clerical Secretary in the person of the Rev. Cyril Charles Bowman Bardsley, who bears a name which for many years has been closely identified with the principles and activities of the Society. They hereby formally submit his name to the Annual Meeting for approval, in accordance with Law XX.

and Dr. Herbert Lankester Lay Secretary

The loss which the Society incurred through the illness of Mr. R. Maconachie and his consequent retirement from the Lay Secretaryship was referred to in the last General Review. On May 24, 1910, Dr. Herbert Lankester, Home Secretary of the Society since 1903, was appointed as his successor.

The Rev. H. G. Grey having resigned the position of Secretary to the Educational Committee, on his reappointment as principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, the vacancy was filled by the appointment of Mr. T. R. W. Lunt, who has been Assistant Secretary for Work among the Young during the past five years.

A grievous loss has been sustained through the death of the Rev. Dr. R. Elliott—missionary, pastor and doctor—both in the foreign field and at home, and for the last eight years Secretary to the Medical Committee.

Turning to the foreign operations of the Society: In the Moslem Lands the Society's enterprise is still difficult and costly. Nevertheless, the Annual Report will contain a remarkable list of definite results from distinctively evangelistic work. It will also reveal, as in former years, the softening effects of the medical missions and the gradual enlightenment achieved by the schools. In the Palestine Mission the first lady doctor has died after only fourteen months' service. Palestine

In Persia the prospect presented to the Christian Church is one of hopefulness and encouragement. A greater measure of religious liberty undoubtedly prevails. The reforming movement has led to a demand for education on modern lines, and having learnt to trust the missionaries, the Persian people prefer to send their children to them rather than to others. The time seems ripe for a strong educational development. 'Our medical missions,' writes Dr. Emmeline Stuart, 'have removed Mohammedan prejudices, and have opened doors to let educational missionaries in; but unless these come—and come soon—the doors will again be closed and our day of opportunity be past in Persia.' One illustration of the changed attitude of the Mohammedan population towards Christian mission work may be found in the fact that the late Bishop Stuart, on Easter Eve of last year, dedicated without opposition a Christian church in the heart of the bigoted Mohammedan city of Ispahan. Persia

In Egypt there has been a development of village work and progress in school work. In fulfilment of the desire of the Committee to make a sustained effort to help missionaries to Moslems to prepare themselves adequately for their difficult enterprise, one of the Cairo missionaries has applied himself to special studies in Germany and America. Egypt

In Northern Nigeria the Mission to Moslems has hardly held its ground. It is true that the progress of the railway, which has reached Zaria, and almost if not quite reached Kano, has led to some greater readiness on the part of the Government to give access to Mohammedan cities, and that Dr. Walter Miller has at last been enabled to make a long-desired beginning of work in Kano itself. Yet the losses in the Mission have been so serious that the available workers are far from adequate to the present opportunities. Northern Nigeria

Throughout the year the Moslem Menace to pagan Africa has claimed the Committee's serious attention. Its gravest aspect is seen in lands where doors are being opened to the Mohammedan advance by the march of European civilization and control. From the East Coast there is a tide running to the interior, particularly in German East Africa, where the new railway is carrying Moslem traders into the heart of the Society's field just when that field seems to promise a rich return for the long labours of missionaries —all too few for their task—who until this year have had no such facility for reaching their stations. From the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan a similar tide runs into the region of the Upper Nile, where British control, newly established over the Lado Enclave, will soon mean a population largely Islamized, unless missionaries of the Society, and possibly other British missionaries, can respond to the kind and urgent invitation of the Governor-General and other officials in the Sudan to man several new stations without delay. Happily, the Committee are able in this case, through the aid of a special fund, to lay plans which should secure the needed advance if only suitable recruits are forthcoming.

East Africa

The Anglo-Egyptian Sudan

Again, in Northern Nigeria close to the border of the great Moslem States there are pagan districts fast opening out to missionary enterprise and, failing that, to the tide of Islam. But there the sad lack of men and money compels the Society to turn away from any invitation, however attractive, to occupy new ground.

But the trouble is not confined to the borders of Moslem States. In the Niger Mission, after more than fifty years of uphill work in the face of heathen opposition and indifference, and of confinement to a narrow sphere ringed round by inhospitable towns, there is a day of brighter hope. Among the Ibos there is a rapidly opening sphere, a willingness to be taught with which the supply of teachers cannot keep pace, and a marked increase in financial self-support. For the evangelistic work in this Mission there looms, behind all the encouragement, the shadow of a new conflict, which must be faced if the opening door be used by the Moslems.

Southern Nigeria

In the neighbouring Yoruba Mission the Menace has indicated the direction for the few steps of advance, urgent and long awaited, now being planned towards Ilorin and in the Ekiti Country. In other parts of the country, where the pax Britannica has for a long time given to Islam its day of opportunity, the conflict has already become severe. Numbers, influence and money in the service of Islam are opposed to the resources of the young Christian Church. It is good to hear of the strengthening of the Church's organization by the adhesion to the Diocesan Constitution of the important Niger Delta Pastorate, and good to see the zeal and energy by which the Christians at Abeokuta are providing for themselves a grammar school for boys at a cost of £3,000 ; but in contrast there is to be seen at Lagos a newly-dedicated mosque that has cost £10,000. The Church in West Africa, with its great task before it, and with its lines of progress well laid, claims the constant and prayerful remembrance of the Mother Church. It has encouraged the advance to a new field of such an experienced worker as the Rev. T. Harding, whose own untiring zeal will be long recalled by St. Peter's Church at Ibadan, no less than the loving labours of his wife, in whose memory it is built. Yet in their ever-present need of support and stimulus to their spiritual and intellectual progress the Christians of West Africa have wisely shown a sustained and deepened appreciation of the help they may gain from the Home Church by such events as the accession to the Episcopate of the Diocese of Sierra Leone of a sympathetic and experienced worker in Bishop Walmsley, from the continuity for twenty-five years of Miss Bisset's leadership at their chief girls' school, and from the other educational aid which the Society has been able to give. Sierra Leone

The sister Church in Uganda remains the chief instance in the Society's African field of a vantage-ground strongly occupied and not thus far seriously beset by any dangerous anti-Christian opponent. Yet even this Church has to face many difficulties. It is not free from the weakening influences of unworthy living among its sometime prominent members; it has a vast region around it waiting for evangelization; and while it has maintained its honourable record of agents, numbering 2,364, all in its own pay, who occupy over 1,000 out-stations of the Church, and though at the Bishop's call some one hundred fresh workers volunteered for the extension needed in Bukedi and elsewhere, the Home Church's share in the enterprise is failing, and, instead of sending the group of recruits that were needed, the Committee have seen with deep regret the removal by death of the only missionary who could be spared for the oversight of this new field. The claims remain urgent and unmet. The Church at home has given a more adequate response to the appeal for sympathetic help in repairing the disaster by which the cathedral at Mengo was destroyed by lightning. Uganda

'Christ is already India's only standard. The leaven is in, and it is at work.' So writes a missionary, and the truth of his words will not be gainsaid by any one who has studied carefully the story of Indian Missions in our own day. Nothing is more cheering to the missionary worker than the way in which, amidst all the political and social unrest prevalent in that land, there is an increasing attraction, as one Indian himself expressed it, 'towards the great Light of the World.' A striking illustration of this is afforded by what took place at a recent gathering in North India,—the All India Convention of Religions. Four hundred delegates, representing every phase of Hinduism, as well as Mohammedanism, Jainism, Buddhism, Zoroastrianism and Theosophy, were present, each religion being given a full and fair opportunity of explaining its India message. Christian representatives were also present, and their message was listened to with a reverence and attention which contrasted favourably with that paid to the representatives of other religions. The audience stood reverently during the Christian prayer, and listened quietly to such statements as that made by one of the leading missionaries present: 'We cannot place Christ amongst the prophets as one of them; for He is God of God, the very God Incarnate. Them we admire, Him we worship.' 'The one thing we could not have dispensed with,' said at the close the Hindu secretary of the convention, 'was the Christian contribution.' Among the many things which have helped towards this increased reverence for and interest in the Christian message is undoubtedly the work done by missionary educational institutions. 'Sir,' said a student to his principal, 'I was irreligious when I came to this hostel; but I am trying to remember God all day now, and it gives me such power and happiness. You must not press me. God must teach me these things bit by bit, and He will.'

Mass movements

The movement of the masses towards Christianity in various parts of India, and especially in South India, continues to make steady and in some districts rapid progress. Large numbers during the year put themselves definitely under Christian instruction, and missionaries are in many cases finding it extremely difficult to deal with the inquirers because of the lack of competent teachers. In one district alone of the Telugu Mission there are 122 congregations without a resident teacher. The great need of India to-day is the raising up of indigenous teachers who shall teach and train their own countrypeople now pressing into the Church. So writes the missionary in charge of a district sorely in need of help: 'The supreme need of the Indian Church to-day is a large number of Indian workers, well trained and filled with the Holy Spirit, directed by strong, qualified spiritual leaders.' These mass movements towards Christianity bring with them a large number of difficult problems for those who have to direct them. The discerning of motive, and the provision of instruction and pastoral supervision over the baptized involve difficulties which call for much wisdom, and will increasingly press heavily upon the missionaries in view of continued threatened retrenchment.

The Indian Church and evangelistic work

It is a cause for sincere thankfulness that the Christian Church in India is bestirring herself, and endeavouring to rise to the greatness of the opportunity now offering for the evangelization of the people. 'I am more than ever convinced,' writes one missionary, 'of the soundness of the principle which the Punjab Central Mission Council stands for; that is, the fellowship in the Church, which is Christ's Body, and in administration and service of foreigners and Indians'; and he quotes the words of a native Indian civilian, who wrote, 'I have been led by my connexion with the Central Mission Council to realize that the Society and its missionaries have nothing but the interests of the work at heart in whatever they say or do. This is what I never before realized.'

United Provinces

In the United Provinces the Indian Church Council is making strenuous efforts to strengthen its organization and to develop more direct evangelistic work amongst the non-Christians. With the hearty concurrence of the Parent Committee the Council has taken over one of the missionary districts hitherto worked by missionaries of the Society.

An Indian appointed Archdeacon

Among the notable events of the year in India have been the retirement of Bishop Clifford from the See of Lucknow, and the consecration of his successor, George Henry Westcott, the second son of the late revered Bishop of Durham to be consecrated to an Indian Bishopric. The new Bishop has received a warm welcome from all the C.M.S. missionaries. The Committee also welcome heartily the appointment by the Bishop of Lahore of one of the Indian clergy on the Society's roll, the Rev. Ihsan Ullah, to be missionary Archdeacon of Delhi. Two honoured Indian fellow-workers whose names deserve special mention—the Revs. Ruttonji Nowroji and Manuel H. Cooksley—have during the past year been called to their rest.

Ceylon

In Ceylon the new Church Council organization is giving almost universal satisfaction. The Committee trust that some scheme may speedily be inaugurated which will tend to the better equipment of the Ceylonese workers, and thus to the strengthening of the Church in that Island. Trinity College, Kandy, has distinguished itself by one of its students securing the Ceylon University Science Scholarship of the value of £600, the educational 'blue riband' of the Island.

China

With regard to China, the transition through which she is passing proceeds at such a rapid pace that a missionary remarked to Lord William Cecil, 'You must not rely upon me, for I left China three months ago, so that what I say may be "out of date."' The sale of the Holy Scriptures continues a marked feature of the times, and they are being read by men in the highest positions and with the most conservative antecedents. The youths of China are crowding into the missionary schools and colleges, hundreds of would-be students have to be refused admission, while parents are prepared to undergo great privations to enable them to pay the necessary fees. The Chinese non-Christian merchants of Hong Kong have again evinced their sympathy with Christian education by giving an additional sum of £2,000 towards the erection of a college chapel and the provision of extra class-rooms for St. Paul's College.

The first Chinese Archdeacon

Further steps are being taken towards the more complete organization of the Church in China. Bishop Molony has appointed the first Chinese Archdeacon in the person of the Rev. Sing Tsae-Seng, who was ordained in 1889.

Writing with respect to the terrible visitation of pneumonic

Plague in Manchuria

plague in Manchuria, the Lancet of February 25, 1911, testifies 'that at every station down the line medical missionaries have come forward in the most gallant way and borne the brunt in combating the most appalling conditions. . . . The medical profession, by their sacrifices and by the number of willing volunteer practitioners, stands higher in the estimation of the Chinese Government than it ever did before. The struggle has been almost entirely in the hands of medical missionaries.' The Committee are glad to know that one of their own staff is taking his share in this Christ-like work.

The menace of Materialism

Apparently China has now to make her choice between Materialism and Christ. The Edinburgh Conference did not shrink from saying that it would be 'better far for China to keep the religion which she has than to discard it for Materialism and Atheism. . . . It is the Christian Church alone that can meet the emergency. . . . We have before this present generation one of the greatest perils and one of the greatest opportunities of human history.' In referring to the urgent need of men and means to meet the crisis in that land, the Committee can but re-echo the language of one of their missionaries: 'The call to retrench at such times as this makes one tremble for the Church at home, and wonder how she can bear the shame of it.'

Japan

In Japan the missionaries thankfully recognize the number of people who have, in some way or other, to a greater or a lesser extent, heard of Christ. In the Poole Memorial Girls' School, out of 188 pupils only thirty-nine had had no contact with Christian teaching before entering the school. It is terrible, however, to think of one middle school where the religious census returned all the boys as of 'no religion.' The words of the Edinburgh Conference Report are, the Committee fear, too sadly true that 'the educated are becoming philosophically agnostic, the uneducated are losing their confidence in their priests and prayers, processions and sacrifices, without having found any worthy substitute for them. It is a stage of deep unrest, of low morals, of social disorder such as was seen in Europe during her darkest centuries.' The educational authorities discover that with the extension of Western learning the old moral sanctions are giving way among the rising generation, and self-assertion and some other ugly traits are too much in evidence, culminating the other day in the Anarchist plot to destroy the Emperor.

Japanese appreciation of Christian missionary effort

On the other hand, the Committee note with thankfulness that when, on financial grounds, the proposal was made to withdraw the Society's missionaries from Hamada, a letter of remonstrance was drawn up by the leading people of the town and county, on a sheet of paper over eight feet in length, which was signed and sealed by the Mayor, the M.P. of the county, the superintendent of the hospital, the principals of several schools and others, who pleaded for the reconsideration of the proposal, and bore testimony 'as impartial observers, to the spiritual and real influence exerted by the workers,' and expressed their opinion 'that the sudden stoppage of such a holy work would be truly most regrettable to the district.' And a Japanese Government organ published in Tokyo contains the following statement: 'The development of Japan to a first-class Power . . . is to a great extent attributable to the trouble taken by missionaries who, by either establishing schools or preaching the Gospel of Christ in the churches have cultivated the minds of the Japanese and enhanced the standard of their morals. . . . It is to be hoped that the missionaries will redouble their energies and zeal in promoting the welfare and happiness of the Japanese.' Will the Church of God respond to this appeal and send forth more men fully equipped, under the divine blessing, to train leaders in the Japanese Church?

The Arctic Mission

The Committee heartily thank God for the safety of their brother, the Rev. E. W. T. Greenshield, when exposed to shipwreck and considerable danger of starvation in the Arctic regions, and congratulate him on the well-deserved honour which has been conferred upon him by the Queen of Holland.

Grants from the Pan-Anglican Thank-offering

The Society has cause to be grateful to the Pan-Anglican Thank-offering Committee for very material help, rendered mostly through the Bishops of the several missionary dioceses, to the equipment of the Society's work. The grants from the unappropriated thank-offering gifts which directly benefit C.M.S. work amount to £44,031. Other gifts from the same fund will more or less give some indirect assistance to the Society's work, e.g., a gift of Rs 50,000 to promote the formation of bishoprics or assistant-bishoprics in India. Such considerable help has been doubly welcome at a time of straitness in the Society's finances.

Financial situation

The Committee had in November, 1909, sanctioned an expenditure for 1910–11 of £397,507, but in view of the actual receipts of 1909–10, which were only £374,233, they were obliged very carefully to consider the position, and after consultation with a conference of officials of Associations held in May, 1910, they decided that the expenditure of the year must be reduced as much as possible. Messages were also sent to all the Missions to reduce their estimates so that the expenditure for 1911–12 should be brought down to £385,000. It was a very painful duty to ask for a further reduction after the 'severe curtailment' mentioned in the last General Review, but the Missions loyally did their part, and arrangements have been made to keep the expenditure within the above figure.

It was also decided that recruits could only be sent out last autumn if (a) they could be provided for within the reduced estimates, or (b) they would be supported by specially guaranteed subscriptions, or (c) where the Committee by express resolution declared that the particular post must on no account be left vacant.

In spite of the steps taken the Expenditure for the year just closed amounts to £397,268. It should be mentioned that £7,000 of this has been forwarded direct to missionaries, having been given for special purposes. The total Receipts amounted to £383,889 as against £374,233 in the previous year, but this sum includes £23,904 specially provided by the Exeter Challenge and other Funds for the deficit of previous years, leaving only about £361,000 available to meet an expenditure of £397,000. These accumulated deficiencies amounted to £35,923, which has been reduced by the above £23,904 to £12,019, but the Committee regret that there is an actual deficit on the year of £36,095, making a total adverse balance of £48,114.

Candidates

The threatened necessity for keeping back new missionaries last autumn has had an adverse effect on the number of new offers of service received during the year. The result of this is likely to be seen even more in the near future than in the immediate present, for it means that an unusually small number of men and women are in training. Among the sixty-four newly-accepted missionaries the Committee have rejoiced to welcome eighteen graduates, five doctors and ten nurses. A special committee has been appointed to consider whether any changes should be made in the training of men missionaries in view of the new conditions arising in the mission-field, and its report is still under consideration.

Home organization

The Home Office has suffered severely through the transfer of Dr. Lankester and the lamented death of Mr. E. M. Anderson. Quietly, earnestly, continuously for twenty-one years the latter served God in the C.M.S., and as Assistant Secretary for the Gleaners' Union the work greatly prospered in his hands. These losses necessitated the strengthening of the staff by the appointment of the Rev. C. R. Duppuy, Vicar of Christ Church, Bradford, as Deputy Home Secretary. A Women's Committee (Home), working under the Funds and Home Organization Committee, brings to Salisbury Square, month by month, women leaders from many parts of the country and usefully co-ordinates women's work for C.M.S. in the Home Base. Associations in diocesan and archidiaconal areas are increasingly linking C.M.S. friends together, and the idea of Apportionment (which is now the settled policy of the Society) is gradually—if only very gradually—coming to be regarded as a friendly challenge to the Society's supporters to aim at something much more definite and systematic in their contributions. The Committee are convinced that through these large Associations—now some fifty-five in number—will be found the most likely method of devolution, as well as of providing more adequate representation on committees at headquarters, and they rely upon the committees of these Associations to co-operate with them in every possible way.

The Committee further would point out that the Home Office seldom has more than twenty missionaries on the Deputation Staff for the presentation of their case, and they rely on the many disciples of the Missionary Study Movement to become themselves more and more interpreters of their cause in the country. They would remind their constituency that opportunities of presenting their case in many important centres are frequently lost because no missionary advocate is forthcoming. No words are sufficiently eloquent to express the Committee's sense of the devoted self-sacrifice of their fellow-workers in many parochial centres.

At a time when God's call to 'go forward' is so clear and strong, the Committee, conscious of their own personal shortcomings and with a deep sense of responsibility, would venture to emphasize four great needs :—

Four great needs: (i.) Corporate sacrifice,

(i.) The need of corporate sacrifice. The Archbishop of Canterbury, in his opening address at the Edinburgh Conference, expressed the convictions of all the Church's leaders when he said that 'among the duties and privileges which are ours in the Church of Christ, the place which belongs of right to missionary work is the central place of all.' The past years have witnessed an increasing spirit of personal sacrifice; the need of the future is that the same spirit should be shown corporately. If the response to the great demands of the present position and unparalleled opportunities is to be adequate, it must mean strong leadership on the part of the local Church leaders along the line of united action and united self-denial. There will be many who will at first misunderstand such a serious attempt to fulfil the purpose of God, but the claims upon the disciples of Him Who 'came not to be ministered unto but to minister' are unmistakable and unflinching. The cost may appear to be great, but congregations as well as individuals will prove that 'he who loseth his life shall save it,' and one result of greater and united offerings to our Lord for His work abroad will be the receiving of that spiritual power at home which is so consciously needed for triumphant service.

(ii.) A sense of personal discipleship,

(ii.) A truer sense of personal discipleship. Personal love for a personal Saviour must ever be the one great motive which will lead to this. The problem of foreign missions is now the problem of the spiritual life of the Home Church. The great difficulty in the way of advance is not at the front, but at the base. Recognizing this, the Committee would emphasize with deep conviction that their first appeal in this new year must not be for money, but for the true consecration of the life to Christ which shall make us ready to follow whithersoever He would lead. There are ample resources in the Church, but the offering of these resources can never be won by pressure, but must be the overflow of love. The Committee would urge upon their friends throughout the country that at all gatherings for prayer and at all public meetings this call to truer discipleship shall be the dominant one.

(iii.) An increased spirit of prayer,

(iii.) An increased spirit of prayer. The need of this has been keenly felt in the Church Missionary House, and has found expression in the devoting of a quarter of an hour to intercession before or during the chief committee meetings, in the setting apart of a room as a 'prayer room' where mid-day intercessions are regularly held, and in the issuing of the new Intercession Paper. The Committee would venture to suggest to their fellow-workers throughout the country how great would be the possibilities if such a custom became the prevailing one at all committees, and if it could also be arranged for a longer time at our public meetings to be devoted to silent or audible prayer. The Committee would press upon the whole Society the profound need of more definite, constant and believing prayer.

(iv.) Stronger faith

(iv.) A stronger faith in God. Neither the amount of our income nor the extent of our activities is the true measure of the Society's usefulness as an instrument in God's hands for the extension of His Kingdom, but rather the degree in which the presence and the power of God abide in our midst. If we cannot respond to all and every call to press forward into fields yet unoccupied, is all hope of advance thereby stayed? The answer is an emphatic 'No.' Old work can be vitalized with fresh life and can become new, and so fresh conquest in the Name of Christ be assured. All things are possible in the work of our Society if filled with the fulness of God, for all things are possible with God. It is the revealed purpose of Him Who is Infinite to carry out His will and to manifest His power through the finite, and His Son has taught us, 'according to your faith be it unto you.' 'Have faith in God.'

Home Operations

The work of the C.M.S. at its headquarters is carried on, under the direction of the Committee, by an Hon. Clerical Secretary and seven other Secretaries. Three of the last named belong to the Foreign Department, which is concerned with the actual work abroad; one is responsible for the oversight of all matters connected with the training and acceptance of candidates for service; another has charge of the Editorial Department; and one is assigned to the Home Organization Department, which is divided into a number of sections, dealing respectively with the supply of deputations for sermons and meetings, the distribution of publications, the Gleaners' Union, the Medical Mission Auxiliary, missionary study and the circulating library, work among the young, women's work, and the loan of lantern-slides, curios, etc., for use at C.M.S. meetings and exhibitions. Several of these sections have also an Assistant Secretary. The Society's medical missions are administered by a Medical Committee, which has its own Secretary. In addition there is a Medical Missions Wants Department which aims at furnishing the Society's hospitals and dispensaries with the various requisites for their work. The Lay Secretary is head of the staff at the C.M. House; he is also responsible for the receipt and due acknowledgment of the monies of the Society and for their actual disbursement under the direction of the Committee.

The Society's work in the country is in the charge of Associations for dioceses, archdeaconries or smaller areas, which carry on their work with the co-operation and assistance of the Organizing Secretaries. Invaluable help is rendered by a large number of honorary workers in connexion not with these Associations only, but also with branches of the Clergy Union, the Laymen's Union, the Gleaners' Union, the Ladies' Union, the Young People's Union, the Home Preparation Union and study bands in all parts of the country.

The Hibernian Church Missionary Society has its own organization and officers. A few Associations in Scotland are banded together to form the Scottish Auxiliary.

THE first year of the reign of his Majesty King George V. has been marked by important events not only in the political but also in the religious world. Chief among the latter have been the World Missionary Conference at Edinburgh, to which reference is made in another chapter,* and the Tercentenary of the Authorized Version of the English Bible. The latter was celebrated by a meeting in the Albert Hall (as well as a number of smaller meetings in various parts of the country), at which the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Prime Minister, the Hon. Whitelaw Reid (the American Ambassador) and the Rev. F. B. Meyer (a leader of English Nonconformity) bore their testimony to the unique value from different points of view of the English Bible. Mr. Whitelaw Reid read to the assembled thousands a message from President Taft, in which he said: 'This Book of books has not only reigned supreme in England for three centuries, but has bound together as nothing else could two great Anglo-Saxon nations, one in blood, in speech and in a common religious life. Our laws, our literature and our social life owe whatever excellence they possess largely to the influence of this our chief classic, acknowledged as such equally on both sides of the sea.' Even more striking, and distinguished by the tone of fervent piety which has characterized all his messages to his people, were the words spoken by King George V. to a representative deputation who waited on him a week before the Albert Hall meeting to present an address and a specially bound copy of the Authorized Version. Speaking with evident earnestness he said: 'It is my confident hope that my subjects may never cease to cherish their noble inheritance in the English Bible, which in a secular aspect is the first of national treasures, and in its spiritual significance the most valuable thing that this world affords.' *

'The first of national treasures'

The Committee during the past twelve months have felt more keenly than ever before their need of the wisdom and courage to which the King referred earlier in his reply as contained in 'inexhaustible springs' in the Word of God. For the year has been an anxious one. In view of the financial situation revealed at the close of the year 1909–10, when a deficit on the year's working of £5,280 had to be added to accumulated adverse balances amounting to £30,642, they called a conference of members of C.M.S. committees throughout the country, before whom certain resolutions of the General Committee were laid, and by whom they were cordially endorsed.† As the position of affairs became known signs appeared that in some quarters strenuous efforts would be put forth so that the holding back of recruits might be avoided and the adverse balance wiped out. An anonymous gift of £4,000 was received, which, together with other special contributions amounting to nearly £5,000, was sufficient to cover the expenses of all the available recruits, not going out at their own charges, for a period of three years; a proposal, emanating from the Exeter diocese, to raise a sum of money sufficient to pay off deficits of previous years, viz., £35,922, was widely taken up; ‡ at Bournemouth, the offer of a resident to give £1,000, conditionally upon £2,000 being raised to meet it before the end of 1910, led to a total extra contribution of £3,025; § while many gifts, some small in amount but nevertheless representing real self-sacrifice, were received from earnest friends all over the country to enable the Society to pursue its work with unimpaired efficiency. Unhappily these special efforts were not accompanied by any general increase in the ordinary funds.||

years, including £18,387 contributed in response to the Exeter Challenge Fund, (3) £106,898 Appropriated and Auxiliary Contributions, and (4) £2,000 from the Pan-Anglican Thankoffering. The second and fourth of these items were not available towards meeting the liabilities of the year. These amounted to £397,268; and the deficits of previous years, £35,923, bring the total to be met to £433,191. The position is best shown as follows:—

Deficits of previous years	£35,923
Ordinary General Expenditure of the year	381,355
Auxiliary Expenditure	6,930
Working Capital Replacement...	8,983
Making a total to be met of		£433,191
The sums applied to meet this have been:—
Contributions to extinguish Deficit	23,904
General Receipts...	251,087
Appropriated Contributions (including certain balances of former years)	99,612
Auxiliary Contributions	6,930
Pan-Anglican Thankoffering (balance of sum received in 1908–9)	2,655
'Africa and the East' surplus...	889
		385,077
Adverse balance carried forward		£48,114

The Society's income

While the receipts available to meet the year's expenditure have been insufficient, there is satisfaction in noting that the total receipts, including gifts to wipe out the deficit, amounted, as already stated, to £383,889, i.e. a sum £10,000 more than in 1909–10, and one which has only been exceeded twice in the Society's history.

The Committee's policy

In view of the financial position, the Committee resolved on April 27, 1911, (a) to withdraw from the Missions, either temporarily or permanently, many of the missionaries on furlough; (b) not to send any fresh recruits to the mission-field, save in a few exceptional cases, or where they have the privilege of being honorary missionaries; and (c) to discontinue, as far as practicable, the further training of candidates as distinguished from accepted missionaries.

Candidates

The uncertainty as to whether recruits would be sent forth undoubtedly exercised an adverse influence on the number of inquiries concerning work abroad and offers of service. The total number of inquiries in 1910–11 was 487 (262 men and 225 women), as compared with 647 (360 men and 287 women) in the previous year, which number, however, was perhaps abnormally large owing to the Exhibition, 'Africa and the East,' which was held in the Agricultural Hall, Islington. The number of cases dealt with by the Committee was 162 (seventy men and ninety-two women); thirty persons (seven men and twenty-three women) were accepted for training; and sixty-three (twenty-eight men and thirty-five women) were accepted for service, either after training or as qualified when they offered. The corresponding figures for 1909-10 were: cases dealt with by the Committee, eighty-six men and ninety-four women; accepted for training, seventeen men and thirty-six women; accepted for service, thirty-one men and fifteen women. Of the sixty-three accepted for service in 1910-11, seventeen men and nine women were already qualified when they offered; seven and twenty respectively were accepted after training; and four men and six women were accepted by Colonial Associations or by the authorities in the Missions, in the latter case being in local connexion. Of the twenty-eight men accepted, twenty were clergy or to be ordained before sailing for the mission-field, and four were medical men; seventeen of them were graduates—nine from Cambridge, three from Dublin, two from Oxford, two from London and one from Durham; four of the women also were graduates, two being qualified doctors, and ten were nurses. The following list gives the names of the sixty-three accepted for service (with the exception of one who has since withdrawn), together with their colleges or training institutions, the places from which they offered to the Society or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted, and, in the case of those who sailed before June 1, 1911, the Mission to which they have been assigned:—

Training Institutions

Islington College had thirty-two men in residence during the whole or part of the year; ten were in the Preparatory Institution at Blackheath; and one was reading with a clerical friend; making a total of forty-three men under training—three fewer than in 1909–10. Of women candidates there were eighteen under training at The Willows; fourteen at The Olives; ten at the Hostel at Highbury; and four elsewhere—a total of forty-six, fourteen more than in the previous year. In accordance with the Committee's resolution referred to above,* steps have been taken to close the Preparatory Institution, reduce expenses at Islington College, and withdraw at least some of the candidates from The Willows and The Olives. During the year under review some 240 new members joined the Home Preparation Union; five men and twelve women belonging to the Union were accepted for training under the Society.

Changes in the Secretariat

The year has been marked by a number of changes in the Secretariat. At headquarters the Rev. Cyril C. B. Bardsley, Vicar of St. Helens, Lancashire,† has succeeded Prebendary H. E. Fox as Honorary Clerical Secretary; Dr. Herbert Lankester, previously Home Secretary, has taken the place of Mr. R. Maconachie as Lay Secretary; the Rev. C. R. Duppuy, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church, Bradford, has been appointed to be Deputy Home Secretary; the Rev. H. G. Grey has become principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, and his place as Secretary to the Educational Committee has been filled by the appointment of Mr. T. R. W. Lunt, Assistant Secretary for Work among the Young, who in that office has been succeeded by his brother, the Rev. G. C. Lunt, B.A., Exeter College, Oxford, Curate of Christ Church, Clifton; and the Rev. J. MacInnes, M.A., Pembroke College, Cambridge, Rector of Watton, Herts, a brother of Canon R. MacInnes, of the Egypt Mission, has been appointed to render honorary assistance to Mr. Bardsley, with the status of Assistant Secretary. Dr. T. Jays, formerly of the Yoruba Mission, has become Secretary of the Laymen's Union; and Miss M. E. Brophy, after nineteen years' service as Honorary Secretary of the Ladies' Candidates Committee, has resigned that office and has been succeeded by Mrs. D. M. Thornton.

Deaths of Mr. E. M. Anderson

Three heavy losses sustained by the staff call for mention, two of them actual and one prospective. Mr. Ernest M. Anderson passed to his eternal rest on May 23, 1910. He joined the staff of the C.M. House in 1888 as Assistant Central Secretary, but was soon afterwards transferred to the Editorial Department. His energies were mainly devoted to the work of the Gleaners' Union, and when, in 1897, that was brought into connexion with the Home Department, he followed it. When a separate secretary was appointed for the Gleaners' Union Mr. Anderson gave himself chiefly to the deputation arrangements, and of late years he had been responsible for the correspondence in connexion with 'Own Missionaries.'*

and the Rev. Dr. R. Elliott

Nearly a year after Mr. Anderson's death, on April 25, 1911, the Rev. Dr. R. Elliott, Secretary to the Medical Committee, was called away. A graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, he sailed in 1878 for the Santal Mission as a medical missionary. Failure of health compelled him to return home in 1882, but four years later he went forth again, this time to Palestine, where he was the means of greatly developing the Gaza medical mission. An accident obliged him to retire in 1892, and he accepted a country living in Ireland, but in 1900 he joined the home staff of the C.M.S. as Assistant Secretary to the Medical Committee, of which in 1903 he was appointed Secretary.

Retirement of Mr. S. F. Purday

Finally, Mr. S. F. Purday, after more than fifty years' service at headquarters, first as a clerk, then as assistant to the Lay Secretary, then as Assistant Lay Secretary, and lastly as Deputy Lay Secretary, has tendered his resignation, to take effect at the end of 1911. The Committee, in accepting the resignation, placed on record their sense of the 'devotion to the interests of the Society which he has shown throughout, and of the constant courtesy which he has extended to all who have come in contact with him.'

Organizing Secretaries

During the year the following Organizing Secretaries have resigned their charges: the Revs. J. W. Hall (dioceses of Exeter and Bath and Wells) and J. F. Hewitt (dioceses of Liverpool, Chester, and Sodor and Man), both of whom have accepted livings, and the Rev. C. W. Thorne (dioceses of Birmingham, Worcester and Lichfield), who has returned to the Western India Mission. The Rev. A. J. Culwick, M.A., who joined the United Provinces Mission in 1909, has been appointed to the Liverpool district; and the Rev. J. H. Warner, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Rector of Ilmington, Worcestershire, and Rural Dean, to the Birmingham district. The Rev. H. S. Mercer has resigned his position as a Home Clergyman on the Deputation Staff, on his appointment to a benefice, and has been succeeded by the Rev. Hubert Brooke, M.A., St. John's College, Cambridge, lately Vicar of St. Margaret's, Brighton, who will devote his time chiefly to the conduct of missionary missions. Here may also be mentioned the resignation by the Rev. A. J. Pike of the post of Central Secretary of the Hibernian C.M.S., which he has held for nearly nine years. The annual gathering of Organizing Secretaries, which is always held in London in January, was succeeded in 1911 by a conference of missionaries engaged in deputation work. The subject considered was, The Deputation, his Object, his Inspiration, his Message, his Manner in the pulpit, on the platform and as guest, his possible Mistakes, and his Attitude to the parish.

Summer School

Besides the usual anniversary and valedictory meetings of the Society, which presented no special features, and the conference of members of C.M.S. committees, which has already been referred to, a Summer School was held at Scarborough from June 24 to July 1, 1910, for which more than 600 members registered. The Archbishop of York delivered the chief address at the opening meeting, and among the other speakers during the week were the Rev. Lord William Cecil, Dr. Harlan Beach (Professor of Foreign Missions at Yale Divinity School), the Rev. V. S. Azariah (of the Indian Missionary Society of Tinnevelly) and Dr. T. H. P. Sailer (Chairman of the American Young People's Missionary Movement).*

Women's work

With a view to the development of women's work a Women's Committee has been appointed to assist the Funds and Home Organization Committee. The Girls' Movement has been reorganized, and Miss L. B. Bewley has been appointed its Honorary Secretary in the place of Miss M. Rickard. Among the special gatherings held under the auspices of the Women's Department have been a Women's Residential Conference in London in February, 1911, at the close of which thankofferings amounting to £775 were made; and in March two 'Quiet Days' in Sussex for members of the new Women's Committee, a Girls' Training School at Crow-borough, and a Mutual Training Course for women C.M.S. office-holders at Wimbledon.*

Study Circles

The number of study circles registered at headquarters at the end of April, 1911, was 695 as compared with 545 twelve months before, and the corresponding numbers of members were 6,134 and 5,012. Study campaigns have been held in London, Derby, Sheffield and Dublin with a view to the extension of the study of foreign missions. Five large classes, with an aggregate of 120 members, were held daily for five days in Dublin, in order to train future leaders of study circles, while special classes were held for the junior clergy, for laymen and for girls.† Much has also been done to circulate missionary information by means of Missionary Loan Exhibitions, which have been held during the year at Bedford, Belfast (where a profit of £750 was made), Birmingham, King's Lynn (where her Majesty the Queen Mother graciously allowed her name to be used as Patroness) and eleven other centres.‡

Missionary Loan Exhibitions

Gleaners' Union

The Gleaners' Union has enrolled 5,133 new members in the United Kingdom and fifty-four new branches have been registered. In 380 of the branches there has been an increase of membership, while 278 report a decrease. The Union has eleven 'own missionaries,' and forty-six other missionaries are supported, in whole or in part, by various branches.

Young People's Union

The report of the Young People's Union shows that the number of members has advanced from 17,000 at the close of 1909 to 25,200 (besides 4,700 probationers) at the close of 1910; of branches from 500 to 746 (Australia being responsible for 170 of the new branches); and of secretaries and assistant secretaries from 2,200 to 3,632. There are also 390 Sowers' Bands with a membership of 14,000. Special efforts were made to teach the children the privilege and duty of assisting missionary work by their gifts. More than £2,500 was raised during the year by members of the Y.P.U. by means of sales of work or entertainments.§

Medical Mission Auxiliary

The Medical Mission Auxiliary had an available income of £40,904, which is more than in any previous year. Fifty-six beds in various mission-hospitals are supported by members of the Boys' Brigade of the Auxiliary.

Literature

The principal new publications of the year have been From Japan to Jerusalem, a record of Bishop Ingham's travels in India and the Far East; A Peace Scout, designed to influence the 'Scout' movement in favour of foreign missions; and Talks on the Races to be Won, an addition to the series of study-books for young people.

The new book for adult study, entitled The Decisive Hour of Christian Missions, by Dr. J. R. Mott, has met with a large sale. For the first time the Sheet Almanack has been produced in colours, and its circulation has been nearly double that of the previous issue.

Obituary

During the year the Society has suffered the loss by death of five Vice-Presidents, three Honorary Life Governors, and one Honorary Life Member. The Vice-Presidents were the following: Archbishop W. D. Maclagan (formerly of York), Bishop F. F. Goe (formerly of Melbourne), Bishop W. Ridley (formerly of Caledonia), Bishop E. C. Stuart (formerly of Waiapu), and the Rev. Canon W. Ince. The Honorary Life Governors called to their rest were the Rev. G. S. Karney, Mr. J. W. Rundall and Mr. H. Veasey, F.R.C.S. The Honorary Life Member who died was Miss C. R. Hill.

The missionaries, whether retired or on the active list, and the native clergy who have died during the year are mentioned in connexion with the Missions to which they were attached.

Patronage

The office of Vice-President has been accepted by the Bishop of Lincoln (Dr. Hicks), the Bishop of Hull (Dr. Kempthorne), the Bishop of Edinburgh (Dr. Walpole), the Bishop of Sierra Leone (Dr. Walmsley), the Bishop of Singapore (Dr. Ferguson-Davie); and the Committee have appointed to the same office the Rev. Prebendary H. E. Fox, Archdeacon A. E. Moule, Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe and Sir R. Pennefather, C.B. The following names have been added by the Committee to the list of Honorary Life Governors: Mr. G. Austin (Derby), Mr. J. B. Braddon (Upper Norwood), the Rev. C. L. Burrows (Bournemouth), Mr. S. H. Gladstone (Bovingdon, Herts), and the Rev. C. F. Knight (Sheffield). The Committee have also appointed as Honorary Life Members: Miss F. M. Brooke (Bournemouth), Miss M. Brophy (Wimbledon), Miss M. F. Daniel (Tiverton), Mrs. H. E. Fox (Putney Hill), Miss E. M. Fox (Putney Hill), Miss M. R. Gedge (Mitcham), Mrs. T. J. Madden (Liverpool), Miss C. Stanistreet (Liverpool), Mrs. E. H. Sully (Sydney, N.S.W.) and Miss F. E. Young (Bournemouth).

The Colonial Associations

The Colonial C.M.S. Associations in Australasia were set on foot as a result of a visit from the Rev. R. W. Stewart and Dr. Eugene Stock, who were sent as a deputation by the Committee of the Society in 1892. The New South Wales C.M. Auxiliary, which had existed since 1825, was then reconstituted, and new Associations were formed for Victoria (with which Tasmania and South and West Australia afterwards combined) and New Zealand. These Associations accept, train and send forth candidates for missionary work in C.M.S. and other fields, and are responsible for their support. They have sent to the C.M.S. field sixty-six missionaries (excluding wives of missionaries), viz., twenty-four from the New South Wales Association, thirty-two from the Victoria Association, and ten from the New Zealand Association.

In Canada, Wycliffe College, Toronto, formed a Missionary Association in 1888, which maintained men in Japan and in North-West Canada. In 1895 this gave place to a Canadian Church Missionary Association, afterwards called the Canadian C.M.S., and the missionaries previously sent out by Wycliffe College were added to the Society's staff. The Canadian C.M.S., like the Australasian Associations, selects men and women for the Society's Missions; but financially it is now an integral part of the Missionary Society of the Canadian Church, which sends out and supports the missionaries. Since the formation of the Canadian Church Missionary Association twenty-two missionaries have been sent to C.M.S. fields.

In 1895 several parishes in Cape Colony which supported the C.M.S. formed themselves into a South Africa Association, which is analogous rather to diocesan or archidiaconal associations in England than to the Australasian Associations. The Association is responsible for the personal allowances (in whole or in part) of a number of missionaries in the same way as parishes or unions in the United Kingdom having 'own missionaries.' Candidates for missionary service are sent to England for training and acceptance.

The West Indian C.M.S. Council, which was constituted in 1897, selects West Indian agents for service in West Africa, and superintends their preparation at the Mico College in Jamaica. It is not responsible for their support.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES

THE above Association has eighteen missionaries—three clergymen, two laymen (one of them a doctor), three wives of missionaries and ten single women—working in connexion with the C.M.S., two new names, viz., those of Miss H. M. Mullens and Miss E. M. G. Barber, who joined the Fukien and South China Missions respectively, having been added to the list during the year. There are also one clergyman and two Chinese catechists labouring among the Chinese in the Colony. One candidate was in training. An interesting feature of the year was the offer of ten young men (divinity and medical students) for work in the mission-field, a preference being expressed by them for the Sudan. Offers of service from six other candidates were under consideration in February, 1911. There were other indications of a rising tide of missionary interest and zeal. In May, 1910, 3,000 persons were present at the annual meeting of the Association in Sydney—a welcome contrast to the usual attendance in the past of some 600; the attendance at the annual meeting of the Gleaners' Union was also the largest on record; the membership of the Gleaners' and other missionary unions increased by about 3,000;* and a Christmas movement for raising a fund known as 'The Master's Gift' brought in £750.

'Steps have been taken with a view to the federation of the New South Wales and Victoria Associations, as soon as the deficit of the latter Association is removed, by the formation of a Council, composed of three representatives of each Association, with the Archbishop of Sydney as President. The Rev. A. R. Ebbs is to be General Secretary of both Associations, with two clerical assistants, one in New South Wales and the other in Victoria.

II. VICTORIA, SOUTH AUSTRALIA, WEST AUSTRALIA AND TASMANIA

THE financial statement of the New South Wales Association for the twelve months ending December 31, 1910, shows that the receipts (including contributions amounting to £1,050 for work among the Jews and the Aborigines in North Australia, and balances of appropriated contributions amounting to £123 brought forward from 1909) were £5,652, while the expenditure amounted to £5,253 on the general account, and £722 on the special Missions. Since £451 was carried forward under the special accounts there was a deficit on the year's working of £774, to which one of £249 brought forward has to be added. Towards the accumulated deficit of £1,023 two properties, valued at £550, which await realization, are available.

Two new missionaries were sent forth during the year, viz., Dr. Ethel Good to the Bengal Mission, and Miss V. C. Mannett to the Western China Mission, but on the other hand the resignation of Miss K. E. Erwood was accepted. The Association now has five missionaries at work in Africa, one in Turkish Arabia, one in Persia, twelve in India and fifteen in China, besides two in Victoria and six in Northern Australia among the Aborigines, and a couple of Chinese lay agents among the Chinese in the Colony. Of the above, two clergymen, two laymen, four wives and eighteen single women (one of them a doctor and another a trained nurse) are on the staff of the C.M.S., and eight single women on that of the C.E.Z.M.S. Five men and three women were under training at the end of the year. Two new branches of the Gleaners' Union were formed in 1910, two moribund branches were revived, and the number of Gleaners increased by 250. The number of Sowers' Bands decreased by two, but on the other hand the Girls' Missionary Bands made an advance, and at the end of the year there were ten of them with a membership of ninety-four. Mr. O. C. Thomas, the Lay Secretary of the Association, has resigned his position in order to take charge of the Roper River Aboriginal Mission for twelve months, and has been succeeded by Mr. John W. Daunt.†

III. NEW ZEALAND

THE income of the New Zealand Association for the year ending December 31, 1910, was £2,605, the largest sum on record, and the year closed with a balance of £112 in hand. A new missionary, the Rev. F. C. Long, sailed for the Punjab Mission in November, and two others, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Strange, have since left for the Mid China Mission. A clergyman and his wife have also been accepted, and are expected to sail in 1911 provided that a specified amount is raised for their support. On the other hand, Miss E. Baker, by her marriage to the Rev. C. N. R. Mackenzie, of the South China Mission, has severed her connexion with the Association, and the number of its C.M.S. missionaries consequently was still three when 1910 closed—two working in India and one in Japan. The other missionaries of the Association are two women in connexion with the C.E.Z.M.S., one in India and the other in China; five labouring among the Maoris in New Zealand (a sixth is partly supported by the Association); and a clergyman and a layman in Melanesia. The number of Gleaners' Union branches was increased by three.*

IV. CANADA

THE Canadian C.M.S. accepted several candidates as missionaries during the year, but only one of them is likely to join a C.M.S. Mission, the remainder having been located by the Missionary Society of the Church in Canada for work in the new Canadian diocese of Honan, China. There were five candidates in training at the end of 1910. Twenty missionaries of the M.S.C.C. are now working in connexion with the C.M.S., viz., six clergymen and their wives, two laymen and the wife of one of them, and five single women; the two laymen and the wife of one of the clergymen are doctors. The Gleaners' Union has been given up in favour of a new organization for prayer, work and study in behalf of foreign missions which has been formed in connexion with the M.S.C.C.

V. WEST INDIES

THE West Indian C.M.S. Council has nine men working in West Africa, and there are three missionary students in residence at Mico College. The Rev. F. H. Perkins has resigned his position as Secretary of the Council, and has come to England.

THE World Missionary Conference, which was in session at Edinburgh as the pages of last year's Report were passing through the press, was a most impressive gathering. Attended by 1,000 delegates of varied nationalities and from every quarter of the globe, experts in all branches of missionary effort; greeted by a message from King George V. who expressed his earnest hope that 'the deliberations of the conference may be guided by divine wisdom, and may be a means of promoting unity among Christians, and of furthering the high and beneficent end which the conference has in view'; and with Lord Balfour of Burleigh as President and Dr. John R. Mott as chairman, it was qualified to command respect for its utterances. For nearly two years careful preparation had been made. Eight 'Commissions' had been appointed to consider the following subjects:—1. Carrying the Gospel to all the Non-Christian World; II. The Church in the Mission-field; III. Education in relation to the Christianization of National Life; IV. The Missionary Message in relation to Non-Christian Religions; V. The Preparation of Missionaries; VI. The Home Base of Missions; VII. Relation of Missions to Governments; VIII. Co-operation and the Promotion of Unity. The Commissions were entrusted with the task of collecting and systematizing the information on these subjects, and their conclusions, together with the evidence on which they were based, were placed in the hands of the delegates a few weeks before the conference met. The Reports of the various Commissions are being examined in detail by the Committee of the C.M.S., and their resolutions on the subjects which occupied Commissions I., V. and VII. have appeared in the Church Missionary Review.* No resolutions were adopted by the conference with the exception of four providing for the appointment of a Continuation Committee, whose duties, inter alia, are to maintain in prominence the idea of the conference, arrange and prepare for another conference when the time comes, and assist in promoting closer mutual counsel and practical co-operation between Home Boards of Missions.†

SIERRA LEONE MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

Africa was the earliest field entered by the Society. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the Colony of Sierra Leone, which, after the abolition of the slave trade in 1807, had become the depôt for negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the mission-schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life, fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the 'considerable intellectual, moral and religious improvement' of the people to 'the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially.' Port Lokkoh, in the Temne Country, was occupied from 1840–50 and re-occupied in 1875; Ro Gbere was occupied in 1896; the Yalunka Country, near the northern boundary of the British Protectorate, in 1897, and Falaba, the chief town, seven years later; and Katimbo, in the Limbah Country, in 1900. A serious rebellion took place in the Temne Country in 1898, during which the Rev. W. J. Humphrey, of the C.M.S., and several American missionaries were put to death by the insurgents.

In 1852 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and each of the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks and Bowen—died within three years of his consecration. Since then the following have succeeded to the charge of the diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860), Cheetham (1870), Ingham (1882), Taylor-Smith (1897), Elwin (1902), Walmsley (1910). Bishops Weeks, Bowen, Taylor-Smith and Elwin were previously C.M.S. missionaries.

In 1860 the Sierra Leone Native Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society, which ceased in 1890. In 1876 it took over the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom and Mendi Countries, and in 1908 it assumed responsibility for the remainder of the C.M.S. work in the Hinterland, with the aid of some financial help from the Society. More than 150 African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including the Yoruba Country and the Niger). Several of them have been Government chaplains.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Society's work in the Mission is now confined to Freetown, the capital of the Colony and Protectorate of Sierra Leone, where it has Fourah Bay College (affiliated to Durham University), a grammar school for boys and the Annie Walsh Memorial School for girls. Its staff consists of one European and five African clergymen, one layman, two wives of missionaries and two single women, besides twenty-three African lay agents. There are thirty-one clergymen and 119 lay agents connected with the Sierra Leone Native Church.

Sierra Leone Church Missions

THE anniversary of the Sierra Leone Church Missions was held in Freetown in December, a sermon being preached in the cathedral on the 4th by Bishop Walmsley, who had been enthroned some six weeks previously, and a public meeting held in the Wilberforce

Hall on the 7th. A little earlier a meeting of the Women's Missionary Association took place, which was attended by between 700 and 800 persons. It was an interesting fact that among the audience was a body of Kroo women, numbering from eighty to 100, many of whom have been baptized, while the rest were under instruction. These people are natives of a district on the coast of Liberia, but many have made their home in Sierra Leone. Their services as coolies on the coast steamers are in constant request.

Deaths of Mr. F. L. Wilson and the Rev. J. Hamilton

Two former members of the staff of the Mission have passed away. Mr. Frank L. Wilson, who died at Sierra Leone on May 31, 1910, was a son-in-law of Dr. Livingstone, and laboured in Sierra Leone in connexion with the C.M.S. from 1902 until 1904, when he resigned with a view to work under the Bishop among the troops and other English-speaking residents in the Colony.

The Rev. J. Hamilton died at Arlingford on January 7, 1911. After a short course of training at the Church Missionary College he sailed in 1857 for Sierra Leone, where he worked until 1872. In the following year he accepted a post at home as C.M.S. Association Secretary, which he retained until in 1883 he set forth for West Africa once more, this time for service in the Niger Mission. For a couple of years he was secretary for the Yoruba and Niger Missions, and in 1885 he was appointed Archdeacon of Lagos. After four years he returned to England, but in 1891 again went out for a couple of years as a member of the deputation sent by the Committee to confer with Bishop Crowther concerning the Niger troubles. From 1889 to 1899 he was Association Secretary for what was then known as the South-Eastern district, which comprised the counties of Kent, Surrey and Sussex.

Ordination of an African clergyman

The name of the Rev. Edward Jonathan Roberts, who was admitted to deacons' orders in December, 1910, has been added to the list of native clergy connected with the Society.

Educational work

Fourah Bay College

Grammar School

The work of the C.M.S. in the Colony is now almost entirely educational. Eighteen students were in residence at Fourah Bay College, a far larger proportion than a few years ago being paying students as distinct from holders of scholarships. Three of them passed the final Arts examination of Durham University to which the college is affiliated, another passed Part I. of that examination, while three were successful in the first year Arts examination. The missionary parliament, which had been discontinued for some years, was revived, and aroused a good deal of interest. Five of the Grammar School boys passed the college entrance examination, but one of them, instead of taking up his residence there, left to join in the work of the Pongas Mission among his own people. The 'Boy Scouts' movement was established among the pupils, the principal, the Rev. G. G. Garrett, being scout-master, and three of his staff assisting him in the work. The school missionary association raised £21, the greater part of which sum was given to the Sierra Leone Church Missions. The Annie Walsh School, at which Miss H. H. Bisset has completed twenty-five years' service, was the subject of a good deal of misrepresentation as to its sanitary condition during the early part of 1910, which resulted in a number of parents removing their daughters from the boarding-house and entering them as day-pupils, but confidence was gradually being restored when the year closed. While the feeling was at its height the tone of the school was somewhat affected and discipline had to be maintained with a strong hand. Systematic weekly and monthly collections were made in aid of the Sierra Leone Church Missions and the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital, by which about £21 was raised.

Pastoral work

A disturbing element appeared in the congregation of the Bishop Crowther Memorial Church at Cline Town, in the person of a professed witch-finder, who gave out that three of the leading women among the communicants, against whom he had a grudge, were witches. A good deal of excitement and ill-feeling was caused, and Canon O. Moore had some difficulty in restoring harmony.

WESTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSIONS

THE PAST HISTORY

A large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at Sierra Leone at the beginning of the nineteenth century had been carried away from the Yoruba Country, which lies a thousand miles to the east. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was an invitation to the missionaries to go thither, and the establishment of stations at Badagry, 1845, and Lagos, 1852, on the coast; and at Abeokuta, 1846, Ibadan, 1853, Oyo, 1858 (reoccupied 1887), Ode Ondo, 1876, and other towns and villages in the interior. More recently, Oshogbo, 1900, Owo, 1908, and Offa, 1910, have been occupied.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave, explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, finding the natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition, undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied, viz., Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Idumuje Ugboko, 1902; Awka and Kaiyama, 1904; Ebu, 1906; Patani, 1907.

The first station to be occupied in Northern Nigeria was Lokoja (1865), whence the work has spread to other places in the immediate neighbourhood. In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Hausa States. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home. In 1900 Bishop Tugwell led a party to Kano, and though they were not permitted to stay in that town they did not leave the country. The Basa Country was occupied in 1897; Bida, 1903; Zaria, 1905; Kuta, 1906; and Katsa, 1909. In 1907 the Cambridge University Missionary Party (as C.M.S. missionaries) began work at Panyam, in the Bauchi Highlands, and in 1910 at Kabwir.

Samuel Crowther was consecrated Bishop of the Niger Territories in 1864. He laboured zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. In June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, receiving the title of 'Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa.' Two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as his assistant-Bishops at the same time. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and the Rev. H. Tugwell was consecrated the following March. In 1900 the Rev. James Johnson, a third African assistant-Bishop, was consecrated. Bishop Phillips died in 1906. Lagos was included in the diocese of Sierra Leone until 1898.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Western Equatorial Africa Missions are carried on by three Bishops, twenty-two English and fifty African clergymen, nine laymen, seventeen missionaries' wives and nineteen other women missionaries, in several clearly defined districts, viz., in the Yoruba Country and in the Lower Niger districts, which are in Southern Nigeria; and in Northern Nigeria.

I. In the Yoruba Country the pastoral work is almost entirely entrusted to African clergymen. At the three oldest stations—Lagos on the coast and Abeokuta and Ibadan in the interior—District Councils have been formed, and the clergy are appointed by local authorities and maintained independently of the C.M.S. Those Councils, moreover, are responsible to the Diocesan Synod for the evangelistic work in their districts, while the Lagos Council has missionary work, largely self-supporting, in the Ijebu Country. At the other centres—Oyo, Oshogbo, Ode Ondo, Owo and Offa—evangelistic work is largely in the hands of the Society.

All the educational work, with the exception of a training institution and a grammar school at Abeokuta and some elementary schools, is maintained by the C.M.S. The chief institutions are a training college for men at Oyo, a training class for evangelists at Oshogbo, a boys' grammar school and a girls' seminary at Lagos, and a girls' training school at Ibadan; the grammar school is entirely and the girls' schools are largely self-supporting. In this connexion may be mentioned also the book depôts at Lagos, Abeokuta, Ibadan and Ijebu Ode. Medical work is represented by dispensaries at Abeokuta and Oyo.

Labouring under the supervision of Bishops Tugwell and Oluwole, the Society has seven European and ten African clergymen, four laymen, six missionaries' wives, nine other women missionaries and fifty-eight African Christian lay agents at work in the Yoruba Country. There are also thirty-one African clergymen and 180 Christian lay agents in connexion with the Lagos, Abeokuta and Ibadan District Councils.

II. On the lower reaches of the Niger the work is carried on by the Niger Delta Pastorate (which has its headquarters at Bonny, and is manned and financed by Africans), save at Kaiyama and Patani, where it is carried on by the C.M.S. Higher up the river there are a number of stations and out-stations in Southern Nigeria, the chief being Onitsha, Awka and Ebu on the east of the Niger, and Asaba and Idumuje Ugboko on the west. At nine of these places the pastoral and evangelistic work is undertaken by the Onitsha Council, and at the remainder by European, West Indian, Sierra Leonian and native agents of the Society.

There are a training college for men at Awka and a training class for girls at Umudi Oka, and young women's homes at Ani Ofu and Obusi; a number of elementary schools are also carried on. Medical work is maintained at Iyi Enu.

The European clergymen in the Niger Mission number nine; lay missionaries three (one a doctor); missionaries' wives eight; other women missionaries ten (one a nurse); and there are, besides Bishop Johnson, eight African clergymen, of whom five work under the Niger Delta Pastorate. The African Christian lay agents, exclusive of those in connexion with the Delta Pastorate, number sixty-four.

III. The Mission in Northern Nigeria is among the Hausa people, who are practically entirely Mohammedan, at Zaria; the Nupé and Gwari peoples, who are partly Mohammedan and partly pagan, at Lokoja, Bida, Katsa, Kuta and Mokwa; and the Basa and Yoruba peoples, who are mainly pagan, at Lokoja and the other stations around the confluence of the Niger and the Binue. Work has lately been commenced at Panyam and Kabwir, in the Bauchi Highlands, among the Sura and Angass tribes, who are entirely pagan.

Training classes for evangelists are carried on at Kpata and Zaria, and there is medical work on a small scale at the latter station and at Kabwir. The staff is composed of six European and two African clergymen; four lay missionaries, of whom two are doctors; two missionaries' wives; and twenty-one African Christian lay agents.

EFFORTS to carry the Gospel to the people of the vast territories comprised in the diocese of Western Equatorial Africa are compassed about with many difficulties. Some of them are political, such as the native risings which take place from time to time, and render the country unsafe for travellers. Troubles arose in the Ogwashi district, on the west of the Niger, in the autumn of 1909, and did not subside until the following May; the Society's mission-premises were destroyed, the catechist had to be removed, and permission to reoccupy the place had not been received when the year closed. Another rising took place at Okija, between Onitsha and Owerri, in the late summer of 1910, and one of the West Indian agents was molested and robbed while on a journey.* Again, the liquor traffic, to which extended reference was made in last year's Report,† continues to prove a serious hindrance. The Rev. S. R. Smith, the secretary of the Niger Mission, says that at an out-station in the Onitsha district which he visited, he found the chief of the village helplessly drunk. Hearing the sounds of native music and dancing on the Sunday Mr. Smith went to see what they meant, and discovered that a burial feast was in progress; the guests were being regaled with gin, and when the gin bottles were thrown into a clump of bananas as empty, quite small children rushed to pick them up and drain them of their dregs.* Small children drinking gin

Native risings

The liquor traffic

The character of some of the pagan religions is another hindrance to the spread of the Gospel. It should be remembered, however, that most of them contain some element of truth. For example, the Rev. J. W. Lloyd writes of the religion of the Angass people in Northern Nigeria as follows :—

They know and acknowledge a Supreme Being whom they call 'Nen,' but who is so far away as to be quite inaccessible to men ; he gives or withholds children, sends rain, makes crops grow, and is generally regarded as a life-giver, but he is never addressed directly. There is no trace of evil or malevolence in his character ; in fact, they are utterly ignorant of him, so we are teaching the people in the words of St. Paul, 'Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you.' Their chief belief is in spirit-worship ; that of a household spirit or 'Kum,' and a spirit of the bush and farm, called 'Wong.' 'Kum' has, they think, considerable powers of divination, and he is resorted to in cases of dispute and difficulty, while 'Wong' is invoked for good harvests, etc. Sacrifices are offered to 'Kum' of goats, fowls, guinea-corn and cooked food, and are very frequent. On the whole, it is a pure form of spirit-worship with no degrading rites or practices connected with it.† The religion of the Angass people

Again, the Ijos, who are found on the lower reaches of the Niger, are stated by the Rev. J. D. Aitken to be 'so deeply religious that if we do not present the Gospel so that it meets all their needs they can only feel that when they come needing bread we offer them a stone.' Nearly everything in their lives is connected with some religious act. The clearing of ground for a new house, the completion of the building, a birth, sickness, recovery, death, journeys, wrestling matches, etc., are all connected with their juju. Even when a few friends meet together to drink palm-wine or trade gin, a small quantity is poured on the ground as a libation. To much the same effect does the Rev. H. Proctor write. He says :— The Ijos 'deeply religious'

The Ijo Country is full of idols—household gods, town gods, river gods, farm or land gods, gods many—and these are represented by idols made of wood or sun-dried clay in the form of a man or a woman, a fish, a bird, an animal or a canoe. The people are great believers in evil spirits, and the approaches to their towns, to their farms and to their houses are fenced off with strings of various kinds of knotted grass to keep the evil spirits off. Propitiatory sacrifices are made to the different evil spirits through their representative idols. These sacrifices are, however, of a most paltry kind. A chalk-mark is put on the wrist or forehead to betoken a prayer said or a sacrifice made. The people were very interested to hear that our God puts a mark on His people, too, but not with a piece of chalk : God's mark being the meek and quiet spirit, the changed heart, the love without which we are nothing.

In the Owo district of the Yoruba Country the religion consists chiefly of ancestor worship, and Egungun ‡ (the god of the returned bones of ancestors) and Oro (the god of departed spirits) are common, as among the other Yorubas, but the worship of Ifa (the god of secrets) and devil-worship are also prevalent.

But while there are elements of truth in the pagan faiths, which furnish a vantage-ground to the Christian missionary, there are also many degraded practices connected with them which constitute a real obstacle to Christianity, partly because they appeal to the lower natures of the people, and consequently hold them in bondage, and partly because they are the outcome of fear, and that fear is not easily overcome. Thus among the Ibos any child whose birth is not perfectly normal is cast into the bush to die ;* at Ihala, south of Onitsha, 'murder has long been a matter for glory and an opportunity for feasting' ;† and in the Bauchi Country a case of cannibalism occurred early in 1911, the mail-carrier between Kabwir and Panyam being killed and eaten. Moreover the attachment of the people to their old religions makes them unwilling to abandon them in favour of Christianity, as was experienced during the year among the Angass tribe, where a good deal of persecution was stirred up by the older men against those who showed signs of embracing a new faith. ‡

'Murder an opportunity for feasting'

The difficulty caused by the presence of Islam is, however, far greater than any of those which have been referred to, and the continued spread of that religion is a real and great menace. At Lagos a mosque has been opened which has cost £10,000. Throughout the Abeokuta district Islam is increasing rapidly. In the Ijebu Country, which was wholly pagan in 1892, there is now a mosque in every village, while in Ijebu Ode there is one in almost every street. At Owo, where for some years past Mohammedans have been striving to enter, only to be repulsed by the king and chiefs, the Moslems have lately been given the permission they sought, and now a mosque is being built and morning by morning the call to prayer is heard at daybreak.§

The advance of Islam

In the western section of the Yoruba Mission—at Oyo, Ogbomoso and Iseyin—'Christianity is making very little progress, but everywhere Mohammedan mosques are to be found,' and it is no uncommon thing to see children returning from Moslem schools, 'carrying their slates, covered with Arabic texts, which they learn to repeat parrot-fashion.' On the lower reaches of the Niger 'there is no danger at present' ; the Ibos also are at present almost unaffected by Mohammedanism, and the Rev. G. T. Basden believes that they will continue to hold aloof from it if Christianity be first

§ This was the Rev. H. F. Gane's report in December. A few months before he had written from Owo, 'There are very few Mohammedans, and those few are chiefly strangers who are in the town for trading purposes.'

offered to them. Mr. Basden assigns the following reasons for his opinion :—

Why the Ibos do not embrace Islam

> The Ibo is too sturdy of character for Islam to win him. He is also 'cute, and an observer of things as they really are. He judges by results. He takes note of the cheating in trade, the deceit and lying of the professors of Islam. Moral questions may or may not worry the heathen Ibo, but as a trader by birth and practice he knows what business is, and the principles adopted generally by the Mohammedans make clear to him that their religion exercises no better influence in methods of business than his own ; in fact, the Ibo is inclined to believe that his religion is to be preferred of the two as far as the ethics of trade are concerned.

Proceeding farther into the interior the menace reappears. In the region around Katsa in Northern Nigeria Mohammedan mallams are found everywhere, and though the villages are still pagan, Moslem influence is strong, and people who in former days fled from the Bida Mohammedans when they raided the district have now adopted Mohammedan names and many wear Mohammedan charms.* At Kuta, where Islam extends by intermarriage, there is imminent danger that the Gwaris may be won for that religion ; 'they are not impressed,' says the Rev. L. N. Green, 'with their own pagan faith ; the battle is undoubtedly for Islam or Christ.' Lastly, the Rev. C. H. Wedgwood says concerning the Bauchi Province that as the country is opened up Hausa traders enter in, start markets, and establish themselves among the pagans, very soon gaining an influence over them and persuading them to embrace Islam ; and he adds that this fact makes it important speedily to occupy the Bornu Province to the north-east, where there are between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 people, the Beri Beri, speaking one language and as yet entirely untouched by missionary effort.

Reinforcements

The European staff of the C.M.S. in Western Equatorial Africa has been reinforced by the Rev. Norman Campbell Orr, of Islington College, L.Th., Durham University, who spent a few months at Freetown before proceeding to Northern Nigeria, and Mr. Joseph Roland Oliver, who has been accepted on special agreement as assistant-manager of the bookshop at Lagos. The names of the Revs. Peter Adebiyi, Samuel Charles Phillips, B.A., Durham University, and Noah Adeyinka Oduntan Morgan, who have been admitted to deacons' orders by Bishop Oluwole, have been added to the list of native clergy connected with the Society. On the other hand, the resignations of the Revs. G. P. Bargery and F. H. Lacy and of Miss M. A. Francis have been accepted by the Committee. The need of recruits is great. The staff of missionaries in Northern Nigeria was so thinned by furloughs, ill-health and resignations that Mr. T. E. Alvarez says the year will always be remembered as one of 'hanging on.' In the Yoruba Country and the Niger Mission three men (one a doctor) and seven women missionaries (including a couple of nurses) are said to be required for the maintenance of the existing work; while six other men are needed to render possible the advance which is called for.

Deaths of Mr. J. H. Ashcroft

Mr. J. H. Ashcroft, who from 1859–80 was a lay agent of the C.M.S. in the West Africa Missions, and for a couple of years was in charge of the 'Henry Venn' steamer on the Niger, died at Lytham on October 22, 1910.

and the Rev. D. O. Williams

The death also occurred at Abeokuta on March 17, 1911, of the Rev. D. O. Williams, the African pastor at Ake, under the Abeokuta District Council. He was admitted to deacons' orders in 1890.

THE DIOCESAN SYNOD AND ITS DISTRICT COUNCILS

Diocesan Synod

THE fifth session of the Diocesan Synod was held at Ibadan in May, 1910, under the presidency of Bishop Oluwole, and was attended by more than eighty delegates, clerical and lay. Among resolutions adopted were one emphasizing the importance of the West African Native Bishoprics Fund, and another welcoming the plans for the inauguration of a divinity hall at Oyo and urging the district councils to 'endeavour to find suitable candidates and make arrangements for their being able to take the proposed divinity course.'

Lagos District Council Missions

The Lagos District Council, in connexion with which there are fifteen pastors and some 14,500 Christians, carries on missionary work in the Ijebu Country. The story of the early days of that work has lately been told by Bishop Tugwell as follows:—

> In the central town of the district the chief had banned Christianity, and, all told, there were but three Christians there. The fourth to arrive was a Lagos schoolgirl, who brought with her her Yoruban Testament. Her daily reading of this aroused interest. Her relatives asked her to read it aloud, and by-and-by called their neighbours to hear it. After a while the chief heard of these daily readings and decided to put an end to them by burning the Testament. Publicly this was done, and as the breeze, catching the ashes, blew them far and wide, an old woman sitting by drew the chief's attention to the parable in action, and added solemnly and significantly: 'Chief, wherever a single one of those ashes falls, there the Word will surely come.'

A prophetic statement

The prophecy has been abundantly fulfilled, and there are now eighty-five stations in the district. The Rev. S. J. Gansallo, who is in general charge, reports the baptism of thirty men on one day at Ogbo, and of a large number of other persons elsewhere, and the abandonment of their idols by many people. Nine persons, including four schoolgirls, the firstfruits of the work among the women, were baptized at Ilaro, where a teacher under the council is partly supported by the Lagos Girls' Seminary. The contributions of the converts increased, and there were many Christian marriages, several who had married as Heathen coming forward to have their unions ratified in church before receiving the rite of confirmation. Mr. Gansallo is obliged, however, to lament that there is much looseness of morals among the converts, and that the supply of workers is altogether inadequate. An appeal has lately been put forth for itinerant missionaries to travel about the country preaching the Gospel.

Abeokuta District Council

At the anniversary of the Abeokuta District Council in September, 1910, an income of about £1,000 was announced. The council drew its final grant-in-aid from the C.M.S. at the end of the year, and has now attained financial independence of the Society. An Industrial Mission has been opened in Abeokuta with money (£3,000) given and bequeathed by an African layman, Mr. Blaize, and his daughter has further promised £200 a year for three years for its support. Imposing buildings for the new grammar school are rapidly rising on the very spot where Bishop Crowther began his work in 1846.*

Ibadan District Council

The contributions towards the support of the African ministry from the churches connected with the Ibadan District Council amounted in 1910 to £380, an increase of £50 over the sum given in the previous year. St. Peter's Church, Aremo, which has been built in memory of the late Mrs. Harding, was dedicated in the summer.† The Aremo congregation have set on foot a service on Sunday afternoons at the house of the new Bale, and the Kudeti congregation hold a similar service at the house of the Osin Bale; these services are often attended by other chiefs besides those named. The attendance at the Sunday-schools showed an improvement, and some of the Christians have given up trading in spirits, but on the other hand there is a growing worldliness in the Church and love of pleasure, luxury and money is on the increase, as also is immorality.

Niger Delta Pastorate

The congregations connected with the Niger Delta Pastorate have accepted their place under the Constitution which was adopted a few years ago for the diocese. Mission work under the auspices of the pastorate is carried on at Warri, the capital of the Central Province of Southern Nigeria, where a certain number of Shekiris, the aborigines of that part of the country, are under instruction, and at Sapele, Benin City, etc. Fourteen adults were baptized by Bishop Johnson at Benin in 1910. The majority of the converts and inquirers there belong to the households of chiefs, and most of the latter, who formerly used to attend the services, now hold aloof, fearing that they will be required to abandon polygamy, disband their wives and break up their households if they seek admission into the Church.‡

adequate conception of the state of affairs, but a glance at the different stations and districts of the Society in turn may reveal something of the number and importance of the openings which exist. Mr. C. W. Wakeman, who is in charge of the bookshop at Lagos, early in the year under review paid a visit to a place called Agboyi, on the River Ogun, for the purpose of installing in his work a teacher who was sent in response to an invitation from the chiefs and people. The teacher was welcomed with open arms, and soon a number of men were gathering together to be taught. Before long facts concerning the agent's domestic life became known, which made it impossible to continue to employ him; no one was available to take his place; and 'Agboyi is left with a year's salary for a teacher waiting in the bank to be used.' In Abeokuta itself, 'women's work in every form awaits leaders, but as yet it waits in vain,' says Miss C. L. Rankilor. In the Oyo district there is not the same eagerness for teaching as is shown in other parts of the Mission, but nevertheless 'there is manifest, even in that hard soil, a "shaking of the dry bones."' A greater readiness to listen than three years ago is reported from the villages of the Ibadan district, due, perhaps, rather to a desire for book knowledge, which is recognized as improving their worldly prospects, than to a wish for Christianity, and idolatry is losing its hold. At the other stations in the interior the opportunity is more marked. Small bands of Christians are springing up all over the Oshogbo district, and from every side petitions for teachers are being received. In the Ekiti Country and the district around Owo, a large town in the western border of the Central Province, 'large numbers of people are forsaking their idols and definitely turning their faces towards Christianity.'* The Rev. G. Burton illustrates this statement by an extract from a letter written by a teacher. Writing in December the former said :—

Faces definitely turned towards Christianity

> A few days ago I had the opportunity of reading a letter from a catechist stationed in a large town in the Ekiti Country. It was written in English, and the extracts are substantially the actual words of the writer: 'I am too young for the station under my care. If it were not for the grace of God and the effusion of His Spirit, I would have died for joy and happiness at the great number of Christians who are being added to His Garden weekly. We are more than 500 at X—— now, and, in my district, each church without a teacher is flourishing greatly. You will have to teach from morning till evening. Before you go to bed it will be about eleven o'clock. All my journeys are encouraging. . . .'

In like manner Mr. C. W. F. Jebb speaks of many openings. In one village through which he passed while on a journey four young men, who had been taught by a voluntary worker, visited him, asking for baptism. At another place twenty young men begged for a teacher and on one occasion 130 adults were present at a service in the well-built church, the service being led by a young man who has had no training whatever. In a third village the chief, when Mr. Jebb said that he could not stay there, replied, 'If you must go do not forget us. Come and visit us often, for we are like young animals without a mother, which are weak and need tending.' The king of Ilawe, a town not far from Ado, in the same district, pressing his plea for some one to instruct him and his people, said that Christianity had come to his town before the missionaries; but if a man was obliged to eat dumbi (pounded yam) without sauce he would not enjoy it; so they would not enjoy Christianity until they had a teacher. The people there have built a church; there is a congregation numbering about 150 persons; 100 Yoruba primers were sold in a few days; and a message was received soon afterwards asking that a few hundred more might be sent. These calls are the more urgent in that the Ekiti Country up to the present has remained almost untouched by the Mohammedan invasion.*

'We are like young animals without a mother

Concerning the reason for this desire for instruction, the Rev. J. McKay writes from Oshogbo as follows:—

> With the majority the desire for education and self-improvement is uppermost; others think to escape manual labour on the roads for the chiefs by embracing Christianity; to others the fact that a Christian gets some standing in the place, especially if the place be a small one, is an inducement. Such things as conviction of sin, and the realization of one's need of a Saviour, are rarely, if ever, met with. To many, Christianity means a society of those who have pledged themselves to give up idol-worship, who are able to read, and who are supposed to have but one wife. Repentance, the new birth, newness of life, the giving up of sinful habits and associations (save in the matter of idol-worship) are quite foreign to the ideas of the ordinary candidate for baptism, and it generally means months or even years of patient, continuous teaching before the candidate begins to realize the bearing of such passages as 2 Cor. v. 17 on his conduct and life. In some cases, where, to the joy of the missionary, a small church has been erected, one has found later that the thought in the minds of the inquirers has been that the European missionary will be able to help them out of any difficulties that may arise with the chiefs or the European Resident; or, in the case of chiefs who have put up a shed in their town, that the white missionary will give them effectual help in the never-ending boundary disputes between town and town. And when the truth dawns upon them that it is no part of a missionary's work to interfere in political matters, the apparent 'keenness' for God's Word disappears, and the building is allowed to fall into neglect.

Mixed motives

While the year 1910 was thus one of boundless opportunity, it was to a certain extent one also of achievement and advance. At Owo, which was first occupied by European missionaries at the end of 1908, the attendance at the services was good, and the accommodation afforded by the church was often inadequate; the school and weekly classes also were well attended. Two new places in the district, Ido Ani and Imeri, were occupied as out-stations, the resident teacher in each being responsible for four or more other towns; and the long hoped-for linking up of the work in the Yoruba Country with that in Northern Nigeria took place in the spring of the year under review, when the Rev. H. F. Gane travelled to Kabba, an out-station of Lokoja, and there met the Rev. F. H. Lacy.* The Kabba district, it should be explained, extends fifteen miles south and west of Kabba, and its boundary there is co-terminous with that of the Owo district.

New out-stations

Occupation of Offa

Towards the end of 1910 another forward step was taken by the occupation of Offa, about thirty miles north of Oshogbo, by the Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Smith. From Offa Mr. Smith visited Ilorin, the 'Yoruba Jericho,' twenty-eight miles distant, in January, 1911, and held services for the Yoruba-speaking Christians and for others from Sierra Leone and the Gold Coast, and also sought out a site for a church. Permission has only been accorded at present to build on the railway side of the river away from the town, but to be allowed to build at Ilorin at all represents a great advance. A visit had previously been paid to the town by the Rev. T. A. J. Ogunbiyi, who was enabled to explain the Lord's Prayer to a number of Mohammedans; some of them expressed a desire for a Christian school, but others told him, apparently with a tinge of regret, that had he visited the town a few years before with such a message he would have been beheaded! †

A Moslem's regret

Only a few points call for mention in connexion with the evangelistic work at other stations. At Ora, in the Oshogbo district, where in the past so much opposition has been experienced, the Christians erected a church and a teacher's house on the land which had been wrested from them;‡ Lasinde, whom the heathen priests threatened to kill should he ever return to their town, once more took charge of the Church; and some of the Heathen began to send their children to the mission-school. Around Ogbomoso the Gospel was listened to with attention, and an Ifa priest one day remarked to the Rev. F. L. Akiele, 'All that you have told us is true, but it is not an easy thing for us to leave the custom of our forefathers and join the Christian religion; but perhaps our children may become Christians.' 'Inadequate forces' crippled the efforts to maintain existing work in the Ode Ondo district, and made it impossible to take advantage of the openings which presented themselves.

Baptisms

Baptisms were again numerous. Eight young men, the first-fruits of the work among the Egbados, were baptized at Ishagga, sixteen miles from Abeokuta, where a church built in memory of the late Rev. E. Fry was dedicated in March, 1910. Three persons, the fruit of itinerations in former years in the Ibadan district, were received into the visible Church, one of them first attracted to Christianity by noticing that Christians had less trouble than either Mohammedans or Heathen, and that their characters were superior to those of idolaters and fetish-worshippers. Five adults were baptized at Ora, already mentioned; ten at Oke Opin, nine miles north-east of Ilofa; a man and a schoolgirl at Ogbomoso; 119 persons at Ondo and its out-stations, including three grandsons of the king of Ikoya, the capital of Ikaleland (who with others are the firstfruits of the work there), and a number of Sekiris belonging to a place called Okitipupa; fifty persons, mostly young people, at Ile Ife; and forty-four persons at Ifaki, in the Ekiti Country.

Bookshops

Recent years have witnessed a great development of the work at the Bookshop at Lagos with its branches at Abeokuta, Ibadan and Ijebu Ode, for whereas in 1906 the sales amounted to £3,462, during the first nine months of 1910 they realized £6,046. In six months nearly 8,000 Bibles and Testaments were sold, more than 5,600 Prayer-books, and 4,400 hymn-books—all in the Yoruba language. There was a great demand for books and tracts on Mohammedanism, and a translation of the Torch of Guidance to the Mystery of Redemption, which was first published in January, 1910, went through three editions, 2,000 copies in all, in nine months. A new monthly magazine in Yoruba and English, entitled In Leisure Hours, was brought out during the year.

Training Institutions

In the past the object of the Training College at Oyo has been to prepare men to act as schoolmasters in mission-schools, and in this it has been eminently successful, since during the fourteen years of its existence seventy-nine men have completed the course and been sent out as workers, sixty-one of whom are still at work in various capacities, while three have died and fifteen have left the Mission or been dismissed. Early in the year under review a step was taken which sets before the college a sphere, if not of wider at least of fuller usefulness, by opening a divinity class, buildings for which were erected with the help of a grant from the Pan-Anglican Thankoffering Fund. Three men, sent and paid for by the Lagos, Abeokuta and Ibadan District Councils respectively, entered the class and at the end of the year sat for their examination for deacons' orders. Eighteen students were in residence at the Training Class for Scripture-readers at Oshogbo. Five Hausa inmates of the Girls' Training School at Ibadan were baptized on Ascension Day, 1910, one of them being Eve, whose story was given in the Annual Report for 1908–9.* The number of names on the rolls of the Girls' Seminary at Lagos showed a decided increase, and a pupil-teachers' class, consisting of nine girls, was instituted. Some of the primary schools in the country are seriously undermanned, e.g., that at Ode Ondo, where the schoolmaster, single-handed, has 155 children under his charge.

Medical work

The medical work in the Mission is confined to the dispensaries at Abeokuta and Oyo. The former was attended by an increasing number of Mohammedans, and three women among the patients at the latter joined the inquirers' class.

Pastoral work

Some of the districts were rearranged early in 1910, part of the Ondo district, viz., Ondo, Ilesha, Ijero and Ile Ife, being formed into a separate district and placed under an African clergyman, the Rev. R. S. Oyebode, while the Akure and Ado Ewi sections were added to Owo to form the new Owo district. Both for Ondo and for Owo a Provisional Church Council was formed, and an advance in self-support was the consequence. Increased gifts are reported from several of the stations, and a touching contribution was received from the lepers at Abeokuta, for whom at their own request a harvest thanksgiving service was held, at which they brought out of their deep poverty freewill offerings amounting to nearly six shillings. Although there were some cases of backsliding, most of the converts adorned their profession, remaining faithful under persecution, engaging in some cases in evangelistic work, and making a firm stand with regard to buying, selling and using 'trade spirit.'

II. NIGER MISSION

Educational work

It was recorded in last year's Report * that the story of 1909 in the Ibo and Ijo countries was one of unbounded opportunity, since from all regions there arose a cry for teachers. A somewhat similar statement may be made as concerns the year 1910, but with one modification. In 1909 the appeal apparently was very largely for religious teachers, but now it is rather for those who will impart a secular education. On all sides there is a demand for schools. The Ibos are awakening to the fact that English has a value now that the Government requires so many clerks and servants, and this is the case even in parts of the country in which hitherto few openings have appeared. At one place on the east of the Niger, where a teacher was placed in January, 1910, the number of pupils on the school roll soon ran up to 250, and at another the teacher began with eighty names on the register. So anxious are the people for education that in some cases, failing to obtain from either the Mission or the Government the desired instructors, the natives had recourse to men from the Delta, who, in return for a monthly sum per head, imparted to the children such knowledge as they themselves possessed. Among the Ijos the longing for schools is said to be due to pride; most of the young men have been out of their own country and have seen others more advanced than themselves, and since this is humbling they seek to have schools opened in their midst. This desire gives the Mission a great opportunity. The Rev. G. T. Basden writes:—

> The making of systematic religious instruction a compulsory subject in our code necessarily prohibits our schools from receiving grants-in-aid from the Government. But the simple West African cannot comprehend a man who professes to hold no religion at all. A man without any sort of belief is unthinkable in these parts at present. Hence the children attending our schools are willing to pay fees rather than attend other schools. The West African is a distinctly religious man. Religion, of whatever kind, always appeals to his nature, and so there is no difficulty in keeping our schools well filled with pupils. School fees for this year will amount to something like £150, and this in spite of the fact that in towns where there is a Government school a tax is levied upon the people generally to pay for the educational facilities supplied, so that many people pay both the tax and the fees. This clearly illustrates in a practical manner the desire for religious education.

Training Institutions

For the supply of the required agents the Mission is dependent on the Training College at Awka, where nine men were being prepared to act as schoolmasters and three as evangelists. There is great need for further accommodation at the college, not only because of the demand for teachers—' towns all around,' Mr. Basden says, ' are putting down in advance the full salary for a teacher, and erecting houses and schools, and yet we have no trained workers to occupy the places '—but also because the C.M.S. is unable to fulfil the promises which have been made to give further training to men who have been working faithfully.* One of the present African agents sent in his resignation towards the close of the year, because it was impossible to give him the training he had been promised, and others were in much the same position.

The standard of education at the Girls' Training School † at Umudi Oka is steadily being raised, and the inmates receive in addition domestic training of a character to fit them for usefulness in their future homes. Two of the girls offered for three months' training as probationers in the hospital at Iyi Enu, and three others took up work as pupil teachers. A certain number of little children are received ; six in one week were sent by the Government, who at some time had been stolen from their homes, and when rescued were just about to be sold and given to the idols.

Sale of children to idols

It should be explained that there are villages in many Ibo towns which are occupied exclusively by people belonging to certain idols whose slaves they are. They are presented to the idols as an act of merit on the part of the donor, and are called Osu. Although regarded as slaves they seem to do much as they like, excepting that they may only marry among themselves. Several of them have become Christians. Of the six children in question, three were claimed and restored to their parents, one was a leper, and two remained in the school.

Primary schools

The Elementary Schools are a great evangelistic agency ; twenty-five adults baptized in the Asaba district were first influenced for

* The system in vogue is to require all candidates to serve three years as pupil teachers before being accepted for training ; during their time of training, each year in college is followed by a year of practical work as teachers, after which they return again for another year of instruction.

Christ in these schools, and it is a common thing for a candidate for baptism to attribute the first beginning of his Christian life to what he learnt as a pupil.

Medical work

Although Iyi Enu, where the medical mission is situated, is five miles from Onitsha, nearly 400 in-patients were received during the first half of 1910, and more than 11,000 visits of out-patients were recorded. People frequently make a four days' journey in order to obtain treatment, and the forty-five beds were often insufficient. A children's refuge, for twins and others, was opened in the autumn; a great part of the cost of its erection was defrayed by the king and chiefs of Ogidi, the nearest town.*

Evangelistic work

The year under review was marked by some extension in the form of the occupation of Ani Ofu, a hamlet two miles from Idumuje Ugboko, which received a resident missionary in February, 1910; while in November Miss K. Beswick occupied Emi, about five miles from Ebu Owerri. Moreover, three new out-stations were opened in the Awka district and four in that worked from Ebu; the names of the latter are Ngor, or Umu Ewerri, eleven miles south-east of the main station; Nkwese, twenty-five miles north-east; Ogwa, fourteen miles north; and Awaka. On the lower reaches of the river a West Indian agent was placed at Amassama, which is said to be the largest of the Ijo towns, while there were good openings among the Igabo people, a large tribe occupying an extensive tract of country to the west of Patani. On the other hand, as briefly recorded in last year's Report, Ihala, where 'murder has long been a matter for glory and an opportunity for feasting, and a common salutation of respect is "Ogbu madu"' (man-killer), had to be abandoned, since the young men had assembled and taken an oath not to leave any foreigner in the town after two months.

New stations and out-stations

Withdrawal from Ihala

At most of the centres of work, old and new alike, the Word of the Lord seemed to have more or less free course. The women in the Onitsha district are said to be awakening very quickly and to evince a deep and earnest desire for further teaching; 'Do come and live among us. How are we to learn?' was their cry when a missionary visited them in their villages. At Nkpo the number of women inquirers increased from three to thirteen in a few months; and at Obusi a large number of young men came out on Christ's side, and though a few found the cost too great and fell away, the majority stood firm, and one of the Heathen was led to exclaim, 'Is all Obusi becoming Christian?' A new church, erected by the converts and inquirers, was opened at Ozubulu, in the presence of 500 people; only a few years ago this town was very 'wild,' its population consisting largely of slaves who had been bought and presented to the local presiding deity. A good many persons were admitted to the catechumenate at Ebu, and by means of a sewing class many heathen women have been led to attend the church services regularly; at Owerri many copies of the Ibo New Testament were purchased; and even at Ihala some signs of fruit appeared during its short period of occupation by a missionary, in that a chief and two other men expressed their intention of embracing Christianity. On the west of the river it was just the same. The heathen chiefs at Idumuje Uno, who a few years ago refused to the Christian adherents any site on which to build a church or school, offered a piece of ground, right in the centre of the town, as a site for a mission-station;* at Igbodo the adherents increased in numbers; and at Ubulu Okiti many gave up their idols to serve the living and true God. From Patani an awakening is reported; the services are better attended, and a fair sprinkling of young men is seen in the congregation.† Among those baptized during the year were forty adults at Nnewi, a town in the Onitsha district, notorious some years ago for the lawless character of the people and their opposition to the Gospel; ten men at Ora Ifite, another town in that district, which until lately never had a resident teacher; seven young men at Emi and five at Awaka, two of the new out-stations mentioned above; a couple of other young men at Owerri, the firstfruits of that place; and in the Asaba district the firstfruits at Igbodo, consisting of a former medicine woman‡ together with her husband (once an important medicine man) and daughter, two other couples, and another young man; and, at Asaba itself, the oldest of the chiefs, a man in his ninetieth year, who took the name of Elijah at his baptism.

Converts

Baptism of a chief ninety years old

Besides the above there were a number of converts, the fruit of the training homes and special classes. At Umunya a station class is held for the wives of Christians, who, through press of household duties and family ties, are unable to attend the day-schools and ordinary classes; the class had thirteen members in one term, and seven in another, and all but two of them received baptism. The training homes are for young unmarried women; some are brought by their future husbands who are Christians or inquirers; others enter because they are in danger of being forced by their relatives into a life of sin; and in one case a girl applied for admission because the man to whom she was betrothed refused to marry her in church. Twenty-two young women were received into the home at Ani Ofu, two miles from Idumuje Ugboko, where it was formerly situated, and four of them were baptized; while the other home at Obusi had some twenty-one inmates. Miss E. A. Hornby, writing in December, gave the following account of the latter:—

Young Women's Homes

> The work among the women and girls has been especially hard, and from 1906, when I first went to Obusi, until last year, very few women and only three young girls had come out definitely for Christ. Two of these girls were taken into the home. They were lively, wild girls, and their heathen friends, although very angry, comforted themselves by saying, 'They will soon be back again among us.' Very earnestly did we pray that they might never go back, but might be the firstfruits of a great ingathering for God among the girls of Obusi. During the closing months of last year and at the beginning of this we have seen an abundant answer to our prayers. Twenty-four young women have come out from among the Heathen and definitely expressed their wish to become Christians, and we have good reason to believe that many others are wanting to join them; but one has to be very careful and wise in working just now. The fact of a heathen girl having been seen coming into my compound, or talking to me in the street, might be quite enough to make her people put her where she would be quite out of the reach of Christian influence and teaching. The Heathen are very much opposed to their girls becoming Christians. One woman said to my head girl, 'If you entice my daughter away and make her a Christian, I will kill you.' Many of those admitted into the home have given evidence of a real change of heart, and eleven have been baptized during the year.

Pastoral work

Some of the Christians in the Idumuje Ugboko district fell away, but in other parts of the Mission there were several instances of steadfastness and of readiness to witness for Christ. A case in point is that of some soldiers at Owerri, the Government centre. Many of them are Yorubas and have been baptized, and so far from being ashamed of their Christianity, they erected a small place of worship in the barracks with the approval of their commanding officer, and there, when no minister was available, they conducted service for themselves. A united conference of African and European women was held at Onitsha in January, 1910, with success beyond expectation;* and it was followed in November by the first meeting of the Women's Council, composed of women representatives from the ten oldest stations, which are uniting in an effort to support themselves. There was a crowded gathering at the annual meeting of the Ibo Pastorate, the committee of which have assumed responsibility for the work at Atuma. The total contributions of the Christian community exceeded by £250 those of 1909, notwithstanding that school fees had been raised.†

Literary work

Archdeacon T. J. Dennis, with the help of two representatives of the United Free Church of Scotland Mission (from Aro Chuku and Ungwana), of one of the Niger Delta Pastorate (from Bonny), and of a helper from Onitsha, continued the translation of the Old Testament into Ibo, and in the twelve months ending September 30, 1910, completed from the Book of Deuteronomy to the end of the Psalms. In the Ijo language, St. Mark's Gospel was translated into both the Patani and Kaiyama dialects, by the Revs. H. Proctor and J. D. Aitken respectively, and the former also compiled a first reading-book and made some progress with the translation of St. Luke's Gospel. Upwards of 1,200 Testaments or Scripture portions were sold at the Onitsha bookshop during the first six

Conference of members of four missionary societies

A CONFERENCE of members of the four missionary societies working in Northern Nigeria—the C.M.S., the Sudan United Mission, the Sudan Interior Mission, and the Mennonite Brethren in Christ—was held at Lokoja in July, 1910. Seventeen missionaries assembled and adopted resolutions on such subjects as missionary comity, the liquor traffic, polygamy, translational difficulties, etc.*

Evangelistic work

For many years past, indeed ever since April, 1900, when a party of missionaries under Bishop Tugwell visited Kano and were refused leave to remain there, that great city, essentially commercial and cosmopolitan, has been one of the chief objectives of the workers in Northern Nigeria. They have not yet been allowed to take up regular work in the city, but in 1910 Dr. W. R. S. Miller, accompanied by Mallam Fate and his wife, two of the Zaria converts, with the Governor's permission went to Kano on a tentative visit of one month's duration. He had a most cordial welcome from the Emir and the British Resident, and among the people generally nothing but friendliness was manifested.† At Zaria itself, which Dr. Miller terms a 'religious and wicked city,' there were no signs of any widespread conviction of the truth of Christianity, but the services were better attended than in 1909, and the people were willing to listen to the Gospel. Four adults received baptism, one of them a man who had first come under Christian influence at Kuta, and seven candidates were confirmed.‡ Something was done to reach the villages in the neighbourhood, and services were held with fair regularity at Kokwatto and Tukurtukur, and also at Aba, a small town six miles from Zaria.

The people of Zaria and Bida are practically all Mohammedans; at Lokoja, Katsa and Kuta, both Moslems and Pagans are found, but in varying proportions. At Bida, which now has a population of 26,000, the difficulty of the work is enhanced by the peculiar conditions of the Nupé political system. Prior to the conquest of the town by the British in 1898 the mass of the people, i.e. all who were not of Fulani descent or who did not hold some office under the king, were completely at the mercy of any member of the ruling class. The Rev. J. L. Macintyre says:—

on all important occasions, and to accompany him when he went out slave-catching, and in return he could appeal to him for protection if any other chief tried to oppress him. As nearly all the people in the villages and farms were slaves, settled down there to till the ground for their masters in Bida, the free men gradually gave up farming, and a large number became merely parasites on the chief they had chosen as their lord. Thus the condition of things up to within twelve or fourteen years ago was this—scattered all over the Nupé Country in small farm villages there were thousands of slaves brought from the surrounding countries and obliged to send nearly all the produce of their work to their owners; a number of small semi-independent townships maintained a precarious existence, and were liable to be raided (as, for instance, Katsa was) continually; and in Bida itself was a population of about 60,000, consisting of the king and the ruling Fulani class, each with a large retinue of slaves, and the free men of the city, all living in more or less slavish dependence on some big man.

The result of this state of affairs was that when the Mission commenced work at Bida men who wished to send their boys to school were afraid to do so unless their overlord himself sent one of his sons, and no one would do any work unless ordered to do so by some man of importance; while not long ago a mallam of independent position with a school of his own was censured by the king because he had dared to lend Mr. Macintyre his horse. When a Nupé is asked to do anything, Mr. Macintyre says, he is afraid of three different sets of people: first his relatives; second the lord whose dependent he is; and third the king. The slavish spirit, happily, is losing ground, and this fact and the gradual weakening of bitter opposition constitute the chief encouragements in the work at the station. Mohammedanism is strong at Lokoja also, where the Mission is of far older standing, but there are a good many Christians and Heathen as well. The converts contributed liberally in response to a suggestion that they should maintain the four stations in the neighbouring Basa Country as well as those in the Kabba district, and raised £62 of the extra £70 required. At Kabba the evangelist met with much opposition, but in the villages around were a number of young men who for some time have confessed Christ openly and boldly. Both at Kpata and Gbebe some fruit appeared, three adults being baptized at the former place.* Katsa and Kuta are really pagan towns, but are a good deal under Mohammedan influence. At the latter, the older of the two stations, the Gwaris are shy and seldom approach the mission-house except for the purpose of work; one or two of the Rev. L. N. Green's house-boys were nearly ready for baptism, and there were a few people who might almost be regarded as inquirers, but on the other hand a young Fulani inquirer fell away. For a time good audiences were attracted to the services at Katsa on Sunday evenings with the aid of a magic-lantern and a gramophone, but when the novelty wore off the numbers diminished, and eventually dropped from 178, the largest number ever present, to five.

A Nupé's fears

* Gl., April, 1911, p. 58.

The congregation at the morning services was small, but a watchman and two lads among those who attended asked for baptism.* Strenuous efforts were made by Mohammedan mallams to win the people of the villages around, twelve of which are regularly visited by either Mr. A. E. Ball or an African evangelist, but Mr. Ball was able to render the people some service in defending them from the tyrannical methods of the Fulani chiefs in obtaining labour for the railway, and afterwards received a grateful welcome from those whom he had assisted. He sums up the attitude of the people by saying that the Moslem Nupés are suspicious and antagonistic, the Hausas friendly but indifferent, the pagan Nupés well-disposed but timid, and the Pagans in the villages ready to listen, especially where there are no Mohammedans.

In the Bauchi Province, where there are said to be no fewer than sixty-five entirely pagan tribes, each speaking a different language or dialect, the Society is at work among the Sura and Angass peoples. The former are reached from Panyam, where the school and services were better attended than in 1909 and there were many indications of a real awakening;† and the latter from Kabwir, which, as briefly stated in last year's Report,‡ was occupied by European missionaries in January, 1910. Owing to the influence exercised by Moses, a Yoruba agent, who had resided at the station for more than a year, the missionaries received a warm welcome, and as soon as the necessary building operations were finished, work was begun in earnest. Every Sunday morning a service was conducted; school was held on week-days at 9 A.M. and 2.30 P.M.; and visits were paid to the people in their homes, Bible pictures proving helpful in gaining their attention. The services were well attended from the first, and soon the sarki, or chief of the town, who had lost his faith in Kum § and refused to have anything to do with heathen rites, urged his people to go to the services on Sundays instead of working in the fields. This aroused opposition, and at the end of July some of the elder men appealed to the Resident of the district, asking him to appoint another sarki who would sacrifice to Kum. They were told to go back and worship as they thought fit. Disappointed, they uttered threats against the sarki, who thought that they might attempt to poison him; his trust in God, however, did not waver, and one of his men, Kwop by name, remarked at the time, 'If they want to kill me, let them kill me, but I will never leave off following Jesus Christ.' These two men and two others asked for special teaching, since they wanted, as they expressed it, to 'know Jesus Christ to the full,' and an inquirers' class was accordingly set on foot for them which was afterwards joined by others to the total number of thirty-two. As the work grew persecution increased. The sarki had put up a portrait of the late King Edward VII. in a prominent place, but a deputation told him he must take it down since it was hindering their Kum. To avoid offence he removed the portrait to his own hut, but that again was objected to. The Rev. J. W. Lloyd tells the sequel as follows :—

Persecution of a Christian chief

> This sort of thing went on till November, when the old Resident of the district came back from furlough. On the 14th he came to the town, and the opposing chiefs asked him to turn out the sarki and give them one who would do 'Kum' (i.e. sacrifice to Kum). The Resident would not do this himself, but held himself bound to allow them to do as they wished, so they at once turned the sarki out. Before a new sarki was appointed numberless deputations waited upon the old one and begged him to do 'Kum' and come back—everyone likes him—but he steadfastly refused, choosing to be turned out of power, house and fields rather than give up Jesus Christ. The people have elected another sarki, and Bewar, the old one, is now busy building himself a new house. He is very happy, and I hope most of his persecution is over now that he is a private citizen. Some fifteen of his young men and all his wives have elected to follow him into private life. Thinking we had something to do with his removal many deputations waited on us trying to get back their sarki. One of these, representing a small suburb of the town, said, so far from wanting the sarki to do 'Kum,' they were ready to give up Kum in a body if he would only come back. This is so far true that they have only been waiting to see what the Resident would do, and if things had gone otherwise they would have come in a body to the services and school, and a large proportion of the town would have done the same. The present position of affairs, unfortunately, is that these waverers are now afraid to come round, as, with the example of the sarki before their eyes, they fear what may happen to them. The Christians are very steadfast, and are, I believe, doing their best to win others.*

Medical work

The medical mission at Zaria is but small, for the people are slow to avail themselves of European treatment, but prejudice appears to be weakening, and some patients are now willing to pay fees. At Kabwir and Panyam patients are fairly numerous, among them having been the son of Bewar, the sarki of Kabwir, and a few of them evince gratitude for the kindness shown to them in time of sickness. Dispensary work is carried on at Katsa, where the people present themselves freely for treatment; 1,625 attendances were recorded in five months notwithstanding the frequent absences of Mr. Ball from the station during that period.†

Literary work

The Rev. J. L. Macintyre, in collaboration with the Rev. A. W. Banfield, prepared a Nupé grammar and vocabulary, towards the expenses of the publication of which the Government made a grant of £10; he also made some progress with the revision of the Prayer-book in Nupé, work in which Mr. A. E. Ball had a share. Dr. W. R. S. Miller revised his Hausa translations of the Epistles to the Galatians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians and Philemon, and further prepared a first draft of a Hausa version of the remainder

EAST AFRICA MISSIONS

THE PAST HISTORY

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, where two years later he was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast for twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from among the freed slaves who had been under his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed and led to work for their living. Stations were opened in the Taita Country in 1883; in the Chaga Country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima-Njaro, in 1885, whence the station was removed in 1892 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886; at Jilore, in the Giriama Country, in 1890; at Kabete and Nairobi, in the Ukamba Province, in 1900 and 1906 respectively; and at Weithaga (1904), Kahuhia (1906), Kabare and in the Embu Country (1910), in the Kenia Province.

When in 1876 a mission party was sent up country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route adopted was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Ussagara, Ugogo and Unyamwezi; and intermediate stations between the east coast and the southern shore of the Victoria Lake were established, in what is now German territory, at Mpapua and Mamboya, both in the Ussagara hills, in 1876 and 1880. The Ussagara-Ugogo Mission was extended by the occupation of Berega and Mvumi in 1900; and Kongwa in 1904.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with 'Eastern Equatorial Africa' as the title of the See, and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop in that year. He was murdered in Busoga in October, 1885, by the orders of Mwanga, king of Uganda. Bishop Hannington's successor, the Rev. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. missionary in North India, was consecrated in 1886, but his episcopal career also was of brief duration, for he died from fever in March, 1888. He was succeeded by the Right Rev. A. R. Tucker, who was consecrated in 1890. In 1897 the diocese was divided into two, the portion of the original diocese which fell within the Uganda Protectorate as then constituted forming the diocese of Uganda, and the remainder becoming the diocese of Mombasa. Bishop Tucker elected to retain the interior division, viz., the diocese of Uganda, under his own episcopal supervision, and in 1899 the Rev. W. G. Peel, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in South and Western India, was consecrated Bishop of Mombasa.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Society's work in East Africa has developed considerably since the formation of the diocese of Mombasa, and is now carried on in two distinct sections under the Bishop of Mombasa by seventeen European clergymen, three doctors, five other laymen, nineteen missionaries' wives (one of whom is a doctor), and nineteen women missionaries. With these are associated three African clergymen and 108 African Christian lay agents.

I. (a) In British East Africa the stations by the coast—Mombasa, Frere Town and Rabai, and in lesser degree Jilore—are of long standing. Here are the chief educational institutions of the Mission, viz., a divinity school and a boys' hostel at Frere Town, and a normal school and the Buxton High School for boys at Mombasa. Medical work is carried on at a hospital at Mzizima, on the island of Mombasa, and at several dispensaries. Much care and thought are expended on the pastoral care of the converts, many of whom are liberated slaves.

(b) Proceeding inland about a hundred miles there are stations at Sagalla and elsewhere in the Taita Country. Other stations have been opened of late years farther from the coast at Nairobi, the capital of British East Africa, and elsewhere in the Ukamba Province, and at Weithaga, Kahuhia and other places around Mount Kenia. At all these the work is mainly evangelistic. There are medical missions at Kahuhia and in the Embu Country.

II. In the German East Africa Mission elementary schools are prominent at Berega, Kongwa, Mvumi, Bugiri and their out-stations. Medical work has long been maintained at Mamboya.

Reinforcement

THE Mission has been reinforced by Miss Maria Anne Ackerman, who worked in East Africa under the Society from 1890–1905, and has re-offered her services: she has been assigned to German East Africa. The resignations of Mr. J. Burness and Misses M. C. Brewer and A. Higginbotham have been accepted by the Committee.

The need for recruits

In response to inquiries as to the recruits needed in British East Africa the Missionary Conference of the Mission point to the retirement of the missionaries just mentioned whose places require to be filled; to the Kenia district, where no one is available for a station which has been authorized by the Parent Committee; and to the Giriama Country, for which a missionary was set apart some time ago, but whither, owing to the exigencies of the work at other stations, he has not yet been able to proceed.

A strong plea for reinforcements is sent by the workers in German East Africa, who say that for the proper maintenance of existing work one more man is needed at each of the five principal stations in the Mission. They affirm that 'there is not one district which is being worked even moderately well,' and that there is no one learning the language in readiness to take the place of the senior missionaries when they drop out. As a definite example of what the present shortage of ordained men means they adduce the case of the Kongwa district, where there are about 100 communicants who only have opportunities of partaking of the Holy Communion once or twice in the year when a clergyman from one of the other districts may happen to be at the station. Reinforcements are called for also to enable some populous places to be occupied, notably Handali, about ten miles from Mvumi and twelve from Bugiri, where there is a large population in a comparatively small area, and where the friendly chief has invited missionaries.

I. BRITISH EAST AFRICA MISSION

The tribes of British East Africa

THERE are many different tribes in British East Africa, among some of which little if any missionary work is carried on; and they differ considerably in their customs and beliefs. Of the Wadigo, who hardly ever see a Christian worker excepting on the rare occasions when the medical staff at Mzizima make a tour among them, Bishop Peel says that their appearance suggests that they were 'born tired,' their inertness doubtless being partly due to tembo-drinking, to which they are much addicted. Spiritually they seem to be 'intensely dormant,' but nevertheless there are great possibilities in them, and one of the most spiritually-minded of the African teachers connected with the C.M.S. is a Mdigo. The Wagiriama, also, are terribly enslaved to tembo-drinking and they are addicted to witchcraft; but they are proud and independent, industrious and hard-working, and are well worth winning.* Among the Wadabida, who are found farther in the interior, possession by evil spirits is common, and people are seen contorting their bodies, rolling their eyes, and in some cases foaming at the mouth, in their efforts to throw off the evil spirit which, they say, has taken possession of them.† Among these and other tribes Mohammedanism, alas! is on the increase. A number of the Wadigo have come under the influence of Islam, and news is received from Kabare, in the Kenia Province, that even there some Mohammedan Swahilis have established a village and opened a mosque within a comparatively short distance of the mission-station. The menace is recognized by Sir Percy Girouard, the Governor of British East Africa, who, speaking at a missionary meeting on board the ss. Guelph, of the Castle Line, on its first voyage from Durban to Southampton, via the Red Sea, in December, 1910, said that the missionary and the Government must combine to combat the advance of Mohammedanism.‡

Mohammedanism on the increase

Archdeacon H. K. Binns continued his work of translating the Old Testament and the Pilgrim's Progress into Mombasa Swahili. The Rev. J. E. Hamshere made some progress with a short Commentary on St. Mark's Gospel; revised and expanded a book of notes on Doctrine; and also edited a magazine which has a monthly circulation of about 200; all this work was in Swahili. The Rev. J. A. Wray translated St. Matthew's and St. Luke's Gospels, parts of the Prayer-book, a form of service for admission of catechumens and inquirers, and a hymn-book into Sagalla, and revised translations of the other two Gospels, a First Catechism and a first reading-book in that language. Mrs. T. W. W. Crawford produced a Catechism in Kikuyu.

1. THE COAST DISTRICTS

Educational work

There were four students in residence at the Divinity School at Frere Town, reading for the grade of junior catechist. The number of pupils at the Buxton High School, Mombasa, has risen in the last five years from fifty to 140, and whereas at the beginning of that period Christian teaching was often greeted with contempt, it now is received 'with much longing and a good deal of secret belief.' A couple of African Mohammedan lads are said to be at heart real believers in Christianity, while others are convinced that Mohammedanism is false; and much the same holds true of the Indians in the school, some of whom occasionally challenge their religious teachers to prove the truth of their belief.

Medical work

The mission-hospital at Mzizima attracted an increasing number of in-patients, some of them hailing from Digo and Duruma, coast districts to the south, where the Society has had no work since the station at Shimba was closed. One of the junior medical students and also a former patient were baptized in November, and two inmates of the hospital were reading for baptism at the close of the year.* Among those who received treatment at the dispensary at Rabai were a number of Indian women, but it was difficult to teach them much about the Saviour owing to their limited acquaintance with Swahili and the missionary's ignorance of their own language.

Evangelistic work

Work at Mombasa, where the native population has about doubled in the last twenty years, is now for the most part evangelistic, for the older Christians have scattered in search of work and but few Christian households remain in the town, and is carried on chiefly among young men. The youths are keen to read and most persevering over their lessons, and many appear to be really desirous of following Christ. The congregation steadily increased, but consisted chiefly of men, for the women are almost unreached now that there is no woman missionary at the station. At the open-air meetings good audiences were obtained, but visible results of this branch of work were small.† In the villages around Kaloleni, people who were once indifferent if not actually hostile to the Gospel, listened intelligently and attentively to it. Throughout that district there are abundant openings—and an itineration which was made in the late summer in Western, Central and Northern Giriama showed that the people are ready to be taught.‡ Seventeen lads were admitted to the catechumenate at Mombasa, and there were several girl inquirers at Kaloleni. Among those baptized during the year were some famine orphans at Frere Town, and a middle-aged woman at Rabai who for two years and a half had persevered in trying to learn to read, an accomplishment which is required of candidates for baptism. Her efforts were in vain, but her life showed so clearly the 'fruit of the Spirit,' that she was admitted into the visible Church notwithstanding her illiteracy.

2. THE INTERIOR

Evangelistic work

Occupation of Kabare

THE year 1910 witnessed advance in the work in the interior, two new stations being occupied in the Kenia Province. The first of these is Kabare, where the Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Crawford took up their residence in July. They received a warm and enthusiastic welcome from the chiefs and people, who belong to the Ndia tribe, and very soon were able to open a school with thirty pupils. After a time the attendance began to decrease, and it was found that some men and boys belonging to the district who had been working for Mohammedans and others at Nairobi, had been circulating reports to the effect that the schoolboys if they continued to read would never be allowed to eat cold food or to marry, would be given the nickname of 'Mwarimu' (teacher), and eventually would suffer much harm. The school-work had a further set-back through several of the lads being dragged to circumcision feasts by their parents and others. The services which were held on Sundays attracted crowds too large for the building, and one sub-chief sent to the mission-station almost every week to inquire which day would be Sunday, so that he might notify his people and get them to be present. The people also showed much kindness in ceasing to hold their circumcision feasts on Sundays. Mr. Crawford writes:—

Hostile reports about a mission-school

Heathen cease to hold feasts on Sundays

> These feasts are a greater attraction to a Mukikuyu than any other events in the year. Men, women and little children will go many miles to attend one. A couple of months ago one was held at a place quite near to our station on a Sunday, in consequence of which our work for the day was much interrupted. In the service that followed I felt led to explain to the people that, if such feasts must be held, they ought to choose some other day rather than the Lord's Day on which to hold them. Thereupon, nearly all present expressed much regret at having arranged the feast for that day, and explained that all the arrangements for it had been made some days previously, and that they had not realized that it would be a Sunday. They promised that in future no such feasts would be again held on Sundays, and they have so far kept their word. Several other feasts which had been arranged for Sundays were subsequently postponed to other days in deference to our wishes.

A new station in the Embu Country

The other new station is in the Embu Country, on the north-east slopes of Mount Kenia, about forty miles from Kahuhia and 100 from Nairobi. The people, who, like those at Kabare, belong to the Ndia tribe, and of whom there are about 200,000 in the district, are wild and barbarous, and in former days they so strenuously resisted all the efforts of the Government to get into touch with them that a punitive expedition had to be sent, but Dr. and Mrs. T. W. W. Crawford were warmly greeted by them when they arrived in September. Largely owing to the former's medical skill, the work began in a most promising manner. He wrote at the end of November as follows:—

A local chief saved from death

> The local chief has shown a most friendly attitude towards our work and seems to realize that we have come to help his people. This attitude has been strengthened by the fact that after our arrival he was stricken down with a virulent form of fever. We did our utmost to help him, but in spite of it he did not seem to gain ground, and upon investigation we found that he was not taking our medicines regularly, but that the witch-doctors were gaining an influence over him in his weakness. The result of their interference was that finally the chief had a relapse and was on the point of death. Then, following the cruel custom of the tribe, he was carried out of his village to die in the thickets, lest his ghost should for ever haunt the village after his decease. The news reached us just in time for us to save him. He was carried on the hospital stretcher to a mission-hospital hut and restoratives administered.

Day by day he has gradually regained strength until now he has been completely restored to his people and work again. This incident, coming as it has at the beginning of our work here, has done much to gain the hearts of the people, so that our medical work has gone ahead by leaps and bounds, and already we are getting nearly 150 out-patients a day, some of whom come many miles to obtain treatment at our hands. The possibilities of the work, humanly speaking, are enormous.

The paramount chief of the Ndia tribe, Kuto, who rules over quite 30,000 people, according to the Government records, has also been a patient here, and was brought just in time to give us an opportunity of helping him. He had passed through a very serious illness before reaching our hospital, and was very weak and emaciated, so that the case would possibly have resulted fatally if it had not been taken in hand promptly. The treatment was blessed to his complete recovery, and now Kuto is sending many patients to us who would not otherwise come, as they have to travel a day's journey to reach us. We have at the time of writing some forty-two in-patients.

A school was opened which within a few days was attended by some fifty pupils, while a building, capable of seating 550 people, which was erected of wattle and daub to serve as a chapel, was nearly filled on Sunday mornings.* At Kahuhia, one of the older stations in the Kenia district, progress was slow, but there were some signs that the Gospel leaven was working. At Weithaga (as the station hitherto named Keradhimo is now called) also, notwithstanding that the majority of the people are indifferent, the old superstitions are giving way, parents take better care of their children, children show more love for their parents, the sick are not neglected to quite the same extent as formerly, the villagers crowd to the open-air meetings held at the markets, attendance at the women's Bible-class has increased from seven to twenty, and about eight youths and twelve women are under instruction for baptism.

Old superstitions giving way

In the Ukamba Province there were signs of an awakening at Kabete, where in the last four years a great change has taken place: instead of a few Christians from other stations living unworthily of their vocation, there are from fifty to sixty persons, either Christians or desirous of embracing Christianity, and some twenty communicants, while those who attend the evangelistic services are almost too numerous for the church. The transforming power of the Gospel, too, is shown in many lives. The Rev. H. Leakey gives an instance :—

Transformed lives

A young wife, much to her sorrow, had no child, and was in consequence much despised. Her husband, a chief of some importance, but an utter Heathen, spoke about returning her to her parents—a disgrace always for the young wife so treated. But this one having learnt, while under instruction, of the One to Whom she might carry all her troubles, like Hannah of old, 'in bitterness of soul . . . prayed unto the Lord,' and her faith was rewarded. The child, however, was not destined to live long, and died after some twenty-four hours. But during its short illness her faith never wavered, and she steadfastly refused the entreaties of her neighbours to use charms or perform any heathen rites for the recovery of the child. When it was taken, her own and her dear old mother's (also a catechumen) sentiments might well be translated into English by, 'The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.' The young woman herself, when one went to comfort her, said, 'Has not God heard my prayer once? He will hear it again.' Despite the jibes and execrations of the other women of the village, she insisted upon the little one being buried, which was reverently done by the old grandmother, with some of our Christian young men to help her. This may sound little to the English reader, but when we remember that other young women believe that if they bury their child instead of throwing it out as an offering for the evil spirits supposed to lurk in the bodies of the loathsome hyenas they will never have another child, something of the strength of this woman's faith will be realized.

At Nairobi likewise, which now contains a population of 25,000, four per cent. of whom are Europeans and twelve per cent. Indians, services were well attended, about 100 persons usually assembled for the weekly prayer-meeting, and the books contained more than that number of names of catechumens and inquirers.

Evangelistic work in the villages of the Taita Country was on the whole promising, albeit in some the people were hard to move and even went so far as to hide when they saw the missionary approaching. An impression has been made on many who have not yet become inquirers, and it is said that in the Sagalla district the 'habit of prayer is becoming universal, and even the Heathen mingle prayer to God with their heathen customs.' Fifteen persons were baptized in 1910 at the station just mentioned; at Mbale a little girl twelve years of age steadfastly refused to be initiated into a 'horrible heathen custom,' the first girl to so refuse, and boldly testified in the presence of the people of her village that she loved the Lord Jesus, and that she chose God and rejected the things of Satan; and at Wusi many men, women and lads enrolled themselves as 'readers,' and in one village in the district a couple of men publicly renounced and gave up their idols.*

The habit of prayer becoming universal

Pastoral work

A bright account on the whole is given of the pastoral as well as the evangelistic work in the interior. At Weithaga, as at Kabete, the lives of some of the people afforded evidence of a real change of heart, although the best of the Christians are still only as children and unable to stand alone. Prayer-meetings are most helpful at Wusi, and many of the men pray most touchingly for themselves and their companions; they often use quaint language, as when one man prayed, 'We drive Satan away, but he still follows behind like a dog; do Thou send down Thy big kiboko (a whip made of rhinoceros hide) and drive him away.' The converts at Mbale sent the C.M.S. £2 to aid in clearing off the deficit;† and at Sagalla there was a deepening of the spiritual life, a growing sense of responsibility concerning the souls of others, and in certain cases a marked steadfastness and tenderness of conscience.

Medical work

Reference has already been made* to the part played by the medical work in opening the new station in the Embu Country. More than 300 in-patients were received at Kahuhia, and dispensary work is carried on at several other stations, and is instrumental in removing a good deal of prejudice and in attracting patients from a distance who in all probability would not otherwise be brought within hearing of the Gospel. Some suspicion, however, still survives, and there are not a few Heathen who would rather die than take the European's medicine.†

II. GERMAN EAST AFRICA MISSION

Moslem efforts to win the Heathen

THE construction of the railway in German East Africa is proceeding apace, but while facilitating the movements of the missionaries, it brings with it some disadvantages, since 'all along the line,' Miss E. Forsythe writes, 'as far as it has reached, are little Mohammedan mosques, quite insignificant huts, but still sufficient for the scattering broadcast of the seeds of false doctrine.' The Rev. T. B. R. Westgate, too, speaks of the strenuous efforts made by the Moslems to win the Heathen, and Mrs. Pickthall enumerates one or two cases in which people who once professed Christianity either have embraced Islam or show a tendency to do so.

Educational work

A great impetus was given to education in 1910 by the German Government authorities commanding all chiefs and their heirs to place themselves under instruction and learn at least to read and write. Mr. Westgate says :—

Education made compulsory

> The order left it optional as to whether the instruction should be received at the Government school at the Fort or at the nearest mission-school, and it is only a merited testimony to the popularity of our Mission to find that almost all in the vicinity of Bugiri and Mvumi have made application to us. Although this movement is by no means voluntary on the part of the Wagogo, it would be wrong to attempt to belittle the possibilities which it has placed before us. In the Mvumi district we asked the chiefs and their heirs to attend the central school at the Mvumi station, and nearly thirty have responded. In Bugiri we adopted a somewhat different course as an experiment. I called a conference of the chiefs and gave them the choice of coming to our central school here, or of paying a Christian teacher at the rate of Rs 6 per month to go and teach them and their people in their own districts. Seven chiefs adopted the latter course, and young Christian men from this station have been going forth regularly to the different centres, and, according to their registers, have been teaching on an average fifty pupils daily in each place. This latter method appeals to me as having certain advantages, for in addition to reaching a larger number evangelistically as well as educationally, it provides a stimulus to our young Christian men to go forth and work for the Master.

Evangelistic work

In the early part of the year under review evangelistic work was hindered by the prevalence of famine, which caused many of the natives to leave their homes in search of food. On this account the audiences at the open-air meetings in the villages around Mamboya at times consisted of only half a dozen people. At some places where Mohammedanism has gained a footing the people hid themselves when they saw the Christian workers approaching; but in other villages Moslems might be seen now and again listening to the Gospel, while in one case a Hindu, after attending a service, wrote asking for a copy of the New Testament in his own language. Several Arabs, also, accepted Arabic Bibles, and one, not being proficient in that language, purchased the Bible and Prayer-book in Swahili so that he might judge for himself whether Islam or Christianity were true. Among the older Wagogo to the west of the Mission there were few prospects during the year of any ingatherings: 'they listen to everything in connexion with the Gospel, criticize everything, analyze everything and believe nothing,' was Mr. Westgate's verdict in November. Shortly afterwards a great change took place. Nearly 100 persons came forward and were accepted and enrolled as inquirers, one of them being a chief, Lenjima by name, who though forty years of age has manifested great perseverance in learning to read and write. In other directions as well the outlook was cheering. Large congregations gathered together at Mvumi, especially after the sudden death at Camwali, an out-station, of a rain-maker who had long deceived the people, and who was struck by lightning and died on the spot.* Again, one day while a missionary in the Berega district was pointing out that Heathenism was bound to give way to either Christianity or Islam, his audience declared three times with one accord, 'It shall be Christianity. Take our children and teach them; but away with Mohammedanism, we will have nothing to do with it.' Two women were admitted as inquirers at Mamboya; while at Kongwa five adults were baptized, one young man was formally enrolled as a catechumen, and a young orphan girl, when pressed by heathen relatives to conform to certain heathen customs, steadfastly refused.

Medical work

A small temporary hospital, with accommodation for twelve in-patients, was erected at Mamboya, and was usually full. One patient and his wife joined a class for further instruction, as did another woman, the wife of a Mohammedan who declared his intention of renouncing Islam but failed to summon up sufficient courage to do so.

Pastoral work

bility was consequently thrown on the African workers. On the whole they acquitted themselves admirably; those at Kissokwe and Mvumi are specially mentioned for their faithfulness, while at Berega the teacher, Yusuf by name, refused to allow his little son to accept a chieftainship to which he had the right of succession, if entering upon it should involve participation in any rite or ceremony incompatible with the Christian profession.* On the other hand, there were some sad cases of grievous sin, and at Itumba, where, as at Nyangala, a European was stationed for some years in the past, the people are said to have become very cold and indifferent.

Literary work

Mr. E. W. Doulton and Mr. Westgate were engaged in the revision of the New Testament in Chigogo, which they completed as far as the end of the Acts of the Apostles.

UGANDA MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The original impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf, Rebmann and Erhardt. They communicated to Europe the first report of the Lake system of the interior, which led to the journeys of Burton, Speke and Grant, and, incidentally, to those of Stanley. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the last named of the readiness of Mtesa, king of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered in order that a missionary expedition might be sent to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party accordingly proceeded to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill were killed, and Dr. J. Smith also died before reaching the country. The Mission, however, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877, and that notwithstanding tremendous difficulties. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa, who died in 1884, was succeeded by Mwanga, and the new king was led to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington, while in Busoga, en route for Uganda from the coast, to be murdered on October 31, 1885. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many African Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country, and a period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda and regained his throne through the help of his Christian subjects, and the missionaries returned with him. Alexander Mackay, however, one of the pioneer missionaries, died in 1890 while at the south end of the Lake. In the same year Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared the country a British Protectorate. In the summer of 1897 Mwanga fled from the capital, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. In September of the same year a serious mutiny of the Sudanese troops broke out; several European officers were seized and murdered; and one of the missionaries, Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the Government forces as interpreter, lost his life. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891; Toro was occupied in 1896; Bunyoro in 1899; Kavirondo in 1900; Ankole in 1901; the Teso Country in 1908; and the Nandi Country in 1910.

In 1897 the diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate, according to the boundaries then obtaining (which have since been altered), being formed into the diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder to form the diocese of Mombasa.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

I. All the counties in the kingdom of Buganda, which is co-terminous with the Province of that name, have been occupied by British missionaries or Baganda clergy.

There are training classes for men and women teachers and a normal class at Mengo, the native capital, and training classes at several other stations. The schools include the King's School, an intermediate boys' school, at Budo, and a high school at Mengo, both of them for the sons of chiefs and for others who can pay the fees; a girls' boarding-school at Gayaza; and a considerable number of elementary schools. At Mengo there is also a hospital, to which several dispensaries are affiliated.

II. In the Western Province, which comprises the kingdoms of Ankole, Toro and Bunyoro, the training of teachers is prosecuted at Kabarole and Hoima, but other educational work is merely elementary. There is a hospital at Kabarole.

III. In Busoga work is of long standing; but in Bukedi, which, like Busoga, is in the Eastern Province, and in Kavirondo and Nandi, which belong to the diocese of Uganda although they are now in the East Africa Protectorate, the work is still in its infancy. At several stations there are hostels for the sons of chiefs.

The pastoral care of the 74,421 Christians connected with the Society in the Mission is shared by European missionaries and Baganda and Batoro clergymen. All the African clergymen and lay teachers, who now number thirty-eight and 2,364 respectively, have always been entirely supported by the contributions of the people, but recently a number of evangelists have been sent to the Bukedi Country, who are supported from money voted to the diocese by the Committee entrusted with the distribution of the unallotted portion of the Pan-Anglican Thankoffering.

Throughout the Mission evangelistic work is largely in the hands of African teachers superintended by European missionaries.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Tucker, of thirty-eight European clergymen, four doctors, eight other laymen, thirty-four missionaries' wives, and twenty-eight other women missionaries. Ten of the ladies are trained nurses.

A martyrs' memorial

THE year 1910 was marked by several important events which will long be remembered in Uganda. In July, during the second Synod of the Church, Bishop Tucker unveiled a silver-granite Celtic cross, sent out by Bishop Wilkinson, late of North and Central Europe, and erected as a 'Martyrs' Memorial' on the spot where the three Baganda Christians, the first to suffer death for their faith, were burnt in January, 1885. The two scenes stand in strong contrast. 'The little band of Christians in the old days; the clouds and darkness which were hanging over the future; the young lads valiant for the truth; the death agony; the apparent loss of all. And then, twenty-five years later, gathered around that memorial cross the representatives of 70,000 Christians, members of a fully-constituted Church, self-governing, self-supporting and self-extending.' A few weeks afterwards, Bishop Tucker interred with Christian rites the remains of the king who ordered the martyrdom of those lads and of many besides, as well as the murder of Bishop Hannington. Mwanga died in 1903 in the Seychelles, whither he had been deported as a political prisoner in 1901; but before his death he gave evidence of true repentance and was baptized. His remains having been transported by sea and land from the Indian Ocean to Uganda, Bishop Tucker with Henry Wright Duta and two other clergymen conducted services, first in the cathedral and then at the tomb—the same in which the body of Mtesa was interred. On the following day the young king Daudi was installed as his father's successor with much interesting ceremonial, and a week later still he was confirmed, together with several chiefs' sons from the countries surrounding Uganda. The king, by an arrangement with his tutor, is still receiving religious instruction twice a week from the Rev. E. S. Daniell.*

Mwanga's burial

Destruction of the cathedral by fire

But a very few weeks elapsed before a great disaster befell the Uganda Church in the destruction of the cathedral by fire on the twenty-third of September. The building was struck by lightning, and the flames quickly gained possession. The font, communion table, memorial brasses and vestry furniture were saved, as was the neighbouring women's school, which also was ignited; but the cathedral itself was burnt out, the roof being completely demolished in the short space of half an hour. The disaster evoked much sympathy with the Baganda, and his Majesty King George V. sent the following message to the Kabaka (king): 'His Majesty the King heartily sympathizes with your Highness and the people of Uganda, through whose personal effort and self-sacrifice the cathedral was built, and who have worshipped within its walls. His Majesty the King, however, trusts that they will not be discouraged by the disaster which has thus befallen them, but boldly face the future and renew their previous endeavours, which were crowned with such success, and thus again raise up a temple worthy of the faith which they hold.' Steps were at once taken with a view to rebuilding. A committee consisting of Baganda and English was appointed; the people of the country undertook to raise £10,000 for the purpose, the chiefs promising to give to the extent of forty per cent. of their rent-roll, and some of the poorer people—men, women and children—contributing in proportion, and Bishop Tucker appealed at home for a further sum of £10,000 to meet the estimated cost of £20,000, and by the end of March had received £8,000.*

King George's sympathy

While the cathedral was of value both for the uses to which it was put (as, for example, in Passion Week, 1910, when it was the scene of a well-attended series of special services, and on Easter Day when there were 1,125 communicants at the mid-day service) and also as a witness that Christianity is firmly planted in the country, of far greater importance is the fact itself to which it witnessed. Testimony to this was borne by Mr. Roosevelt, the ex-President of the United States, in an article which appeared in the Daily Telegraph of July 22, 1910. He there wrote:—

> Those who complain of or rail at missionary work in Africa, and who confine themselves to pointing out the undoubtedly too numerous errors of the missionaries and shortcomings of their flocks, would do well to consider that even if the light which has been let in is but feeble and grey it has at least dispelled a worse than Stygian darkness. As soon as native African religions—practically none of which have hitherto evolved any substantial ethical basis—develop beyond the most primitive stage, they tend, notably in Middle and Western Africa, to grow into malign creeds of unspeakable cruelty and immorality, with a bestial and revolting ritual and ceremonial. Even a poorly taught and imperfectly understood Christianity, with its underlying foundation of justice and mercy, represents an immeasurable advance on such a creed.
> Where, as in Uganda, the people are intelligent and the missionaries unite disinterestedness and zeal with common sense, the result is astounding. The majority of the people of Uganda are now Christian, Protestant or [Roman]

Catholic; and many thousands among them are sincerely Christian and show their Christianity in practical fashion by putting conduct above ceremonial and dogma.

The Church of England Mission has been at work for a quarter of a century. What has been accomplished by Bishop Tucker and those associated with him makes one of the most interesting chapters in all recent missionary history.

Although it is hardly correct to say that 'the majority of the people of Uganda are now Christian,' seeing that of the 650,000 Baganda and 2,870,000 others in the Protectorate not more than 300,000 are connected with the Protestant or Roman Catholic Missions, yet it is undoubted that great success has attended the labours of the missionaries in the country. In the kingdom of Buganda* the open practice of lubare worship and the grosser forms of cruelty for which the Baganda were so noted that to the Basoga in olden days a Muganda was the very embodiment of cruelty and revenge,† are well-nigh extinct. In some of the neighbouring countries, however, the old superstitions still retain much of their power. At the dispensary at Hoima, in Bunyoro, requests are often made for medicine for some one who has been 'bewitched' or has an 'evil spirit walking about inside,' and charms are in common use to cure sickness; and at Iganga, in Busoga, the matron of the girls' home was speared by a man because he believed that she had bewitched and caused the death of the girl to whom he had been engaged. A good deal of the old leaven naturally survives even among the Christians. Thus the Rev. H. T. C. Weatherhead, writing of the boys, communicants be it remembered, belonging to the King's School at Budo, says that they laugh 'at stories or pictures of cruelty, or at actual cases of it, or of deformity in person. They will laugh at the sight or the picture of a mutilated person. Our boys laughed at the enumeration by Mackay of the horrible tortures in the old days, when I was translating some of his "Life" to them. One has to learn that the grotesque, however terrible, is humorous in Africa.' Again there is said to be little respect for truth among the Baganda, and although no one would accuse them of being a treacherous people, yet it is significant that they have no word exactly meaning to promise, so that in translations the missionaries have to make use of the causative of the verb to hope. On the other hand, while the morals of the people are bad, there is some sense of moral propriety to which to appeal and in their respect for authority and property and their appreciation of justice they display traits of character which arouse admiration.‡ into Lunyoro, completing it in November;* in Teso the Rev. A. L. Kitching completed the translation of St. Mark's Gospel and began that of St. Luke's, and the First Catechism, parts of the Prayer-book, etc., also were translated; Archdeacon J. J. J. S. Herbert rendered into Nandi a Primer (containing a form of service for use at out-stations, several hymns, etc.) and a Catechism, and made a tentative translation of the opening chapters of St. Mark's Gospel.

Deaths of Mr. W. G. S. Innes

The Uganda Mission has sustained a heavy loss by the death, from blackwater fever, of Mr. W. G. S. Innes, which occurred at Kalaki on September 2, 1910. He joined the C.M.S. in 1899, having already seen six years' service in the German Cameroons in connexion with the North German Missionary Society. He worked in many of the provinces of Uganda as well as in Busoga, and on his return from furlough at the end of 1909 he was deputed to open a new station at Kalaki, near Bululu, in Busoga.‡

and Miss A. H. Robinson

A former worker in the Mission, Miss A. H. Robinson, died in Dublin on February 9, 1911. She laboured in Uganda from 1900 to 1907, and after her enforced retirement on grounds of health became honorary secretary to the Women's Department of the Hibernian C.M.S.§

Reinforcements

The Mission has been reinforced by Miss Jane Elizabeth Chadwick, who originally joined it in 1895, retired in 1908, and now has rejoined; and by the following recruits: The Rev. William Stewart Ross Russell, of Islington College, L.Th., Durham; Mr. Frank Harold White, of the Blackheath Preparatory Institution, who has been accepted on special agreement as an industrial agent; and Miss Henrietta Frances Wright, trained at The Willows, a sister of the Rev. F. H. Wright of this Mission. The name of the Rev. Tefiro Bamutenda, who has been admitted to deacons' orders by Bishop Tucker, has been added to the list of native clergy connected with the C.M.S. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Mr. M. Gerber.

Needs of the Mission

With a staff of seventy-eight European missionaries, thirty-eight of whom are clergymen, together with thirty-eight ordained and 2,364 lay African workers, the Uganda Mission at first sight appears to be thoroughly well manned. That such is hardly the case appears from a list of the offices which the Rev. E. Millar had to fill during the early part of the year. They included those of acting-secretary of the Mission, acting-accountant, acting-agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, principal of the theological hall, Bishop's chaplain, superintendent of the Native Church and C.M.S. estates, secretary of the translation committee, vice-president of the Diocesan Council, etc. Some of the district missionaries, too, had more duties laid upon them than they could properly discharge. One was responsible for the supervision of the work in Budu and Koki, a district containing between ninety and 100 churches, which it takes from a week to ten days to traverse;* and another, with three ordained Baganda colleagues, had as his parish an area of over 4,000 square miles, with a population of 110,000, one-tenth of whom are baptized Christians. These instances could easily be multiplied, especially with reference to Bukedi and Busoga, where there are two important stations without any missionary to take charge of the work. Accordingly, the Missionary Committee in Uganda ask for a second man for Bulemezi to train teachers and itinerate in the large district, and for two others to take up the work at Bululu in Bukedi, which was begun by the late Mr. Innes. In addition to the above, if advance is to be made, two men are required for Kisii in Kavirondo, one for Nimule on the Nile, to superintend the native teachers who have lately been sent there, one for Mboga in the Congo State, and others for the Bukedi Country, which is open as far as the Abyssinian border, and presents opportunities which may never recur.†

Training Institutions

THE class at the Theological Hall at Mengo for candidates for ordination contained nine men at the beginning of 1910; two of them were ordained, and six others sat for their examination in the autumn. The class for candidates for the Bishop's licence as lay readers was suspended during the early part of the year, owing to the absence of the Rev. G. H. Casson on furlough; but classes for men studying for the Diocesan Council's second and first certificates were duly carried on by the Revs. E. Millar and Bartolomayo Musoke respectively. The Normal School at Mengo had thirty-six students, nine of them having returned after two years' work in a school for a further year's training for the second certificate, and the remainder being in the first year of the junior course. The training of pupil teachers is carried on at several country centres, as at Mukono (where twenty men received instruction in the theory and practice of teaching), Kikoma and elsewhere; at Ndeje also a beginning was made with training girls to act in that capacity. The number of boys in the King's School at Budo, which had increased in 1909, further rose from thirty-seven to fifty-three, all of them baptized and confirmed Christians. One lad left at the end of June to take up work as a master in a school for chiefs' sons which was opened in Ankole, and ten others went out at the end of the year, one to a post under the Public Works Department, and two others to act as agriculturists under the Government. In the spring of 1910 nearly all the boys made a trip to Nairobi, paying a visit en route to the Scotch Mission in Kikuyu and to the school for chiefs' sons at Maseno. A new boys' school was set on foot at Mukono for lads over twelve years of age, in which on payment of a fee of 6*s*. 8*d*. a year for tuition they may learn English and be prepared for the entrance examination at the King's School;* and a somewhat similar school for the sons of chiefs was opened at Mityana, which soon attracted some fifty pupils. A third and much-needed dormitory was opened at the Girls' Boarding-school at Gayaza, which had seventy-five pupils. Two of the nine unbaptized girls in the school were admitted into the visible Church during the year, both of them Basoga, and one the daughter of Luba, Bishop Hannington's murderer. Many difficulties have to be contended with by the missionaries in charge, the greatest perhaps being the ignorance of the mothers of the children and the lack of discipline among the girls, who are allowed while at home to do very much as they please. Miss A. L. Allen writes:—

Girls' Boarding-school

> Want of obedience and truth and all the evils which come from this are among our great trials. There are very few girls who have any idea of obedience, and still fewer who can be called truthful. Even among the matrons truthfulness is not a strong point, and many faults of the girls which should be brought to light are hidden by them. They are often afraid of bringing themselves into bad repute with the mothers of the children if they expose the naughtiness of the child.

The work in the elementary schools, important though it is, calls for little detailed description. Several of the children at Ndeje asked for baptism, and little missionary bands were formed among them, which, chiefly by trading with eggs, raised about £5 for the purpose of paying teachers engaged in work among the young. Various native arts and crafts were taught in the Mengo boys' day-school, and at several schools in the Mukono district. Many of the children were keen on their lessons, so much so that among the girls at Mengo making them miss a lesson or part of one was found to be more effective as a punishment than keeping them in to do more lessons!

Shortly after the destruction of the cathedral by fire the isolation block of the Mengo hospital, which had been opened by Mr. Roosevelt in the previous December,† had half its roof carried off by a hurricane. Besides the natives of the country, foreigners of many nationalities were received as in-patients—English, Dutch, Greek, German, French and Italian, besides Syrians, Arabs, Goanese and Indians. The work among the last named almost quadrupled during the year, partly owing to the fact that Dr. A. R. Cook endeavoured to learn Gujerati, the language spoken by the majority of them. Little spiritual work could be accomplished among these, although New Testaments in their own tongue were sold to them; but it was clear that their confidence was being won by the way in which they would send their wives to be attended to by male doctors. Several of the Europeans, it is said, stood in quite as much need of spiritual help as the Heathen. One Irishman declared that no one had spoken to him about his eternal welfare for seventeen years; and an Italian-speaking Austrian had a nearly similar experience, though in his case letters from his mother had in some measure remedied the lack referred to. Some of the Europeans professed while in the hospital to accept Christ as their Saviour, and a young French agnostic became a Protestant Christian. There were cases of conversion, too, among the Heathen and Mohammedans. Dr. A. R. Cook tells the following story :—

Patients of many nationalities.

A Mohammedan came up from Koki full of pride because he is the only man in Uganda who has been to Mecca. When admitted to the ward he said he had come this long way to have his disease cured, having heard that the doctors were good and clever men, and that they could cure all diseases! When asked if he knew of Christ, he said, 'No, and I don't want to.' He would cover his head at the sound of the drum for prayers, and would remain so until the service was over. He was asked if he would not read our books and compare the two religions, and then tell us what he thought of the religion of Christ the Son of God. Being a very intelligent man, he was caught in this way. He read through the Pilgrim's Progress, translated into Luganda by Mr. Gordon, and Anonya Alaba ('He who seeks shall see') by Mr. Pilkington, which is full of Uganda proverbs and appeals very much to the hearts of the people. This he read through twice, his face becoming softer and we heard less about Mecca. We next gave him the Gospels. Day by day we saw him pondering over the Gospel stories, and before he left the hospital we had the joy of hearing him confess his faith in Christ as his Saviour. And the day he left he quietly said, 'In God's strength I will win my wife for Christ.'

A Mohammedan patient confesses faith in Christ.

The reputation of the hospital extends far beyond the confines of Uganda. A Nubian, who had been under Dr. A. R. Cook's treatment six years before, walked between 300 and 400 miles from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan to obtain his services again, and a partyof sick folk arrived one day from Nassa, at the south end of the Lake. Dr. J. Howard Cook writes :—

Patients from a distance

While working in the wards one morning I was surprised and delighted to see Meninga, the brother of the king of Nassa and a baptized Christian of high repute in the Native Church, walk into the hospital with a second caravan of five sick people whom he had brought with him from Nassa. He came in the Lake steamer at his own charges, and he also paid the greater part of the fares of all the five patients whom he had brought with him. This was a matter of

Rs 12 for each (they could only contribute a very small sum themselves). They were all, except one, of the peasant class. It was a good sight, that of a native Christian chief undertaking such a tremendous journey, with no retinue but a few sick sufferers whom he had himself paid for and fed and cared for on the journey. It was very unlike an African, but it was like Him Who said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me.'

Good reports were received of several of those who visited the hospital from Nassa in 1909;* and one of them was baptized. Among the patients at the branch dispensary at Gayaza was an old woman, 'steeped in Heathenism,' who afterwards joined the class for candidates for baptism, and became quite notorious for her zeal in telling others about her new religion.†

There is hardly any mention in the annual letters of the missionaries in the Buganda Province of distinctively evangelistic work or of individual cases among the converts and inquirers of the year. The medical staff at Mengo held services in the three prisons at the capital, and were cheered by one of the prisoners, a Mohammedan, coming out boldly on Christ's side, notwithstanding constant persecution from his former co-religionists;‡ and at Rakai open-air services were held every week for the large number of heathen workmen assembled to erect 'palaces' in readiness for a visit from the Kabaka.

Pastoral work

In last year's Report§ a dark account had to be given of the character of the Baganda Christians; happily the outlook was somewhat brighter in 1910. Many of the workers still have to lament the fall into sin of some even of the prominent Christians, and the Rev. W. E. Owen wrote in September that he had the names of 400 persons (and the list was incomplete) in the Gayaza district who were living in open sin; but he added that some consider his district to be exceptional, and that its condition was attributed to the presence in it of many of the wives and dependents of the late king of Uganda. Another missionary says that vicious living, drunkenness and theft are on the increase; and a third speaks of the 'general indifference' which has crept into the Church; while yet another remarks on the 'great want of real spiritual religion.' Part of the evil is probably due to the impossibility of adequately ministering to the Christians in the remoter parts of the country, e.g., in the Kikise district, where some of the converts for more than two years have had no opportunity of partaking of the Lord's Supper; and part to the impression among the people that the chief feature of baptism is getting rid of a 'bad' name and receiving a new one—the 'bad'

(i.e. native) name really having no evil significance, but being regarded as suggesting that the owner is unable to read, since, if he could, he would have a Christian name. Over against these depressing features of the Native Church there are a number of good characteristics to be set. One is the liberality of some of the converts. A new church was consecrated at Mukono, for the cost of which, with the exception of that of the bricks which were otherwise provided, Ham Mukasa, the Sekibobo, made himself responsible; at Nakanyonyi, on the initiative of the Rev. Y. Nakumanyanga, the Christians raised a good deal of money to build a school; and elsewhere in the Mukono district the people contributed well for similar objects, and the women, by means of various forms of industry, earned money which they devoted to the payment of women teachers.* Another characteristic of the converts is missionary zeal. This was shown not only by the women visiting their heathen neighbours, but by the offers to teach in Bukedi, Busoga and Kavirondo which are reported from a number of the stations. Twenty men went out from the Mukono district; about twenty-six young teachers were sent forth from Ndeje;† and at Kikoma ten men, who were joined later on by four others, offered for missionary work as a result of a series of special services for the deepening of the spiritual life.‡ At one or two places there was a distinct improvement in the Church. This was notably the case at Rakai, in Koki, where at the beginning of the year under review George Kabumbuli, the head chief, was living in adultery, having driven away his legal wife—a bad example which was followed by other chiefs and by people in less influential positions. In the summer Rakai was visited by the Kabaka, who was accompanied by the Katikiro, Sir Apolo Kagwa, and the other Protestant Regent, Zakariya Kisingiri. The two last named had a straight talk with the chief, pointing out to him very clearly how prejudicial his influence was. Their remonstrances were effective. The chief confessed his sin; fetched back his wife; began to issue orders that all children should be sent to school; and in many other ways exerted himself to further the work in the district. The helpfulness of the Katikiro is shown also by his being the most regular in attendance of all the members of a weekly Bible-class which is held at his house at Mengo for chiefs and their retinue.

among the Christians of fall into gross sin, though one or two speak of the sore temptations to which the converts are exposed and of their natural weakness and inability to resist them. There was, of course, plenty of room for improvement among them, and in many cases there was but too much reason to doubt whether they had ever experienced any 'change of heart, or in any sense of the word realized Christ's power to save from its dominion.' In Bunyoro, too, there was a decrease in the number of communicants, the cause being partly a fuller understanding of the sin of drawing near to the Lord's Table unworthily, and partly the greater demands on the people's time, which rendered it difficult for them to undertake long journeys to the capital for the purpose of partaking of the Holy Communion. With some exceptions the Bahima women in Ankole displayed little anxiety for teaching, but at Kabarole, in Toro, the women who attended the Bible-classes for communicants and for the recently baptized showed great keenness, and at Hoima, in Bunyoro, there were 180 women, including Miriya, the queen, in these classes. The king of Bunyoro, in his turn, attended the classes held for him and the chiefs three times a week, and made arrangements that no official duties should prevent the chiefs at the capital from being present. Several of the women engaged with diligence and effect in district visiting. In Ankole, though the contributions for Church work were double those in 1909 and several Baganda chiefs took steps to instruct the children of their respective neighbourhoods, the Banyankole Christians made little personal effort to impart a knowledge of Christianity to those around them. At Masindi, in Bunyoro, there was growth in the Christians, as evidenced by larger gifts, increased willingness to assist in district visiting, and offers of service from young men; and with the co-operation of the headmen and tenants on Church lands 8,500 rubber trees were planted out—a number which it is hoped soon to augment—with a view to providing an endowment for the Church in course of time.*

The king and queen of Bunyoro attend classes

Educational work

Twelve teachers were under training at Masindi, and five of them sat for examination at Mengo and obtained first teachers' certificates. Some normal instruction was given to between seventy and eighty young men at Hoima, where a boarding-school for sons of chiefs was opened and placed under the charge of the prince of Bunyoro, whose story was given in last year's Report.† The number of names on the roll of the girls' school at Kabarole increased from 100 to more than 400.

Medical work

The need of the new hospital which was in process of erection at Kabarole was greatly felt, for the building in use was in such a state of dilapidation that people were afraid of becoming in-patients lest it should fall about their heads. The occurrence of some cases of dysentery, a disease of which they stand in great dread, among those who had been admitted, kept others away, since they feared that infection was in the building. A good many people were brought in suffering from wounds contracted in drunken brawls, but on the whole the number of patients showed a falling off. More than 6,000 visits of out-patients were recorded at the branch dispensary at Hoima, and some medical work was carried on also at Mbarara and Butiti.

* For references to the pastoral work see Gl., July, 1910, p. 108; March, 1911, p. 37; Gaz., October, 1910, p. 310; November, p. 335.

Evangelistic work

The chief feature of the evangelistic work in Ankole was that the Bairu, or working class, who are distinct from the Bahima, the ruling class, came forward for instruction in increasing numbers, and that the country work advanced. Itinerations in Toro showed that more teachers are needed, since everywhere the people asked for them; while a new out-station was opened at Koba, in the Nile Province, to be superintended from Masindi. Four men were baptized at Patigo, whence, it will be remembered, European missionaries were withdrawn early in 1908;* eighty-eight persons in the Masindi district (as compared with thirty-eight in the previous year), including two children of a chief who has forsaken Mohammedanism and himself been passed for baptism; 128 adults at Hoima and Bugoma; and a good number at Mboga, in the Kabarole district, on the border of the Great Forest.

III. EASTERN PROVINCE

Evangelistic work

The work in Busoga and Bukedi was reported by Archdeacon T. R. Buckley at the close of 1909 to be hopeful, and writing a year later he is able to say that the prospects are 'brighter than ever.' In Busoga as a whole there was a growing spirit of inquiry, evidenced by the increased sales of Mateka (reading sheets) and New Testaments. At Iganga, although some of the people seemed to 'have little aspiration after heavenly things,' and many men used violence to prevent their wives from reading,† there was 'progress all along the line'; and a reorganizing of the system of visiting resulted in a marked growth in the Sunday congregations. Some opposition was experienced from a Mohammedan chief in the Kaliro district, which is superintended from Kamuli, and in that region Islam gained ground; more teachers, both men and women, are needed there, especially the latter, since the women and girls are showing a remarkable desire for the Gospel.‡ In Bukedi the work is of much more recent institution than in Busoga, but the accounts of it are equally encouraging. The older people in the Nabumale district continued indifferent to the Gospel, but they did not oppose it as they once did: many who previously were apathetic about learning to read began to show keenness; and generally there was a greater leaning towards Christianity, which has already exercised a healthy influence on public opinion, even among the Heathen, on such matters as immorality and theft. With the aid of Baganda teachers services were conducted on Sunday afternoons at the residences of eight or nine of the Bagisu chiefs in the neighbourhood of the main station, and several other important chiefs residing at a greater distance from it asked for teachers—requests which it was possible to comply with in two or three cases, thanks to the missionary zeal of the Baganda which has already been referred to.* Much the same may be said of the Mbale district, where the number of African teachers increased from twelve to forty-eight; and of Ngora, where Baganda volunteers were stationed at twelve new places and there was a general lessening of the prejudice against 'reading.' Twenty catechumens were under instruction at the last named station by the end of the year, one of them being a 'typical old Heathen,' named Ebanat, whose son came into touch with Christianity by being brought to the dispensary after being struck by lightning. Some adults from North Kavirondo were baptized in the Iganga district, and at Nabumale the first infant baptism among the Bagisu took place in August, when the daughter of two of the first converts was admitted into the visible Church.†

An excellent Muganda pastor

The work in the Eastern Province is largely dependent upon a Muganda clergyman and lay teachers, and these are highly spoken of. The Rev. Y. Kiwavu and his wife are said to 'continue in their good work, never flinching in face of many discouragements,' and another missionary writes of them, 'The pastor seems to have gained the affection of the people in a wonderful way; his wife, a devoted and earnest servant of the Lord, is doing a work which no man can do.' Of the lay teachers also a good account is given;‡ not one had a charge of misconduct brought against him, although they are young and surrounded with many temptations. Concerning the natives of the country who have embraced Christianity it is reported that the gifts of those at Iganga were liberal; that several of the young men at Jinja offered themselves as missionaries; that some of those at Nabumale engaged in evangelistic work every Sunday and others volunteered to go out as teachers, though by so doing they would sacrifice an income of from thirty-six to forty rupees a year for one of ten or twelve; § and that at the last named station there was not a single lapse of any kind. the pastoral work is the more cheering when it is contrasted with that which was given in last year's Report.*

Educational work

There are boarding-schools for the sons of chiefs at Jinja, Iganga and Ngora, and one was carried on for a time at Bululu by the late Mr. W. G. S. Innes.† At all these the number of pupils increased, and at the first named many of the lads received baptism. Three boys belonging to the day-school at Nabumale also were baptized, and eight of the pupils at that for girls were under instruction for baptism at the close of the year.

Medical work

Dispensary work is maintained at Iganga (where the Government doctors from the sleeping-sickness camp at Busu kindly rendered assistance) and at most of the other stations in the Eastern Province, and by its means relief from bodily suffering was afforded to many patients.

IV. KAVIRONDO

Educational work

In the efforts to win the people of Kavirondo for Christ a specially important place is occupied by the school for chiefs' sons at Maseno. Archdeacon J. J. Willis writes :—

> It secures what the old monasteries secured in the middle ages, and, in its measure, it effects what they effected. It affords a shelter amid a sea of temptation ; it makes Christian teaching practicable, and Christian living a possibility. It is significant that God Himself does not attempt the practically impossible. He did not attempt to give Israel the Law in Egypt ; He first brought them out, then He taught them. John the Baptist drew his hearers away from their own surroundings into the wilderness ; then he taught them. The greatest of all sermons was preached on the Mount to those who would take the trouble to go there. And so, repeatedly, when our Lord would teach His disciples, He ' withdrew Himself.'
> The wisdom, the absolute necessity of this, is clearly enough seen in our own little world of missionary work here. Speaking generally, the ordinary village life is dead against Christianity. The old men, and even more the old women, are conservative to the backbone. No matter what the custom, however unintelligible and apparently valueless, if it is a custom it must remain, and will remain, in so far as it lies in the power of the older generation to keep it. Consequently, while work in the villages has gone on for some four years—Sunday preaching, weekly visiting, itineration, day-schools—the practical and visible result has so far been remarkably small. Of a total of 162 catechumens in connexion with the Mission, only twenty-three are direct from heathen villages. But as soon as natives are detached for a reasonable period from their village surroundings, the result is remarkable. They come into the school, and very soon a marked change is evident. Generally speaking, it is true that, as a leading employer of labour in this Protectorate once remarked to me, ' the Kavirondo are the most malleable people in East Africa ' ; but in the present stage the impression is made when they are taken for the time away from the heathen environment of their own villages.

Change seen in mission school-boys

The number of boys in the school at the close of 1910 was 127 ; of these fifty-six were in the catechumenate, while fourteen, the firstfruits of the station, were baptized during the year. Besides, when required, taking part in the teaching in the day-school, which had about seventy pupils, the boarding-school lads from time to time visited Kisumu, where they held services, etc., for a fortnight at a time, and a number of villages, at each of which they spent some five days. Three men in one village, influenced by the lads, taught themselves to read, abandoned heathen customs, and one day presented themselves at Maseno as candidates for the catechumenate; while from another place almost all the girls, disregarding the opposition of their elders, visited the head station, and some put themselves under instruction for baptism.

Mission schoolboys teaching others

Evangelistic work.

At Kisumu, or Port Florence, the Lake terminus of the Uganda railway, a town with a population of about fifty Europeans and 2,000 others belonging to eighteen different tribes and nationalities, where the Rev. F. H. Wright took up his residence in April, 1910, the work went forward with the aid of a Muganda teacher, one of the Usukuma teachers from Nassa and the Maseno schoolboys, and by the end of the year more than forty persons had publicly made a profession of their desire to forsake Heathenism and embrace Christianity. A couple of itinerations were made from Maseno, and Mr. Wright from Kisumu occasionally conducted services at two important centres down the railway, and also visited outlying farms and estates. On one farm he found a gentleman from South Africa with his wife and family, who had not seen a clergyman for five years. With them was a family of natives, the mother and her children, whom they had brought with them; these children had been taught by a daughter of the house, and Mr. Wright was able to baptize the eldest of the family, a girl about sixteen years of age, as an adult, and the younger children as infants.

Occupation of Kisumu

V. NANDI

Kaptumo occupied

ANOTHER link in the chain of mission-stations between the east coast and Uganda was forged by the occupation of Kaptumo, in the Nandi Country, in December, 1909, by the Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Herbert and Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Syson. The plateau of Nandi is about 6,500 feet above the sea-level, and lies some six miles north of Kibigori, the second station from Kisumu on the Uganda railway. The district is about forty-five miles long and thirty-two wide, and contains a scattered population of 26,000. The Nandi, one of the fierce warrior tribes of East Africa, in old days were a great source of trouble to the Government, harassing all the caravans which passed through their country, but since 1905–6, when a punitive expedition was sent against them, they have settled down and taken to cultivation. The warriors spend much time greasing themselves and plaiting their hair with string to resemble rope, and the work in the fields is mainly in the hands of the women. The people are very fond of their children and cattle, and one of their prayers is, 'God guard for us the children and the cattle.' Mr. Herbert describes their religion as follows :—

The religion of the Nandi.

They call God 'Asis,' and in their minds He is somehow connected with the sun. He is a beneficent Being, and the giver of all good things. The Nandi pray to Him morning and evening; their prayers are merely requests for food, cattle and children, and also for protection from their enemies, etc.; it seems they have very little idea of sin, and never pray for forgiveness from it. On the whole they are decidedly a religious tribe, and therefore one has some foundation to work upon in telling them the truths about God and sin and salvation.

Mr. Syson adds that the Nandi have no idols or fetish-worship, but hold many superstitions with regard to the spirits of the dead. They do not bury the dead, but lay them out for the hyenas to devour. Illegitimate children are destroyed and also those children who are deformed. Concerning some other characteristics and customs Mr. Herbert says :—

and their customs

The people are sharp and intelligent and think a good deal. The most formidable foe we have to face is their fearful immorality; it is appalling. There is the greatest licence everywhere, and a complete lack of shame. Parents compel their daughters to live immoral lives, so as to obtain money wherewith to buy their cattle, etc.

Then there is the indomitable pride of the Nandi. They think themselves so much superior to the European that they smile at the thought of his knowing more about the things of God than they do themselves. This is most noticeable amongst the warrior class, who are virtually the rulers of the country. Every seven years and a half a great festival is held, when all the young men between the ages of seventeen and twenty-five years, who are named by their parents, go through the tribal rite and become 'warriors,' the former generation passing out and becoming what are termed 'old men.' During their term of service these young men have perfect licence to do practically just as they like; nothing may be refused them if they specially wish it, and they run about the country, covered with native butter and red clay, doing no work, but just living a loose, wild, domineering life. It is the greatest disgrace to a Nandi to become an old man and not to have been a 'warrior.' The young men may not lawfully marry, and if they do, any children that are born to them are always strangled, otherwise they say 'the parents will die.'

The Nandi received the missionaries with friendliness, and no difficulty was experienced in gathering the people together for services in the villages. In this matter the chief of Kaptumo was very helpful. One day when about 100 warriors had assembled to discuss the hut-tax, he sent to Mr. Herbert with the message, 'There are a great number of warriors gathered at my village; if the European would like to come and tell us the words of God, let him hurry and come down; we are waiting for him.'

A station opened at Aldai

Mr. Herbert and Mr. Syson were not long together at Kaptumo, for in March, 1910, the latter and Mrs. Syson removed to Aldai, nine miles to the west of Kaptumo, which has been selected as the site for a permanent station, as having a denser population than any other part of Nandi and also possessing good soil, an important item in the success of industrial work such as it is proposed to start. When the building operations are completed, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert also will remove thither.*

MOHAMMEDAN LANDS

NOTWITHSTANDING the attention which Islam has attracted of late years and the large amount of study which has been given to it, mainly in missionary circles, many misconceptions prevail regarding its nature and characteristics. One is that it is a simple, pure and lofty form of Monotheism, and so completely devoid of all mystery and all abstruse doctrines that it readily commends itself to man's reason. But, as a matter of fact, its 'Monotheism has led in one direction to Agnosticism, in another to Pantheism, and in a third to Polytheism and an approach to Animism.' * It is not because of the simplicity of its theology that Islam wins its way with such facility and advances with such rapid strides,† but because it demands so little from those who embrace it. A missionary in North Africa has written on this point as follows :— The character of Islam

> The Mohammedan religion is so easy that it just suits the sinful human heart that wants a religion and yet wishes to continue in its sin. A man may do all he likes and yet be sure of Paradise if he die a 'believer'—in Mohammed, of course. A man told me a little while ago, after I had been talking with him: 'Because I am a Mohammedan I can steal, or lie, or kill, or do highway robbery, or live an impure life, or commit any other sin I like, but at the last I shall receive the mercy of God through the Prophet.'

A second great defect of Islam is the position which it assigns to women. This is revealed, incidentally, by the fact that in Persian there is no distinct word for 'wife,' zan, meaning woman, a term of reproach, implying inferiority, being used. It is shown also by the names which are sometimes given to girl babies; two women were met by Dr. D. W. Carr, one of whom was called 'Na Klasteh,' or 'Not wanted,' and the other 'Dukhtar,' which signifies 'Enough of daughters.' A woman in Persia is not allowed to say her prayers in public places as a man does. She is thus described by Mrs. W. A. Rice :— The position assigned to women

> She is superstitious, and believes very largely in the power of charms to avert the evil eye. She ties charms of all kinds—blue beads, coins, silver representations of various things with meanings manifold, teeth, dried sheep's eyes, claws and quotations from the Koran done up in little leather cases—on her children, round their necks and arms and on their caps, and also on herself, round her neck and arms and even her waist. Dreams play a large part in her life, and in many cases have led to a real interest in Christianity.

* See 'Some Misconceptions regarding Islam,' in the C.M. Rev., Oct., 1910, pp. 586, ff.

† It is said that Mohammedanism is spreading not only in Nigeria and East Africa, as already shown in this Report (supra, pp. 32, 33, 52, 57), but also in Nyasaland and Abyssinia. See C.M. Rev., ibid., pp. 635, 636.

She pays frequent visits to shrines, where she often makes vows. She is very particular about what is due to the dead, and visits the graveyard on all the prescribed days. Once I suggested to a woman, who said she must go regularly to her mother-in-law's grave every Friday for a year, that she should go on another day, and she said, 'But her eyes will be upon the road watching for me, and I cannot disappoint her.'*

Can Mohammedans be won for Christ?

Another misconception is that no converts to Christianity can ever be won from Mohammedanism. Happily this belief is far from the truth, though some colour may appear to be given to it by the absence from the chapters of the C.M.S. Reports on work in Turkish Arabia and some other lands of any reference to converts and inquirers. The reason for this is not that no success is granted to the missionaries, but that it is inexpedient to describe it in such a way as to incur the risk of attracting the attention of the opponents of Christian Missions, evoking persecution on those who show signs of being favourably disposed to Christianity, and arousing opposition. It may be permitted, however, to record here, in more or less general terms, some of the encouragements which workers in the lands in question had during the year under review. In one city seven women and girls, besides three infants, were baptized on the same day, and later in the year another girl, the daughter of a convert. At another place a man was received into the visible Church whose home some three years before had been visited by a woman missionary; a passage from the Bible was read by her and explained, the man was impressed, and he steadily advanced in faith and knowledge notwithstanding the persecution which he had to endure. Another young man was found willing to confess Christ in baptism during the year, notwithstanding the prospect of having to endure severe trials in consequence.

Baptisms in Mohammedan lands

Inquirers

Besides these there were many cases, most of them met with in connexion with the medical work, in which men and women professed to believe in the Saviour and showed a love for God's Word. At A—— there is a gathering of more than forty Moslem men who meet secretly to study the Bible and compare it with the Koran, and quite a number of whom are convinced of the truth of Christianity. At B—— a woman one day asked the missionary, 'Why have you not brought your Book? I like to hear.' At C—— a Moslem school teacher reads Christian books and is anxious to send his children to a C.M.S. school. Three Mohammedan girls attending a Sunday-school at D—— told their teacher that they had learned to believe in the Lord Jesus and prayed every night for their relatives who are bitterly opposed to Christianity; while at another place a former student in a C.M.S. institution attends the Arabic services and is frequently present at Christian meetings. From E—— come tidings of four girls, two of them pupils in a mission-school, being under preparation for baptism, and of a woman once in good position, whose husband has already been baptized, regularly visiting a missionary for instruction. Among the patients in a mission-hospital at F—— were a sheikh who gave up his lawless habits, so that the people who knew him declared that the doctor must have used some sorcery to produce so great a change in him; a youth whose father testified that he was completely spoiled because he refused to steal, saying that the Lord Jesus would not like him to do so; and a man, once an arrack seller, who on his return to his shop from the hospital smashed all the bottles of arrack (a strong intoxicating spirit) which he possessed, sacrificing spirits of the value of several pounds, and began to do what he could to forward the Kingdom of God among his neighbours. A sheikh, an agriculturist and a haji (one who has made the pilgrimage to Mecca) were more or less definite inquirers at G——, as were some of the hospital assistants at H——, and a man afflicted with an incurable disease at I——, while at K—— a sayyid, who afterwards died in hospital, eagerly repeated a prayer for forgiveness 'for Jesus Christ's sake.' From another station, L——, a missionary writes of two or more Moslems visiting him almost every night towards the end of the year for instruction, and speaks of an out-patient who continually prays to God for the new birth. The following story, which should call forth sympathy and prayer, comes from M—— :—

Praying for the new birth

> A young man early in the year was admitted into the hospital from a village. He had been a very wild and bad-living young man, but being able to read he soon became interested in the books that were given him, and listened very attentively to the addresses at daily prayers in the wards. Ultimately he became quite changed, as far as one could judge, both in heart and life, and when he returned in good health to his village the difference in his life was at once noticed. A sheikh of the village, a very intelligent man, one day asked the cause of this change, and when told the circumstances came the next Sunday along with the young man to our evangelistic meeting. During the address he took notes of what was said, and the following Sunday he was at the meeting again; then he began to come on week-days as an inquirer, and after some weeks he finally decided to take the Lord Jesus as his Saviour. Not content with believing in Christ, he began to confess the Lord Jesus in his village and to press the claims of Christ upon his fellow Moslems.

A bold confession

This man has in consequence been treated with great injustice. Yet once more, at N——, some of the elder girls in a mission-school made a bold stand and refused to marry the Moslems provided for them as husbands, and one of their number wishes to be baptized though she has had to endure persecution in consequence. Cases such as these afford abundant assurance that the labour of missionaries in Mohammedan lands is not in vain in the Lord.*

* Other converts from Mohammedanism are mentioned in the chapters on the Indian Missions.

In its relations with Islamic peoples the British Government occupies a position of extreme delicacy, because of the fact that sixty millions of Mohammedans are directly or indirectly under British rule in India. In this connexion, the Report of Commission VII. of the World Missionary Conference, which deals with the subject of Missions and Governments, contains the following passage: 'It is not singular that, in the effort to give Mohammedanism the outward respect due to it in a region peopled by its adherents, the British officials should sometimes "lean over backward." But the Commission is of opinion that in Egypt, the Sudan and Northern Nigeria the restrictions deliberately laid upon Christian Mission work and the deference paid to Islam are excessive.' Some illustrations of the 'excessive deference' paid to Islam in Northern Nigeria were given in last year's Report;* others concerning Egypt have lately appeared. Thus Canon Oldfield, formerly Chaplain at Assouan, says that when the English entered Egypt Mohammedanism was very carelessly observed by the upper classes, but 'we re-established it.' For example, Mohammedans observe Friday as their weekly day for religious observance, but they do not 'hallow' it—a noonday attendance at the mosque for public prayers is all that is usual. No Mohammedan, therefore, would have made the smallest objection if the Government in its organization of the business of State had required, at least for all its Christian officials, that Sunday should be the weekly day of rest. Instead of this the Government adopted Friday, and every Englishman or Coptic Christian who enters the Egyptian Civil or Military service has to rest on Friday and to work on Sunday. In the provinces the Coptic Christian servants of the Government are dependent on the goodwill of their Mohammedan superiors for facilities for attending public worship on Sundays.†

Deference paid to Islam by the British Government

A general conference on Missions to Moslems took place at Lucknow from January 23–28, 1911. It was attended by 333 delegates, representing fifty-four organizations and societies at work in all parts of the world. Among the subjects discussed were, 'The Pan-Islamic Movement,' 'Political Changes in the Moslem World: their relation to Islam and the Outlook for Christian Missions,' 'Islam among Pagan Races,' and 'The Training of Missionaries for Work among Moslems.' ‡

EGYPT AND THE SUDAN MISSIONS

THE PAST HISTORY

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the 'Mediterranean Mission,' which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor and Palestine, was twofold: first, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, second, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted missionaries were employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, etc. But the hopes of the founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form.

The Society formerly had a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy and one Bishop were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small, and the work was discontinued in 1862. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A medical mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year. Helouan was occupied in 1903, and Menouf and Shubra Zanga in 1910. After Gordon's death at Khartoum in 1885 a Gordon Memorial Fund was opened, and soon after the defeat of the Khalifa's forces Omdurman was occupied in 1899 and Khartoum in 1900, under some restrictions, however, as to evangelistic efforts. Atbara was occupied in 1908. In 1905 the Society was invited by Lord Cromer and the Sirdar to commence work in the southern part of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and Malek was occupied in the following year.

Egypt is included in the jurisdiction of the Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

I. The Society occupies six stations in Egypt proper. A training class, a boarding-school and two day-schools for girls are maintained at Cairo; a school for boys, with a hostel attached, at Old Cairo; and a school for high-class girls at Helouan. There is also a book depôt at Cairo, and a weekly illustrated magazine, Orient and Occident, is published. Evangelistic meetings are held for sheikhs and students and others. Medical work is carried on at hospitals for men and for women and children at Old Cairo, and by means of itinerations in the Nile Delta. Work among the fellahin is maintained at Menouf and Shubra Zanga.

II. In the Sudan (see Plate 2), the sphere of the operations of the Gordon Memorial Mission, the Society has girls' schools at Khartoum, Omdurman and Atbara, and a medical mission at Omdurman. Work has also been begun among the Dinkas, a pagan tribe, 1,000 miles farther up the Nile.

There are seven clergymen, four doctors, two other laymen, seven missionaries' wives (one of them a doctor), and eighteen other women missionaries, including four trained nurses, engaged in the Missions. There are also forty-six native Christian lay agents.

Reinforcements

THE Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Cuthbert Arthur Lea-Wilson, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of St. Mary's, Kirkdale, Liverpool, who has been assigned to the Southern Sudan. He is a brother of the Rev. H. W. Lea-Wilson and Mrs. T. J. Ison, of the Western India Mission, and also has another sister working in India under the Z.B.M. Mission. Miss Lilian Outhwaite, a trained nurse, has been accepted in local connexion for work at Old Cairo. On the other hand, the Committee have accepted the resignation of Miss S. M. Elsdon. The staff of missionaries requires considerable augmentation before the Mission can be regarded as adequately equipped. In order that advantage may be taken of the opportunities which present themselves, workers are required for Gizeh and Menouf, and for the establishment of a catechists' class, with a view to training men for work in the Menoufieh Province and elsewhere.

I. EGYPT MISSION

Pastoral work

A 'difficult' year

THE year 1910 is said to have been at times a 'difficult' one in Egypt. Throughout the summer a violent campaign was waged in the Mohammedan papers against missionaries in general, the Nationalists, who are extremely sensitive to any aspersion on themselves or their religion, somewhat inconsistently showering down 'hailstorms of invective' against the Christian workers. Two of the converts, Sheikh Skander and his wife, who work in an outlying district of Cairo, were subjected to much persecution, but they remained faithful and continued their efforts to preach Christ both with their lips and in their lives. Other workers and converts also adorned their profession. Sitt Fareeda, the Syrian Bible-woman employed at the hospital and in visiting former patients in their homes, laboured earnestly until the autumn, when she was suddenly called to her eternal rest, only a few hours after giving a Bible-reading to some of the patients; and concerning another Bible-woman, a former Mohammedan, engaged in like work, Miss L. E. D. Braine-Hartnell says, 'her Christian life and unwearying zeal cannot be praised too highly.' Ishak * and two other men were confirmed in the spring of 1910.

'Unwearying zeal'

Medical work

The opposition which has been referred to failed to affect the medical work at Old Cairo. The number of in-patients was larger than before; that of resident out-patients, i.e. persons who enter for a month's treatment for ankylostomiasis (Egyptian anæmia), also increased, partly owing to the opening of a new ward for women suffering from that disease; and the number of ordinary out-patients, though not so great as in the days when there were fewer free dispensaries, yet showed an advance over the immediately preceding years. The pressure on the space in the men's hospital is illustrated by the fact that in November there were six men, all needing hospital treatment, who were waiting for vacancies, while a short time previously a bed could not be found for a man who lay dying on the floor of the bath-room. Although no baptism took place as a direct result of the medical mission, there were some patients who appeared to be real seekers after truth, and one man, shortly before his death, which took place in the hospital, said more than once in the presence of his Moslem sister that he was trusting in the Lord Jesus alone for salvation.† The out-patients also showed keen appreciation of what they heard, and not a few of the women who had visited the dispensary testified openly to the power of Christ in giving the victory over sin. Dr. F. J. Harpur met with some opposition in conducting the Nile Itinerating Medical Mission, but rather to the spiritual than the medical side of the work. A preacher in one of the mosques at Hamoul—where the doctor spent the first six months of 1910—prohibited men from attending the meetings which were held there, and for a time very few were willing to take the risk of being present, but before long courage revived. Lantern-meetings and a Bible-class were instituted at Sitris, a village which Dr. Harpur made his centre in the autumn.* This itinerating medical work has opened the door for other evangelistic effort, for the Rev. W. W. Cash testifies that when travelling among the villages of the Delta he had abundant openings for preaching the Gospel wherever Dr. Harpur was known.

Medical itinerations

The year was marked by the occupation of two new stations by European missionaries. The first is Menouf, which has a population of nearly 25,000 and is the commercial centre of the province of Menoufieh, between the Rosetta and Damietta branches of the Nile; the province contains about 1,000,000 agriculturists of the fellahin type, crowded together in a comparatively small area. The American Presbyterian Mission had carried on a school and services in the town for a few years, but having no other work in the district they generously expressed their willingness to hand over their school to the C.M.S., and Mr. and Mrs. Cash occupied the station in January, 1910. The work is still in its infancy, but it is evident that a spirit of inquiry is abroad. The second new station is Shubra Zanga, six or seven miles from Menouf, where Miss M. Cay and Miss J. Lewis took up their abode in November; there are fifteen villages within riding distance, almost entirely Mohammedan, and containing in all some 40,000 inhabitants. At Cairo and Old Cairo evangelistic work was prosecuted much as in former years by means of meetings and of visiting the women in their homes. Few of these are able to read, and efforts to help them are hindered by their superstitions. Miss H. Adeney writes on this head:—

Evangelistic work

and Shubra Zanga

> Many women will seem to appreciate lessons on faith in God, for instance, and yet will not think of agreeing to remove bunches of charms hung around their babies in order to save them from sickness, from the 'evil-eye,' etc., etc. That dirty-looking bit of sewed-up leather was given by the grandmother—'it has good writing in it'—though, if examined, it would probably turn out to be some scribbled rubbish. 'A Christian brought that mother-of-pearl crucifix from Jerusalem.' The old nurse put on that hard bag of beans and seeds to bring good luck to the baby, and must not be offended by its being removed, dirty and inconvenient as it is. Coptic Christians and Moslems will alike make these excuses, and thus show they have no real trust in a living, loving God.

Coptic belief in charms

* See also M. & T., May, 1911, p. 142.

My kind-hearted and trustworthy Bible-woman was in great distress the other day. Inquiring into the cause of her tears, she told me that her brother-in-law (a Copt) had been to a Moslem soothsayer to find out what had become of a belt, lost a year or more ago. The oracle had replied that its whereabouts was known to 'one of your flesh and blood.' This answer was considered to point clearly to my Bible-woman as the culprit, because the belt had been mislaid in her house by the carelessness of the owner. This credulous brother-in-law is in a fair position, has sons in a mission-school, and has quoted the Gospels to me, and my Bible-woman has many a time been a friend-in-need to her sister; yet all this did not prevent the visit to the 'seer' and the acceptance of his verdict as true.*

Mention may here be made of some meetings, attended by both Moslems and Copts, which were held at Helouan during the summer by Sheikh Bulus † at the request of some of the latter.

Few inquirers are spoken of in connexion with the general work, but Canon R. MacInnes, the secretary of the Mission, writes of a former sheikh of El Azhar who had been engaged as a teacher of Arabic in a Jesuit school at Alexandria, and had become interested in Christianity. This man visited Canon MacInnes one day and professed his belief in Jesus Christ, but said that he had not the courage to face the separation from his people which would be the result of an open profession of his faith. He asked to see Sheikh Bulus, and after a prolonged conversation with him declared that his last doubts had vanished, and that he wished to be baptized. 'Since then,' Canon MacInnes adds, 'the inevitable break with his father has come, the sheikh has settled in Cairo and is in regular attendance at the meetings and classes. He still bears the marks of his father's stick on his face and wrist.'

A sheikh asks for baptism

Boys' School

The number of pupils at the Boys' School at Old Cairo increased rapidly after the summer holidays. Two factors conduced to this result: the success of three boys out of the four who entered for the primary certificate in the Government examination; and quarrels which occurred between the managers of a neighbouring Coptic school and the priests, and which led some of the pupils to attend the C.M.S. institution. The hostel attached to the school has fifteen inmates.

Training Class

Four of the eleven members of the Girls' Training Class at Cairo gained their teachers' certificates, and it is said of former members of the class who were taught by the late Miss T. H. Bird that 'each has been a real missionary—not merely a paid teacher.'

Girls' schools

A good account is also given of some of the old pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school, in that they are bringing up their children well. Efforts are made to keep in touch with such by means of a Christian Girls' Guild, which has thirty-three members. Every week the teachers hold a prayer-meeting. On one occasion the funds of the school were very low, and certain bills, for from £10 to £12 in all, were shortly due: prayer was accordingly made that money might come in quickly, and over £36 was received for fees during the next three days. Two of the boarding-school girls left during the year to join the training class. The attendance at the Girls' Day-school, which increased by about fifty per cent. in 1909, further rose by some thirty per cent., and the missionaries were welcomed when they visited the homes from which the children are drawn. Some of the boys who had been accustomed to accompany their sisters to the Girls' School at Helouan were withdrawn because they had become too old for the infants' class. Most of the children at the village school at the Ezbeh, not far from Helouan, are Moslems, and one of them at least, it was found, had been in the habit of reading the Bible to her mother from time to time. The attendance at the Sunday-school held in connexion with the Old Cairo dispensary showed an advance. Zohara, the former pupil at this school, who was mentioned in last year's Report * as having married and moved to a remote part of the city, after six months' unhappiness with a cruel husband, returned to the hospital and settled down as a worker there.

Literary work

The circulation of Orient and Occident showed little change. The magazine was honoured by a concentrated attack upon it by the Nationalists, who represented that it was, among its contemporaries of other Missions, the one really pernicious publication! The Rev. W. H. T. Gairdner, besides writing Edinburgh, 1910, wrote in Arabic Part II. of a Life of Christ and Part I. of a Life of Moses, and in English The Verse of Stoning in Tourât and Koran. He also compiled a book of Egyptian hymn-tunes.

II. ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN (GORDON MEMORIAL) MISSION

1. NORTHERN SUDAN

Educational work

Of the three girls' schools of the C.M.S. in the Northern Sudan, that at Khartoum has more than 100 pupils. It is becoming less customary for the people to marry their children at a very early age, as they like them to continue their studies, and in 1910 the first class of girls at the school remained a year longer than has been usual. They were examined by one of the staff at the Gordon College, and some of them gained certificates. There are about fifty children in the Omdurman school, a number which, it is expected, will be increased as soon as the buildings now in process of erection are completed. The ladies have a few Sudanese children living with them, to whom they give some domestic training. Their household received an addition in the summer in the person of a little girl, nine years of age, who had been stolen from her home in Darfur by two Fellata men with the intention of selling her in Mecca, and whom the ladies received at the request of one of the English judges in Khartoum. Mrs. A. C. Hall tells the child's story as follows :—

A girl rescued from slavery

She had gone to the well to fetch water when these men carried her off, threatening her with the knife if she screamed; they made her walk many, many miles day after day, carrying burdens and begging food for them. When at last, nearly a year later, they reached Khartoum, the child, having half a piastre of her own (that is, about a penny), ran away. A woman found her wandering about and took her home; there the men discovered her, but when they tried to take her again, the case was brought before the judge who decided to hand the child over to me. I had to be very careful with her for fear the Arabs should find her and steal her again. About a week after she came I wanted to get her some new shoes, and, at the other children's request, let her go into the market with them and a servant to get them. I told the child, Mariam, to cover her face with her tobe (outdoor garment) in case she met the men who stole her. The children told me, when they came home, that while they were standing near the place where they got the shoes, suddenly Mariam said, 'There is the man that stole me!' The other children drew her away quickly, but not before he had turned round and looked at her. Happily the children got away at once and came home, and I fancy the men have now gone off to Mecca.

An improved standard of honour

The school at Atbara received considerable local support, and it is so much appreciated by the parents that it has been possible to raise the fees considerably. It is said that the standard of honour in the school has improved greatly, and nearly all the children can now be trusted to report themselves if they break any rule, although they know that punishment will follow.

Medical work

The hospital at Omdurman had fewer in-patients than in 1909, and for some weeks the three mud rooms which are used for their reception stood empty. The number of out-patients remained about the same, viz., from forty to fifty a day, but Dr. E. Lloyd says that comparatively few of them require in-patient treatment; there are 'no dangerous trades in the Sudan, no streets crowded with wheeled traffic to cross, and no pavements to slip off,' and the diseases which are common in Egypt do not occur to any considerable extent in the Sudan. Morning prayers were held for the houseboys, who are all Mohammedans, and also for the out-patients whenever a sufficient number of them was present.

2. SOUTHERN SUDAN

THE district in the Southern Sudan for which the C.M.S. is responsible reaches as far as Abyssinia on the east and Uganda on the south, and covers an area somewhat larger than that of the British Isles. It contains a population of more than 100,000, belonging to at least twenty-four different tribes, each speaking its own language. One of these tribes, the Dinka, or Jieng, is divided into nine branches, the Thain, Bor, Aliab, Ghol, Twi, etc. At present these tribesmen are Heathen, but it is doubtful whether they will not soon be won for Islam, seeing that in the Lado Enclave, which had been leased by the British Government to the Congo Free State and reverted to the lessors, by the terms of the treaty, on the death of King Leopold, 500 Mohammedan soldiers have been planted among the pagans, and schools have been opened in which Moslem teachers are employed.* The work of the C.M.S.

* Some notes on a visit to the Enclave appeared in the Gl., April, 1911, p. 58.

is chiefly among the Thain, Bor and inland Dinkas. One of their superstitions has been described to the Rev. A. Shaw in the following terms :—

A Dinka superstition

If a man kills a dog the ghost of the dog causes the man to fall ill. A tiet or native medicine-man is thereupon called in, and he goes through certain ceremonies of divination, chiefly consisting of shaking a gourd containing a few seeds of corn. Suddenly barking is heard from inside the gourd. The tiet announces that this shows clearly that the killing of the dog was the cause of the illness. The sick man thereupon prepares stiff porridge, and after it is cool rolls it into four balls. These he places on four different paths leading out of the village, and calls out, 'Dog, dog, dog, come and eat, I have atoned for the death of your fellow.' When the dogs of the village have eaten the porridge, the sickness will leave the man.

The people who are employed on the necessary building operations at the station are required to attend school, and all are reverent and attentive during the services which are conducted for them and others. The dispensary attracted a good many people, and a few in-patients were received.*

PALESTINE MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The Society commenced work in Palestine in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The following places have been occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Jaffa and Nablous, 1853; Haifa, 1856; Shefamer, 1871; Salt, 1874; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Ramleh, 1879; Acca and El Husn, 1890; Kefr-Yasif, 1892; and Bir Zeit, 1894. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their efforts among Mohammedan women have been greatly blessed. In 1899 the work of the late Female Education Society at Nazareth, Bethlehem and Shefamer was taken over by the Society. Medical missions have done much to diminish prejudice. The first was set on foot at Gaza in 1886. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mohammedan can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

The Bishopric in Jerusalem was founded in 1841 on the initiative of King Frederick William IV. of Prussia, the arrangement being that England and Prussia, who shared the expense of the See, should alternately nominate its occupant. The first three Bishops were Dr. Alexander, Dr. Gobat (1846), previously a C.M.S. missionary, and Dr. Barclay (1879). On the death of the last named the German Government failed to nominate a successor, and eventually declined to continue the arrangement. In 1887 the Bishopric was revived by Archbishop Benson, the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews and the Church Missionary Society having undertaken to make an annual subscription to the stipend of the See to supplement the endowment, and Dr. Blyth was appointed.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The C.M.S. works at six main stations west of the Jordan, viz., Jerusalem, Nazareth, Nablous (the Denis Crofton Mission), Jaffa, Gaza and Haifa; and at Salt, on the east of the river.

At each of these stations and at their out-stations educational work is prosecuted, the chief institutions being the English College and the Bishop Gobat School at Jerusalem, and for girls a boarding-school and training class at Bethlehem, an orphanage at Nazareth, a boarding-school at Ramleh, and a large day-school at Gaza. Jaffa, Nablous and Salt, as well as Gaza, are centres of medical missionary work. Much is done to reach the women by means of visiting them in their homes, both in the towns and villages.

The pastoral work in the Mission is mainly in the hands of the Palestine Church Council, with which eleven native clergymen, three of whom, however, have retired from active work, are connected. The European staff consists of five clergymen, seven laymen, eleven missionaries' wives, and twenty-seven other women missionaries; of these, five are doctors and seven are trained nurses. The native Christian lay agents number 104.

Death of Dr. H. A. Rachel Apps

THE Palestine Mission sustained a great loss by the death at Nablous from pneumonia on December 26, 1910, of Dr. H. A. Rachel Apps. She was trained at The Olives and received her medical education at the Royal Free Hospital, Gray's Inn Road, W.C., and took the M.B. and B.S. degrees of the University of Durham. She was accepted as a missionary of the Society in May, 1909, and sailed for Palestine in October of the same year. During her short period of service she won her way with the patients by her love and sympathy, and many were the expressions of sorrow by the Moslem women when her death occurred.

Reinforcement

The Mission has welcomed one recruit during the year—Miss Ethel Gladys Williams, a trained nurse, who also received training at The Willows before offering to the C.M.S.; she is a sister of Miss M. W. Williams, of the Egypt Mission. Miss K. E. Erwood, of the Victoria C. M. Association, has resigned.

The new Turkish Constitution and missionary work

For various reasons it is not even now by any means easy to estimate aright the exact effects of the promulgation of the Constitution upon missionary work as carried on in the Turkish Empire. Many of the hopes with which that Constitution was ushered in have hardly been realized; indeed instances, and those not a few, might be quoted which indicate distinct 'set-backs.' At the same time, the immense—almost insuperable—obstacles with which the Government has had to cope must not be overlooked. The effects of centuries of misgovernment cannot be removed in a year or two. The influence of individual officials counts for much; and it may be that sometimes their unfriendly action towards Christian work compromises the attitude of the central Government, which might be more friendly and impartial if, other things of greater present moment being settled, it had leisure to deal with matters connected with Christian missionary effort. On the other hand, such individual action occasionally tells in favour of the missionary and his work. In addition to the unfriendly action of individual officials, it would sometimes seem as if with the Constitution there had grown up what may perhaps be described as a kind of Moslem 'animus' on the part of the people generally against Christianity, at any rate so far as it is represented by the work of foreign missionary societies and institutions. Yet here, again, it is not easy to judge how far this feeling is promoted by patriotism as against what is foreign, or by religion as against what is Christian, or by both of these combined.

Christian interests little better protected

With every desire, however, to take into consideration the extraordinary difficulties of the situation, as well as to allow for time being given for the Turkish Government to get things into hand, missionary societies are bound to wonder sometimes whether such interests are better cared for and protected than they were in the days of the old régime, which the new Constitution supplanted three years ago. Further, the friends of Missions seem obliged to share in the doubts which are finding expression in the daily papers and monthly reviews as to whether the Turkish Government is sincerely anxious to introduce a system of good government on impartial and non-religious lines; and whether, if it do so desire, it has the power to carry out its purpose.*

An outbreak of persecution at Gaza, where a new out-patient block has been erected, caused a slight diminution in the number of patients; and at Nablous the opening of a Government hospital in the spring of 1910 had the same effect, and would have led to a greater falling off but for the attraction which the presence of a woman doctor afforded. Dr. Gaskoin R. M. Wright narrates an incident of a few years ago which shows his need of such a colleague. He writes:—

Diagnosis under difficulties

I was called to see a Turkish lady, the wife of some official, but when I went I was not allowed to see her face at all, or any other part of her body. So I said to her husband, 'It is impossible for me to treat her, for I do not know what is the matter with her. If you will allow me to see her face and ask a few questions I will prescribe for her.' The husband replied, 'It is impossible for you to see her face. I would rather she died than that you should look upon her face.' After some time and a good deal of persuasion, she protruded her tongue through a little hole in her shawl which completely covered her. But she would not allow me to see her lips or teeth, so that I could not tell whether she was young or old. She protruded her hand through the folds of her dress in the same way in order that I might feel her pulse. She greatly resented my asking her any questions, and only spoke to me through her husband.

At Jaffa the number of patients was well maintained, and at Salt, where the medical work was in the hands of a Syrian doctor, it increased. At most of the hospitals, although the majority of those who entered were Mohammedans, they listened with apparent attention and in some cases with great interest to the preaching, but often it was evident that underlying the show of willingness to listen there was a deep and fanatical hatred of Christian doctrines. Still the practical manifestation of love did not fail to make its impression. Miss M. Dyce Sharp, for example, writing of a patient at Nablous who had been shot in the leg, says:—

Practical manifestation of love

He would not at first consent to having his leg amputated, and when at last he did consent it was too late, his whole body being poisoned. He lived for some six weeks after the operation, but could never pick up his strength. About a week before he died he said to me one night, 'I can't understand it—how is it that ever since I have been here you have treated me just like a brother and have done everything for me? I am nothing to you; you never saw me before. Where did you get such love?' It was a glorious opportunity to tell him of the love of God in giving Christ, and of our love one to another because of His great love to us. And I read to him passages from St. John's Gospel. Presently he said, 'Yes, I see it now, it comes from God; it could not come from anywhere else, because God is Love.'

'You have treated me just like a brother'

Moreover when former patients were visited in the villages they gave the missionaries the warmest of welcomes and seemed as though they could not do enough for them. Medical work is carried on at dispensaries at Shefamer and Kefr-Yasif, as well as at the hospitals which have been mentioned; many of those attending are Mohammedans or Druzes.*

* For notes about the medical work, see Gaz., Sept., 1910, p. 274; M & T., June, 1910, p. 171; Oct., p. 324; Jan., 1911, p. 6.

Educational work

It is unfortunate that the necessity for retrenchment and the consequent dismissal of some of the teachers and limitation of the number of pupils in certain of the schools has occurred just when the people of Palestine are becoming aroused to the value of education. An incident which took place during the year under review shows that some of them at all events are very anxious to procure it for their children. Mr. A. E. Mitchell writes :—

Education valued

A missionary, when returning home from an itineration, was accosted on a lonely part of the road just after sunset by a number of disguised men, more or less armed. They demanded that he should agree to a certain request beforehand. At first, he not unnaturally declined to do this, but further conversation convinced him that robbery was not their object. Consequently, as he saw that argument was useless, and that they had no intention of allowing him to proceed on his journey, he gave a qualified consent. They then asked that he would give his word that certain schools which had been closed owing to retrenchments in the Mission should be immediately reopened, they promising to help as much as lay in their power. They declared that it was like depriving their children of bread and water and air to deprive them of the opportunity of religious teaching and useful education.

English College

There were twenty-eight students at the English College, Jerusalem—a rather smaller number than of late years—all of them Christians with the exception of one, a Jew. Four students took the teachers' course.

Bishop Gobat School

The Bishop Gobat School, on the other hand, was more than full with ninety boarders, and other pupils would have been received but for the insufficiency of the accommodation. The reputation of the school led several Roman Catholic boys to enter one of the village schools, though they had to pay fees, because they wanted to enter the higher institution later on in life.

Girls' Boarding-schools

Four of the students at the Girls' Boarding-school, Bethlehem, obtained teachers' certificates and took up work in mission-schools, making a total of twenty-six so engaged either in Palestine, Egypt or the Sudan, while two others are nurses in mission-hospitals. Many applications were received for admission to the Ramleh boarding-school which could not be granted.

Orphanage

Three girls at the Nazareth Orphanage finished their course and gained certificates. The day-schools in the Mission are often almost the only means of reaching Moslems, and their efficiency appears from the remark of a father, himself once a pupil in a mission-school, who removed his daughters, saying : 'If I let them stay they will become Christians' ; while another Mohammedan parent said one day, 'My little girl is very clever ; she says texts ; before she eats she prays.' In some of the schools it is now possible to enforce the payment of fees.

Evangelistic work

One of the difficulties experienced in connexion with evangelistic work is that the people are so completely lacking in any sense of sin. The bad language which even the women and children use is terrible, but although they will own in a general way that they are all sinners, yet 'sin is thought nothing of.' The workers went to many Moslem villages, some of them previously unvisited, and as a rule found the women friendly, though now and again such remarks would be made to them as, 'We do not want you or your Book. We shall not listen. What you teach is not for us. We are different creatures altogether from you.'

Pastoral work

The reports concerning the congregations are not in all cases good, but at Nablous the Christians showed increased missionary zeal, and at one or two other stations contributions were made to the work of the C.M.S. in China and elsewhere. Besides the Christians connected with the Protestant Church there are, of course, many belonging to the Greek, Roman, Maronite and Jacobite Churches, with whom the C.M.S. missionaries and Bible-women come into contact. These people are said to be often grossly ignorant. One Roman Catholic woman when asked what Whit Sunday commemorates, replied, 'It is to remind us of Christ, like all the other feasts'; and another, a Greek Christian, defined the difference between her religion and that of the Mohammedans by saying, 'We eat pig's flesh and the Mohammedans do not!' Many of the poor women, too, wear charms to ward off the evil eye, etc., and are surprised when they are told that it is wrong to do so.

TURKISH ARABIA MISSION

Baghdad, which is in the Turkish Empire, is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans. Thousands of pilgrims flock to it from all parts of Persia, and in order to reach them the city was first occupied by a C.M.S. missionary in 1883. A hospital was opened in 1886. In 1898 the work, previously carried on in connexion with that in Persia, was constituted an independent Mission. Three years later Mosul, near the site of ancient Nineveh, was occupied.

Medical and educational work is carried on at both the above stations. The staff consists of one European clergyman, three laymen, two missionaries' wives, four women missionaries and sixteen native Christian teachers. Four of the above are doctors and two are trained nurses.

Death of Miss E. A. Lavy

A SAD loss has befallen the Turkish Arabia Mission by the death of Miss E. A. Lavy on October 20, 1910. She joined the Mission in 1905 and had just completed her first furlough. Because of the railway strike in France she and two lady friends who purposed to travel by the steamer Kurdistan arranged to embark at Manchester, though all the other passengers elected to join the boat at Marseilles. An accident befell the Kurdistan in the Manchester Ship Canal, but she was passed as seaworthy before she put to sea. One of the holds, however, was found to be leaking badly when the Scilly Islands were sighted in the early morning of October 20. Too late, the captain resolved to put back to Falmouth, for when sixty miles off the islands the ship foundered, and only two men were saved.

Reinforcement

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Percy Vincent Boyes, Islington College, L.Th., Durham University.

Medical work

Again, as last year, the report of the Turkish Arabia Mission may be summed up by saying that little more was possible than to endeavour to hold the ground already occupied. The medical mission at Baghdad attracted a large number of patients, some of them making a seven days' journey to reach it. Many different types were represented among them. Miss F. E. Anderton writes :—

Patients of varied types

There are the hardy Arabs who come in from the desert, and prefer to sleep anywhere but in a bed. Then we get the more domesticated type of Arab woman, who shrouds her face so closely when a male doctor is present that it is often difficult for Dr. Johnson to hear what she says. Then we have the Jewesses with their quaint head-dresses as well as garments ; these are often more exacting than the Moslems, but they are usually very grateful, and we have more than once received large gifts of sweets from some who have left the hospital. We also sometimes get Kurdish women from the mountains. They are a rougher type than the Arabs and less attractive. Then we have many Christians of the various Eastern Churches. It is curious to note that all these various types of patients possess one thing in common, and that is a profound belief in charms and superstitious practices. The Moslems, of course, wear portions of the Koran sewn up in various coverings and wrappings and suspended round the neck. It is quite a custom for the Christian women to deck their babies with charms to protect them from sickness, such as a yellow stone to keep them from having jaundice. A Moslem baby will often have a needle and a coin of some sort sewn into its garments to protect it from the evil eye.

Most of the male in-patients make such a short stay in the hospital and are so wild and lawless that what little impression is made on them by the teaching seems likely to be evanescent.* No in-patients were received at Mosul because of the absence of a European doctor, but out-patients were numerous and paid good attention to the evangelistic addresses.

Educational work

Educational work at Baghdad languished somewhat for want of a missionary to devote himself to it, but at Mosul the schools flourished and nearly 200 Mohammedan children were under instruction.

Evangelistic work

Little evangelistic work was possible, though there were abundant opportunities for it, and the book-shop at Baghdad had to be closed for need of a man to work it. During the holidays, however, some of the missionaries were able to undertake itinerations. Dr. G. W. Stanley had some interesting chats with attentive listeners in two holy cities of the Shiah sect, while Miss E. E. Martin when travelling among the Kurdish mountains was impressed with the religious zeal of the women, who, unlike other Moslem women, are diligent in repeating words of prayer, albeit they are couched in a language which they do not understand.

PERSIA MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was among the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians, and latterly among Mohammedans also. The Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian Mission also works partly within the Persian Kingdom. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and, finding the Mohammedans of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode at Julfa, and gathered round him some few Moslems and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, etc. In 1875 the Society adopted his work as one of its Missions. A medical missionary was sent out in 1879, and women were added to the staff in 1891. Kerman was occupied in 1897; Yezd in 1898; and Shiraz in 1900.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The four stations in the Mission (for Ispahan and Julfa, its suburb, may be regarded as one) are widely separated from each other, Ispahan being 200 miles from Yezd; Yezd 220 miles from Kerman; and Shiraz about 320 miles from Ispahan and 250 miles from each of the other stations. The isolation of the stations is enhanced by travelling being both slow and dangerous, owing to the country being infested with robbers.

Much of the work centres round the men's and women's hospitals at Ispahan, Yezd and Kerman. There is a boarding-school for Persian girls at Ispahan; Julfa has schools for Armenian boys and girls; and there are schools for Persian boys at Ispahan, Kerman and Yezd, and one for Parsi girls at the last named station. Women missionaries labour among the hospital patients and others, and during the holidays a little evangelistic work is accomplished in the villages.

The staff of the Mission consists of seven European clergymen, one native pastor, six laymen, thirteen missionaries' wives, and nineteen single women; nine of the above are doctors and eight are trained nurses. The native Christian lay agents number fifty.

Death of Bishop E. C. Stuart

THE retirement of Bishop E. C. Stuart from active service, which was recorded in last year's Report,* was shortly followed by his death, for on March 15, 1911, he passed away at Bengeo, Herts. He was accepted by the Society in 1850, and spent some twenty years in India. Then followed a brief period of work at the C.M. House, after which he went to New Zealand, where he was elected by the clergy and laity of the diocese of Waiapu to be their second bishop. He resigned his See in 1894 to join the Persia Mission, in which he worked for fifteen years with the same earnestness as had characterized him in India and New Zealand.†

Reinforcement

The Mission has been reinforced by Miss Annie Jane Gauntlett, a trained nurse. More recruits, however, are called for. Three men and a woman are said to be needed for the maintenance of existing work, while two doctors and a trained woman educationist are required if advantage is to be taken of the opportunities which present themselves.

The political situation

The year 1910 witnessed very little change in the political situation in Persia. Lawlessness and disorder were rife throughout the greater part of the country, and in the southern provinces the state of affairs became so serious that in October the British Government presented a Note at Teheran, insisting that if within the next three months the Persian Government was unable to restore order, a special police force should be created with the assistance of officers to be lent by the Indian Government. This led, however, to but little immediate improvement, and Dr. D. W. Carr, writing at the end of November, said, 'Between Ispahan and Shiraz the whole country is given over to anarchy. For many weeks hardly a single caravan has been able to pass along the roads; robbers having none to plunder have been looting villages, and the only post south for some weeks was a walking post, who went once a week down the Bakhtiari road to Ahwaz.' Dr. H. White, of Yezd, confirmed this report, and stated that 'every road, north, south, east and west, has been periodically held up, not by gangs, but by little armies of robbers from 100 to 800 strong.' One consequence of the dangerous condition of the roads was a great rise in prices, since the villagers were afraid of taking their produce to the towns for sale. It was difficult, too, for people living at a distance to visit the mission-hospitals, and it says much for the influence which the medical work has gained that many should have braved all the dangers of travel and literally dodged their way through in order to reach the English doctors. But while, in this respect, and also through the pre-occupation of the people with political subjects, there was some hindrance to missionary work, in other ways the changes of the past few years have conduced to the spread of the Gospel. At first, according to the Rev. Dr. S. G. Wilson, a missionary of the American Presbyterian Board at Tabriz, the Mohammedan mullahs assisted the democratic movement, and secured thereby a large influence in drafting the Constitution, which establishes Islam as the religion of Persia, and requires that the Shah must be of that belief. Nevertheless, the Constitution declares (this was opposed by the mullahs, but carried in spite of them) that all Persians enjoy equal rights before the civil law. No man can be arrested and no house entered without legal warrant, and taxes can only be imposed by a vote of the National Assembly. There is a greater measure of religious freedom and less bigotry than formerly. The power of the mullahs, however, is still considerable, and this, together with their unwillingness to relinquish their very lucrative position, and the difficulty of finding reliable men to carry out proposed remedies of abuses, renders the task of the would-be reformers in Persia no light one.*

Greater religious freedom

One point stands out very clearly in connexion with the present position in Persia, and that is that the people are awakening to the benefits of education. It is not only the missionaries who are engaged in the C.M.S. school work who lay stress upon this fact; some of the doctors are equally emphatic. Dr. Emmeline M. Stuart wrote in November from Ispahan:—

> Education is the great need of this land, and the people themselves are waking up to demand it for their daughters as well as for their sons. They have got to know and trust us through our medical work, and would prefer to send their children to us if we could give them the sort of education they want. But if we fail them now they will go elsewhere. Only last week a Roman Catholic school for boys was opened in Ispahan and is being largely attended. Yet with properly trained English teachers and sufficient funds, we could easily hold our own here, as the American missionaries do in Teheran. Our medical missions have removed Mohammedan prejudices and opened the doors to let educational missionaries in, but unless these come—and come soon—the doors will again be closed and our day of opportunity have passed in Persia.

The people demand education

The Roman Catholics, as intimated by Dr. Emmeline Stuart, have grasped the needs of the situation, and opened a large high school in a prominent part of Ispahan, but they give no Christian teaching there, and it is said that the Koran is taught in the school as an Arabic lesson. Happily the opening of this school did not adversely affect the attendance at the C.M.S. Boys' School in Ispahan, for it kept up its numbers well. Among the new pupils were four young fellows sent by the haji mentioned in last year's Report * as having offered to provide the necessary equipment for a school and a contribution towards the salary of a teacher, if only the Mission would send a man; that offer had to be refused; nevertheless the school has been opened, but with a Mohammedan instead of a Christian teacher! The boys' school at Shiraz, the only remaining branch of work there, has been closed. The Boarding-school for Persian girls, which is carried on at the women's hospital, Ispahan, had eighteen pupils, and many others were anxious to be admitted. Two of the elder girls took up work in connexion with the Mission, one as a hospital assistant and the other as a pupil teacher. Some of the girls of the Armenian Girls' School at Julfa, with the object of helping others, formed themselves into a 'One and One' Band, from which teachers were found for the Sunday-school. There were several admissions into the School for Parsi girls at Yezd, which now has nearly fifty pupils in regular attendance.

A good opportunity lost

The number of people applying for treatment at the mission-hospitals at Ispahan, Yezd and Kerman, and at their branch dispensaries was but little affected by the troubles in the land, for while some patients were kept away by the dangers of travel, there were many more cases of gunshot wounds. In the women's hospital at Ispahan as many operations were performed during the first six months of 1910 as during the whole of the previous year, while frequently the seventy beds were called on to accommodate eighty patients, and once as many as ninety-five. At Kerman the number of beds locally supported has risen from three in 1909 to eight, notwithstanding the transference to Shiraz of the Governor who used to support two; and the hospital fees, which in 1905 amounted to one twenty-eighth of the total expenses and in 1909 to one-sixth, were expected to amount to nearly one-half of them during the year under review. It was not easy to estimate how far the Gospel message was grasped by the patients, and Dr. Winifred A. Westlake says that the old women do not expect to remember from one day to the next what has been taught them, and frequently remark, 'We have no understanding.' Besides treating those who visited the hospitals and dispensaries something was done to carry the benefits of medical missions to others. Dr. H. White, while taking his summer holiday in Dehbala was visited by more than 1,000 patients from the villages around, and Dr. H. T. Marrable made a six weeks' itineration in the summer quarters of the Bakhtiaris,* seeing 1,400 patients during the time, and performing several minor operations. At one village where he stayed for ten days the schoolmaster bought several copies of St. Luke's Gospel for use as a reading-book by his scholars; his reason for making the purchase was not that he desired to set Christianity before the boys, but that the books were better printed, better bound and cheaper than any that the school possessed. A more ambitious tour was undertaken by Dr. Carr, who spent the best part of three months investigating the openings in Persian Arabistan, a tract of country lying to the south-west of Ispahan. At almost every place which he visited he was earnestly entreated to stay among the people.†

The first Christian church in Ispahan in modern times, built, largely through the liberality of the family of the late Archdeacon S. Williams, of Waiapu, New Zealand, in the grounds of the hospital, was dedicated by the late Bishop E. C. Stuart on Easter Eve, March 26, 1910, shortly before he left the country.‡ At the Holy

* The Bakhtiaris are not bigoted Mohammedans like the majority of the people of Persia. Miss E. F. Phillips, a trained nurse, who spent three weeks among them in 1910, says that during the whole of that period she never saw a mullah. The Bakhtiari women are 'much freer than the women in the towns and are allowed to ride about and visit their friends, and also personally to superintend the management of their own homes.'

In visiting among the women the workers almost always had a friendly reception, but there was a good deal of indifference to the Gospel message, and much apathy concerning the need of a Saviour was shown. Perhaps this may partly be explained by the opinion which is entertained that the needs of Christians and Mohammedans differ materially. One woman remarked to a missionary during the Ramadan fast, 'We must not eat or drink anything during the day; God would not be pleased if we did. Of course, it does not matter for you, because God has a different religion for you and for us.' In the villages as well as the towns little difficulty was experienced in gaining a hearing, especially where any old hospital patients resided. The openings in the country districts appear to be great, as may be gauged from the fact that at one place, where most of the people are sayyids, one of the chief men obtained quarters for the missionaries, and one day took them to see a house which he was building, and told them that he was consulting them about it in the hope that another year they would come and occupy it. Nevertheless, the work was often uphill, by reason not only of the bigotry of the Mohammedans, but also of the ignorance of the Parsis. Miss A. M. Macklin mentions a certain village where she had been teaching a few Parsi women. On making inquiry after her holiday as to when she should resume her visits, she was told that the women had gone to the priest's house to get ready for heaven, since they were all advancing in years, and might die at any time; 'would she, therefore, kindly wait a few weeks?'

INDIA

Causes of unrest

In a series of articles on the unrest in India, by Mr. Valentine Chirol, which appeared in the Times in the summer of 1910, a variety of causes were enumerated as having contributed to that prominent feature in the recent political outlook of the Peninsula. Among them were the rise in prices in the last decade; plague, which in the course of fourteen years has carried off more than 6,000,000 people, and which in the first six months of the year 1910 was responsible for more than twice as many deaths as in the whole of 1909 (to which may perhaps be added an increase in 1909 as compared with the previous year of 900,000 in the number of deaths from malarial fever); visitations of famine; the fiscal restraints placed upon India by the Imperial Government; the treatment of British Indians in South Africa; the lessened contact between the Anglo-Indian official and the native population; the lowering of the prestige of our arms by the South African war; and the Russo-Japanese war, which was regarded as a blow dealt to the ascendancy of Europe over Asia. To this long list was added, and Mr. Chirol gave it the first place, the system of education which the Imperial Government has introduced into the country, and which 'tends to create a semi-educated proletariat, unemployed and largely unemployable, and, on the other hand, even where failure is less complete, to produce dangerous hybrids, more or less superficially imbued with Western ideas, and at the same time more or less completely divorced from the realities of Indian life.' Back of all these, and regarded as after all the main cause of the unrest, lies the desire of Brahmanism to reassert its authority. Centuries ago Brahmanism, after submitting to the inevitable in the victory of Buddhism for a long period, again lifted its head and regained supremacy. The British rule has as a system necessarily though indirectly undermined Brahmanism. But that proud aristocracy has not given up in despair, and it shows a disposition to reassert itself. Its hand may not be visible very apparently, but its subtlety knows how to use the ignorance and fervour of young students for its own purposes.

The Government and religious education

Some of the statements in the articles have been controverted, and some of the deductions questioned. For example, Mr. Chirol arrived at the conclusion that a moral and religious element must be somehow woven into ordinary education if loyal and honourable citizens for the welfare of the State are to be raised up, but his only way of attaining this end is for the Government to arrange that all the diverse phases of religious belief in India should be taught in its schools and colleges by men whom it has chosen or approved. This however, as Dr. Miller, the honorary principal of the Madras Christian College, points out, would be the very antithesis of that strict religious neutrality which is a fundamental principle of Indian administration; and if the step were not vetoed on principle the practical difficulties would be insuperable. On the other hand, it is contended that it would be virtually impossible for the Government, as some would advocate, to provide that the Bible shall be taught in all its schools, not only on account of the difficulty concerning religious neutrality, but also because the men to impart such teaching are not available. Most Government schools are staffed entirely by Mohammedan and Hindu masters, and even were they willing to teach Christianity, there are but few of them qualified by any conviction of its truth to give effective instruction about it.

Value of mission-colleges and schools

But while it would appear to be out of the question for the Government to introduce religious education into the institutions under its control, there can be no doubt as to the usefulness, even from the merely political point of view, of the work accomplished in colleges and schools where such is given. The Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite, the principal of St. John's College, Agra, writes on this head as follows :—

> The character of 'Young India' is still in the making, and will be so for some time. Much depends upon mission-colleges, if the rising generation of students is to be kept untainted by the bitter, reactionary, anti-British spirit which is abroad, and to be brought up so as to be loyal citizens and convinced advocates and supporters of British rule in India. They must have opportunities of personally coming into contact with large-minded and warm-hearted Europeans, and of learning their aims and aspirations for the future of India. The best preventive of the growth of sedition and racial feeling is for Indians to mix freely with Europeans, and thus to learn that brother-Aryans can agree in working for a common cause—the regeneration of India—and that there is no religion like that of Christianity for promoting the 'brotherhood of man,' without which Nationalism in India must ever remain an unrealized ideal. No doubt it is undesirable that mission-colleges should become identified with politics; but in India politics will ever be intimately identified with religion, and the present movement emphasizes the inadequacy of either of the great prevailing systems to meet the situation, while Christianity seems to be waiting for the very opportunity which has arisen.

Testimony as to the value of mission-schools has been borne by others besides those who are actually working in them. The Governor of Madras, Sir Arthur Lawley, said in the autumn that he looked upon missionaries in India as the most stalwart and valuable allies of the Government in education; and a Hindu is quoted by Mr. J. N. Farquhar, of Calcutta, as saying, 'I fear young men in India are losing faith in God: but we must have it, if the new generation are to be saved from anarchism and sedition. I was brought up myself in the Duff College, Calcutta, and when my boys are old enough I mean to send them to a Christian mission-college. We must have faith in a personal God; the impersonal God of our religion is of no use.' As to the utility of mission-schools as a means of winning souls for Christ, evidence is furnished in the detailed accounts of the various Missions in India which follow this chapter.*

'We must have faith in a personal God'

* Some opinions concerning the bearing of education on the unrest will be found in the C.M. Rev., June, 1910, p. 342; Aug., p. 490; March, 1911, p. 136; Gaz., Aug., 1910, p. 241.

A spirit of ultra-patriotism

Missionary work in India is undoubtedly affected in some degree by the unrest, since in certain parts there exists an unreasoning racial hatred which expresses itself in crime and outrage, while among the law-abiding section of the community there is a spirit of ultra-patriotism which makes men look askance at Christianity as a foreign religion. The Rev. J. S. C. Bannerjee, an Indian missionary in the United Provinces, deals with this point in his annual letter. He writes :—

> Our educated and advanced classes, in spite of disappointment, still centre their hopes for the regeneration of India round more political rights, educational and commercial advancement, and the revival of old Hinduism. Although they are convinced of the truth of Christianity and see its wonderful power, yet they would not have it because they cannot dissociate it from the foreigners. Only the other day, when I was travelling with a respectable Hindu—a graduate of the University, educated in the Central Hindu College, Benares—I tried to present before him the life of Christ and His power as manifested in the elevation of the world. He exclaimed, 'Yes, it is wonderful that a meek and lowly Man like Jesus should exercise so powerful an influence on the world.' And he further added, 'Whether India would accept Christ or not, it must admit the great benefits that Christianity has conferred upon it in giving education to its millions and in elevating thousands from the depressed class.' He attributed this success to a great extent to the organizing capability of Europe, yet showed a strange spirit of suspicion when he said, 'But have not the English people their own self-interest in their effort to evangelize India ? The number of votaries they gain for Christianity, do not they gain in them so many subjects who would be loyal to the British Raj ?'

After giving another instance of somewhat the same character Mr. Bannerjee adds, 'these and many other cases with which we meet from time to time clearly show that the greatest barrier to the progress of the Gospel in this land is its association with foreigners and the British Raj.'*

Indigenous missionary societies

Whether or no Mr. Bannerjee is correct in the conclusion which he draws, viz., that the employment of Indian rather than European missionaries is to be sought, the progress of the various indigenous missionary societies should be watched with interest and prayer. There are several of these. Some of them, such as the Travancore and Cochin Native Church Missionary Society and the Missionary Association connected with Zion Church, Madras,† are more or less 'home missions,' in that they aim at evangelizing the people close at hand and speaking the same vernacular ; but there are also two Indian 'foreign' missionary societies. The Indian Missionary Society of Tinnevelly works in the Manukota Taluq, in the Nizam's Dominions, and also among the Pulayars, a Hill tribe of the Western Ghats, and in the year ending March, 1910, had an income of Rs 10,857, which exceeded by Rs 2,953 that of the previous year. The staff consists of seven missionaries from Tinnevelly, and seventeen Telugu agents. As a result of the society's work there are in the Nizam's Dominions 242 baptized converts and more than 900 catechumens in twenty-eight different villages, whose changed lives have made a great impression upon the caste people; while sixty-six of the Pulayars have been baptized, more than 100 have been admitted to the catechumenate, and sixteen candidates were confirmed by the Bishop of Tinnevelly in 1910. A series of special services were arranged at Srivaigundam by the society in the autumn with the object of reaching English-speaking Indians—Government officials, landowners, etc.* The income of the National Missionary Society of India, of which Rajah Sir Harnam Singh is President, is about Rs 4,500, almost the whole sum being contributed by Indians. Its agents, eleven missionaries and the same number of helpers, work in the Punjab, the United Provinces and Western India, one district in the Bombay Presidency being assigned to the Mar Thoma Syrian Church as its sphere.† There appears to be a great future before these organizations, for many Indian Christian students are beginning to realize the claims of their unevangelized fellow countrymen. The Rev. G. H. Cranswick, of the Noble College, Masulipatam, referring to the annual conference of Christian students from the Telugu Country, which was held at Samalkot in October, says :—

The National Missionary Society of India

> Its great feature was conviction of sin and assurance of salvation and forgiveness. Then followed the choice of a life work, with special reference to the claim of India upon her own Christian sons. Not a few of the lives of the 100 young men there were dedicated to Christ for India, and many for the Telugu Country. The national feeling in its true aspect has at last taken hold of our Christian students, and its motto is, 'India for Christ.' Hitherto it has been disheartening to note how many educated Indian Christians have devoted all their attention to the earning of the rupee, and have forgotten all about the desperate needs of their native land, and have never remembered that God only made them Christians for one purpose, viz., that they might 'spend and be spent' for Him. But we believe a new spirit has come and that the burden of India is at last being laid on her own sons.‡

Another indigenous organization, viz., the Home Missionary Society for India, was formed some three years ago by five earnest Christian girls, Eurasians and Anglo-Indians, who were spending their holidays on the Nilgiris, and now has a membership of 370. The object of the society is to rouse the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian community to a direct and responsible share in the evangelization of India, (1) by ministering to the social and spiritual needs of the neglected sections of the domiciled community, and (2) by training and supplying workers from the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian community to missionary societies which are ministering to the natives of India, keeping always in view the aim of sending out their own workers.

The healthy life of the organizations referred to is of itself a proof of the progress which has been made by Christianity in the land, and other evidence on the point can be adduced in a variety of forms. The help given by Anglo-Indians, as in Agra, where during the year under review prominent officials presided over Christian lectures to students,* indicates their opinion as to the need for rather than the success of missionary work, but testimonies as to the latter have lately been borne by influential men. Thus the Hon. Sir Narayan G. Chardavarkar, speaking at a meeting in Bombay on the 'Kingdom of Christ and the Spirit of the Age,' said :—

Independent testimonies

> Let me tell you what I consider the greatest miracle of the present day. It is this : that to this great country, with its over 300 millions of people, there should come from a little island, unknown even by name to our forefathers, many thousand miles distant from our shores, and with a population of but fifty to sixty millions, a message so full of spiritual life and strength as the Gospel of Christ. This surely is a miracle, if ever there was one. And this message has not only come, but it is finding a response in our hearts. The process of the conversion of India to Christ may not be going on as rapidly as you hope, or in exactly the manner that you hope ; but nevertheless, I say, India is being converted; the ideas that lie at the heart of the Gospel of the Christ are slowly, but surely, permeating every part of Hindu society and modifying every phase of Hindu thought.

Even the enemies of the Gospel are forced to acknowledge that Christianity is a force with which they have to reckon. A Brahman in the Punjab lately affirmed that the lower classes 'are slipping off our hands and becoming Christians,' and partly, doubtless, for this reason the Hindu community is awakening to its duty towards these people whom it has hitherto despised, so that in Bombay and South India may be witnessed 'the almost incredible spectacle of Brahman leaders of reform mixing freely and even eating with the "untouchables."' † There are many other signs of the influence which the Gospel has exercised and is exercising in India. It is said that the Arya Samaj, now so bitter a foe of Christianity, and the other reforming societies within the pale of Hinduism, in large measure owe their origin to the preaching of the Gospel—'they are the indirect effect Christianity has produced on the thoughtful among the people of the country.' The Sermon on the Mount and the 'moral beauty and gentleness and holiness of the character and teaching of our Lord,' which, rather than any conviction of sin, have been the means, so the Rev. W. E. S. Holland says, of leading the best-known Indian converts to Christ, have made a wide and deep impression on the peoples of India and have wrought a vast change in many who have not yet openly avowed themselves as Christians. This was shown during the All India Convention of Religions which was held at Allahabad in January, 1911, and was attended by 400 delegates, assembled from all parts of India. Each meeting was opened with prayer and some thirty-six half-hour papers were read, but there was no discussion. Mr. Holland writes :—

'The Christian contribution stood out by itself'

> The one point on which there seems to be general agreement is that the Christian contribution stood out by itself. Hindus acknowledge this as definitely as we felt it. During the Sanscrit prayer at the opening of the first meeting, every one was talking and chatting. The utter strangeness of the conception of united prayer to the greater part of the audience was only less conspicuous than the lack of reverence which so shocks and distresses and surprises one on first arrival in India. And this Sanscrit prayer on its conclusion was applauded ! Then followed an Indian clergyman, vice-principal of our Divinity School, who quietly asked that there should be no applause after his prayer. The one or two Christians on the platform rose ; all on the platform followed their example ; and before the first collect was half over the whole audience was standing in reverent silence. The contrast was dramatic, the Christian had brought us into the felt presence of God.
> So it was all through. Except when now and again an orator among the non-Christians was speaking there was hardly any attempt to listen to the papers. The audience was listless and restless, chatting and moving about ; partly because so many of the papers were unsuitably written and badly delivered, partly because the proceedings were prolonged to weariness. But the moment a Christian speaker got up, the audience was all attention.
> The effect of the Rev. C. F. Andrews's paper was extraordinary. He spoke with such evident love that he could say without arousing a tinge of resentment such things as, ' We cannot place Christ among the prophets, as one of them ; for He is God of God, the very God Incarnate. Them we admire, Him we worship.'

Mr. Holland concludes his account of the convention by quoting the words of its Hindu secretary—' The one thing we could not have dispensed with was the Christian contribution.'

Disabilities of Christians

But while, as more than one missionary points out, Christians occupy an improved position among Hindus, and are not looked down on as in years gone by, and while there are many places where a Christian man is more acceptable in secular employment than a non-Christian, yet in some parts of India the Christians suffer many disabilities. In the Mysore State a convert to Christianity is as a civilian dead or an ' outlaw.' If he is a member of a joint-family he is disqualified from claiming any share in the property ; a right which he would not forfeit by committing a crime and being sentenced for murder he does forfeit by his baptism. Harder still, if he has children dependent on him, he is declared unfit to be their guardian. Efforts have been made to obtain the redress of these grievances, but in the Mysore State the Government is practically in the hands of educated Brahmans, and when a member of the Legislative Council asked leave to bring forward a measure giving to converts rights of property but not of guardianship, leave was refused by a vote of nine to six.*

illustrations of the religions of the peoples of India which must serve to impress the thoughful Christian with a deep sense of their need of the Gospel. They depict heathen festivals such as the Jagganath festival at Puri, now, however, shorn of much of its pristine glory ;* the bullock festival at Aurungabad, when those animals are driven in procession first to the temple of the monkey-god, where their drivers worship, and then to the shrine of the cholera goddess ;† the Garmukteswar mela on the Ganges, marked in November by a panic due to a statement that the British Government had arranged to drown all the pilgrims by suddenly causing the waters of the river to rise ;‡ the festival of Saraswati, the goddess of learning, on the day sacred to whom everything with which one performs any art or craft must be laid down—his tools by the artisan, his pen by the writer, his shears by the barber ; and the Durga festival, during which animal sacrifices are offered.§ They show also the superstitions of heathen worship, such as that offered to a man in South India known as the 'Chilli god,' because of his power to eat nearly 1 lb. of chillies at a time ;‖ and to countless idols at Benares,¶ the representations of traditional gods and goddesses, in whose existence even educated students sometimes believe, and who, they affirm, have actually been seen by living people ! In the South of India not only do the Dravidians worship many sanguinary demons, but they even copy the appalling characteristics attributed to them. As concerning the Mohammedans, the missionaries speak of the Brahuis of Kohat as worshipping pirs or saints at whose tombs animals are killed and prayers offered, while at night the women take lighted lamps and place them before the shrines ; and describe an absence of all sense of sin and the prevalence of a careless indifference which thinks that when the Kalma has been repeated, nothing more is required. A sad light on these non-Christian religions is thrown by a passage in the annual letter of Dr. A. H. Browne, of Amritsar, in which he refers to the treatment of women as evidenced by some of the cases which came under his notice. He writes :—

Heathen festivals

Worship of Mohammedan saints

Cruelty to wives

> One was that of a Hindu wife eleven years of age, with no relatives living except her husband and his family. The little one came alone to the mission-hospital among the out-patients for treatment. She was so ill that we at once asked who was with her, and this led to our hearing that the child had been turned out of her husband's home by his mother—with the father's consent—on account of her illness, and forbidden ever to return.
> Another case was that of a young Mohammedan woman about twenty-five years of age. She lost her sight through neglected disease, and her husband turned his blind wife out of doors—discarded. Her old mother brought her to us and the case has done excellently under daily treatment.††

BENGAL MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in South India in the eighteenth century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the death of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813 no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist missionary, and his companions had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814 by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. His successors have been: Bishops Heber (1822), James (1826), Turner (1829), Daniel Wilson (1832), Cotton (1858), Milman (1867), Johnson (1876), Welldon (1898), Copleston (1902).

Before India was opened to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1819; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhagalpur in 1850. Work among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, was begun at Hiranpur in 1860; Taljhari was occupied in 1862; Godda in 1872; and Bhagaya and Barharwa in 1878.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Bengal Mission is divided into four sections:—

I. In Calcutta and Burdwan, though the cities are 100 miles apart, the Indian Christians of the C.M.S. are under the same District Church Council.

In Calcutta itself there are a number of educational institutions, including a divinity school, a college, high schools for boys, and a boarding-school for Christian girls. Hostels are maintained in connexion with some of these. Evangelistic work is carried on in several languages both in the city and district, and in Bengali at Burdwan and in its villages.

II. In the Nadiya district, with its large village population, Krishnagar, Chupra, Doyabari (Ranaghat), Bollobhpur and Santirajpur are occupied by British missionaries. The last named is a centre from which itinerating work is maintained.

A training school and boys high school are found at Krishnagar, and a Christian boys' boarding and industrial school at Chupra, besides a number of vernacular schools at various places, while at Bollobhpur there is an orphanage for Christian girls. There are also a couple of hostels. A medical mission is carried on at Doyabari.

III. Work is carried on among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe, in Santalia, which lies in the Rajmahal hills, south of the Ganges, and also in a Colony in British Bhutan, (see Plate 8) north of the river. The pastoral care of the Christians is entrusted almost entirely to clergy of their own race. The Society has boarding-schools for boys at Taljhari and Godda and one for girls at Barharwa. At Godda there is also a hostel for Santals.

IV. At Bhagalpur, in the province of Behar, the institutions include a high school and Christian hostel for boys, a middle vernacular school for boys and girls, a boarding-school for Christian girls, a boys' orphanage, a dispensary and a leper asylum, while at Jamalpur there is the Fraser Hostel for Indian Christian apprentices. A band of evangelists itinerates in the extensive district.

The women's work, save in Santalia, is mainly in the hands of missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S.

There are twenty-five European clergymen engaged in the Mission, five laymen, nineteen wives of missionaries, and eight single women. Three of the above are doctors, and one is a trained nurse. The Indian workers consist of twenty-six clergymen and 413 Christian lay agents.

The following are the members of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee:

The Bishop of Calcutta, Dr. P. N. Bose, Mr. W. R. C. Gourlay, Hon. Justice Caspersz, Hon. E. P. Chapman, Mr. J. C. Dutt, Mr. F. G. Hawkins, Mr. W. A. A. Wood, Revs. J. A. Cullen, Dr. C. G. Monro and E. T. Sandys (Secretary).

Deaths of the Revs. F. Gmelin and B. N. Hansda

THE death of the Rev. F. Gmelin, who worked in the Mission as a layman for eleven years from 1860, and as a clergyman for another eleven years, occurred at Oxford on December 29, 1910.

A few days before Mr. Gmelin, on December 19, the Rev. B. N. Hansda passed away at Chuchi, in Santalia. He was one of the first three Santals admitted to deacons' orders. The death of the Rev. Dr. R. Elliott has already been referred to in the chapter on Home Operations.*

Reinforcements

Three recruits have joined the Mission, viz., the Rev. Alec Bowman Johnston, B.A., St. John's College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of St. Anne's, Bermondsey; Miss Amy Dorothy Chandler, Girton College, Cambridge, and B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, trained at The Willows; and Miss Ethel Good, M.B., B.S., Melbourne University, of the Victoria C.M.A., a sister of Miss Emily Good, of the East Africa Mission. The names of the Revs. Rakhal Chandra Biswas, Abinash Chandra Khan and Chaitan Hebron, who have been admitted to deacons' orders by the Bishop of Calcutta, have been added to the list of Indian clergymen connected with the C.M.S. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. H. M. Moore.

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN

OWING to the absence of some of the missionaries on furlough it was difficult to do more than keep the evangelistic work in Calcutta 'going.' The Rev. E. Cannon, who was in charge of the work among the Bengalis, had also to act as chairman of the Calcutta Church Council, while the Rev. B. Grundy, who was originally appointed to assist another missionary in the Hindi Mission, had sole charge of that, and was responsible also after the spring of 1910 for the Mohammedan Mission at Kidderpore and the work at Howrah. Unhappily, too, the character of certain agents employed in the Mission was not such as to enable them to supply the lack of European missionaries, and one or two had to be dismissed for moral offences. Every week a copy of the Epiphany, a magazine issued by the Oxford Mission in Calcutta, was distributed to about 100 of the leading gentry of Burdwan, together with a cyclostyled letter dealing with some aspect of Christianity. Some of these men were evidently interested in the Gospel, and at Mankar, twenty-five miles north of Burdwan, several Hindus made contributions towards the building of a permanent church. It is said that in that small town, containing 10,000 people, many of the Hindu temples have fallen into ruins without any effort being made to repair them, and that whereas a few years ago there were more than 200 images of Durga in the place, now they are very few in number. It may be, however, that these facts are due not to any progress of Christianity, but to indifference concerning matters of religion. But few baptisms are reported. Thirteen adults, the fruit of the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. missionaries, were received into the visible Church at Barnagore, and in Calcutta two lepers, a Hindu girl first met with in a hospital and a son of a Brahmo missionary. Many of the relatives of the last named turned against him, but he wrote to his mother: 'Do not think that your son is dead, but really alive in Jesus Christ. He will never forget your loving kindness, but will help you and honour you as long as he lives, and will pray to God to bring you to Christ.' An old Brahmo missionary in Calcutta, one of the immediate followers of the late Keshub Chunder Sen, confesses the divinity of Christ, and says that he is a Christian, but he objects to certain expressions in the baptismal service, and therefore, and not because he has any other grounds for hesitation, holds back from baptism.

Baptisms

A Brahmo missionary confesses the divinity of Christ

There is great need for prayer in behalf of the Christians in Calcutta, as indeed for those all the world over. Mr. Cannon describes the converts as lacking in spiritual life, engrossed in worldly affairs, slow to contribute towards the support of their pastors and deficient in aggressive efforts to win others; and the Rev. J. P. N. Biswas, of Trinity Church, writes of his flock, 'They have not shown any zeal for the uplifting of their own spiritual lives; the same deadness to spiritual things is still seen among them.'

Pastoral work

Eight students of the College at Calcutta, which for financial reasons is about to be closed, sat for the intermediate examination in Arts, and four of them passed—a considerably larger percentage than was obtained by the whole body of candidates. About thirty-five men attended the Bible-lessons given at the hostel which is connected with the college, some two-thirds of them being Hindus. Several of the number appeared to be genuine and a few anxious in their search for truth. The Boys' Boarding-school was crowded, and again and again lads had to be refused admission owing to want of room. Four boys were sent up for the matriculation examination of the Calcutta University, and all of them not only passed, but passed in the first division. In athletics, too, the school did well, carrying off the challenge cup for the best athlete, which is open for competition to all schools in Bengal. The year under review was a red-letter year also in that some of the lads engaged in direct evangelistic work. A difficulty in the way of this has been that the boys have so little real leisure during term, so the principal, the Rev. A. F. Ealand, thought that he would try the experiment of utilizing the holidays. He writes:—

Educational work

The College

Boys' Boarding-school

> Inspired by the noble example of the Corean Church, some ten boys resolved to give up fourteen days of their month's holiday and to accompany me to the Nadiya district. There, all living and sleeping together as Christian brothers, the principal was forgotten in the friend. Day by day, in groups of twos and threes, we went into the villages, visited schools and showed the magic-lantern. We found sympathy and help from our Christian brethren, attentive audiences on the part of the non-Christians, and much blessing to ourselves. The boys learnt the joy and interest of the work, also the hardships and disappointments. They were keen and enthusiastic all the time, and made light of difficulties.*

Girls' Boarding-school

The Girls' Boarding-school, also in Calcutta, suffered a good deal from sickness in the early part of 1910. One of the students living in the hostel and attending the lectures at the Bethune College passed the matriculation examination in the second division.

II. THE NADIYA DISTRICT

Medical work

THE prevalence of malaria caused the number of in-patients and of visits of out-patients at Doyabari (Ranaghat) to be larger than in 1909. In the villages, moreover, twenty-eight of which were visited by Dr. G. B. Archer, many persons received medical treatment, 300 gospels were sold in six weeks, and the people listened attentively at the meetings, especially to the addresses which were illustrated by lantern slides. A former patient became an inquirer, and another was baptized with his wife in Calcutta. About 18,000 visits of out-patients were recorded at Santirajpur.†

A good account is given of the young Brahman, Luke, whose baptism at Doyabari was recorded in last year's Report, ‡ and other of the converts at that station led consistent lives, while an 'increasing steadiness, at times verging on stick-in-the-muddiness,' the Rev. Dr. C. G. Monro says, was shown by them. On the other hand, the Rev. E. T. Noakes has to repeat the lament which has often before been made as to the lack of independence among the Christians of the Nadiya district. Trouble continued to be felt in connexion with the proselytizing efforts of the Roman Catholics.§ All the low-caste people who were baptized at Damukhdia, in the Santirajpur district, a few years ago have unhappily reverted to Heathenism.

A missionary of another society wrote in high terms of a former student at the Training School at Krishnagar who is now working in a school under his superintendence, saying, 'Your school is doing no mean service for the Kingdom if it is turning out such young men as he.' Three of the five High School boys who entered for the matriculation examination passed in the first division, and good results were obtained in the primary examinations also. As a result of the industrial instruction given at the Boys' Boarding-school at Chupra, at least thirty Christian boys are now earning their living elsewhere. The girls' school at Krishnagar was hopeful, and the Gospel was carried by the pupils to many zenanas.

There has been a great falling off in the number of missionaries in the Nadiya district engaged exclusively in evangelistic work; at one time there were ten, now there are only three, and the number of Indian agents has also decreased. This unhappily means the loss of many opportunities of which the enemies of the Gospel are not slow to avail themselves.* The people as a rule were friendly and attentive to the preachers, and an incident occurred at Murutia, in the Santirajpur district, which appears to indicate that the work there has made some impression. The Rev. E. C. Smith says :—

> A master in the mission-school at Murutia died in August. There are only six Christians in the village, all told. Where one caste and one religion will not help another, you will understand that in a place such as this the burying of any one is not easy. At 6 a.m. we received the news, and in three-quarters of an hour I had reached Murutia on horseback. Nothing had been done though the man had been dead twelve hours. The catechist and myself began digging. Mohammedan neighbours came to watch and were not long in finding out that we were not much good at digging (I can't manage the Indian spade). Boldly one Mohammedan took a turn. Then they proposed that all of them should take a turn in case their community might object. This help was most kind and most noteworthy.

Friendly Moslems

There is 'no guru like Jesus'

A number of men were met with who said that they no longer worshipped idols and that there is 'no guru like Jesus,' but who were kept back from embracing Christianity by fear of persecution. The Rev. F. N. Didsbury gives details of some cases. He writes :—

> The head-master of the local high school, losing faith in Hinduism, joined the Brahmo Samaj, and was much persecuted in consequence. He reads the Bible and has studied Church History somewhat. His chief difficulty is about the Person of Jesus Christ; hence, taking Row's dictum that the Resurrection is the key to the position, we looked at that great event from every point of view, until he agreed that if the Resurrection be true, Jesus must be more than the Brahmos acknowledge, viz., a good man. Next came profane testimony to that event, and at last the light seemed to come. Much he has given up already, but baptism would mean too much for him in his position. The second case is similar. The man, an old grandfather, is a devout Mussulman, who in his youth made the prescribed pilgrimage to Mecca. He is most religious. He affirms a real belief in Jesus as his Saviour, but he is dependent on his grown-up sons and fears to be baptized lest he should be turned out, for all the sons and their families live in adjoining houses in the same block. One of his sons is equally earnest, sells us thatching grass cheaply for the work's sake, has given two contributions to our new Church fund, reads the Gospels, and, in short, is a Christian. Long have we pleaded with him to come out boldly on the Lord's side, and still he is unbaptized. The greatest argument was cholera. His wife and five children were attacked one Saturday while we were in camp; on Sunday one of the twins died; on Monday another child. That day we happened to return to Kushtia, and, learning the news, we took some medicine round, and prayed in Jesus Christ's name (devoutly did he respond 'Amin'). And so with much prayer, good medicines and some nourishing soup, etc., we nursed the others back to life and health. Nothing more was necessary; the whole family, or rather group of families, saw the power of our prayer-answering God, and really would have been baptized had not fear of man kept them back.*

Baptisms

Some inquirers (Brahmans) caused disappointment by their frequent changes of front; others would be baptized but for the influence of their wives, for whom, alas! but little is done. A Mohammedan woman and a boy, the son of a convert of 1907, were baptized at Santirajpur.

III. SANTALIA

Pastoral work

Semi-centennial of the Santal Mission

THE semi-centennial of the Santal Mission was celebrated on the western side of the Mission by eight days of special services at Godda, at the conclusion of which many of the Christians testified to help received and a few Heathen openly confessed that they had accepted Christ as their Saviour. The progress in that part of Santalia has been greater than the statistics imply,† for a large number of converts have migrated during the last twenty years to the Santal Colony, and consequently are not recorded in the figures for Godda. A few cases calling for the exercise of discipline occurred during the year, chiefly among Hindus and Paharis.

Evangelistic work

A number of adults were baptized in the Taljhari district, sixteen persons being admitted into the visible Church on one day in a village called Kunjbona;‡ and forty-one adults were baptized in the Godda district. In the latter part of the Mission thirty-nine persons in one village were nearly ready for baptism, and a request for a resident teacher was received from another village where twenty persons were anxious to put themselves under instruction.

Educational work

Divinity Class

Girls' Boarding-school

Three men read for priests' orders and one for deacons' orders in the Divinity Class at Taljhari. Some opposition was shown to the institution of fees at the Boys' Boarding-school at that station, and one class left in a body, but their places were easily filled up. One lad gained a middle vernacular scholarship, and another an upper primary scholarship, and somewhat similar successes were gained by boys of the Boarding-school at Godda. Twenty-one of the Taljhari boys received baptism during the year, as did two of the pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school at Barharwa. Two of the youths who were under instruction for baptism at Baca are old mission schoolboys in that village.

Literary work

Canon F. T. Cole revised a Book of Selected Texts in Santali and the Pahari hymn-book, and made some progress with an Introduction to the Books of the Bible.

IV. BEHAR

Educational work

THE number of boys in the High School at Bhagalpur increased greatly, and the inspector's report stated that 'the influence of the school in the development of character is greater than in any other school in the division.' As a result of an agitation by the Arya Samaj the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal issued an order that no more children were to be sent by the Government to missionary orphanages; but, nevertheless, the Orphanage had more inmates than for many years past. That institution provides the Mission with a steady stream of Indian workers, who have been the means of much of the development of the evangelistic work which has taken place. The pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school, nearly all of whom are Christians, of their own accord set aside a portion of their time each day for united prayer.

Orphanage

Girls' Boarding-school

Some of the Hindu landowners in the district, as well as some Mohammedans, opposed the work in the villages, but on the whole the evangelists enjoyed excellent opportunities for preaching. At one place the Rev. M. Gerson and an Indian colleague were able to explain Christianity to a number of men who had just left a mosque. The former writes:—

Evangelistic work

> The discussion which followed was both dignified and to the point—the sinner's need of a living Saviour, and Christ alone that Saviour. Not until it was well over did they seem to realize that in listening thus to the message they had compromised their orthodoxy, and that publicly. Mutual criticism, followed by bitter accusations, led to terrible outbursts of passion. At last an old man stood up and reminded them of their lack of hospitality and their discourtesy to visitors by such behaviour. This had the desired effect and they dispersed quietly.

Preaching to men outside a mosque

At another place the head moulvi bought an Urdu Bible and carried it home himself that all might see his belief in and reverence for the Book. Nine inmates of the leper asylum were baptized, and nine others were under instruction at the close of the year.

Lepers baptized

The Rev. J. A. Cullen dwells in his annual letter on the importance of shepherding the Indian Christians. He says:—

Pastoral work

> It is the Indian Church which supplies the great majority of the workers engaged in evangelizing India, and it is from the members of that Church that Hindus and Mohammedans of this land get their impression of what Christianity really is. The missionary is looked upon as a 'religious man,' and therefore his 'witness' is not nearly so telling as that of the consecrated lives of Indian Christians carrying on their secular callings in the midst of the people.

Happily Mr. Cullen is able to report favourably of many of the converts at Bhagalpur. At the centenary of the Calcutta Bible Society the Indian Christians, who are comparatively poor, sent up Rs 206 as a thankoffering for the Bible, whereas the European congregation, composed of comparatively wealthy officials, only gave Rs 49; and on other occasions also the former showed a spirit of self-denial and liberality. The converts at Jamalpur are exposed to some special temptations. It appears that the Eurasians employed on the East Indian Railway, which has its workshops in the city, are paid more than Indians, and consequently the latter are tempted to pass themselves off as Eurasians. There are said to be several Christians, some hailing from C.M.S. schools in the United Provinces, who are thus acting a lie day by day.

Liberality of Indian Christians

Converts tempted to pass themselves off as Eurasians

UNITED PROVINCES MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the United Provinces. He was a native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was placed at Agra, under Corrie's auspices, in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad and Dehra Dun, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; and Muttra, 1878. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened as a high school by T. V. French (subsequently Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (subsequently Bishop of Waiapu, and afterwards in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused caused a great extension of the work. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages were established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh and the Jhansi Division of the United Provinces, the Bishop (Dr. A. Clifford, previously a C.M.S. missionary at Calcutta) having also, by consensual jurisdiction, episcopal supervision over the remainder of the United Provinces. Dr. Clifford retired in 1909, and was succeeded by Dr. G. H. Westcott. In 1903 another new diocese (Nagpur), with Dr. Eyre Chatterton as Bishop, was formed, including the Central Provinces and Rajputana, and certain 'assigned districts' of Hyderabad.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

I. The C.M.S. has ten chief stations in the province of Agra. They may be regarded as forming three groups, viz., Allahabad, Benares, Azimgarh and Gorakhpur, in the south-east of the province; Agra, Muttra, Aligarh and Meerut, in the west; and Mussourie and Annfield, in the hills to the north-west.

The educational institutions include a divinity school and the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel for students at Allahabad; St. John's College, with hostels for Christian, Hindu and Mohammedan students at Agra; St. Andrew's College and High School at Gorakhpur; high schools for boys at Agra, Benares (Jay Narayan's School), Jaunpur, Azimgarh and Meerut; a girls' normal school at Benares; the Queen Victoria High School for Christian girls at Agra; and orphanages at Benares and Sikandra; besides a number of middle and elementary schools.

Itinerating is carried on among the numerous villages, notably those in the plains around Allahabad, Agra, Aligarh and Meerut.

II. In the province of Oudh there are two stations, viz., Lucknow and Faizabad. A boys' high school is carried on at Lucknow. Special attention is given to evangelistic work among Mohammedans in Lucknow, and tours are made in the villages of that and of the Faizabad and Sultanpur districts.

Medical work in the Mission is almost entirely in the hands of the Z.B.M.M., which also engages in women's work in close co-operation with the C.M.S. The latter Society, however, has women missionaries working in the zenanas at many of the stations.

The staff of the Mission consists of thirty-six European and fourteen Indian clergymen, six laymen (one of them a doctor), twenty-eight wives of missionaries (two of them doctors), thirty-six single women, and 378 Indian Christian lay agents.

The following are the members of the Allahabad Corresponding Committee: The Bishop of Lucknow, Hon. Justice Chamier, Sir G. E. Knox, Mr. Gardiner-Brown, Mr. E. G. Hill, D.Sc., Mr. H. R. Nevill, I.C.S., and the Revs. J. N. Carpenter, P. H. Chapman, H. B. Durrant, J. P. Haythornthwaite, W. E. S. Holland and Canon E. H. M. Waller (Secretary).

Canon Westcott appointed Bishop of Lucknow

In succession to Bishop Clifford, whose retirement was recorded in last year's Report, the Rev. Canon G. H. Westcott, of the S.P.G. Mission, Cawnpur, son of the late Bishop of Durham and brother of the Bishop of Chota Nagpur, has been appointed to the See of Lucknow. Canon Westcott, who was consecrated at Allahabad in November, has appointed the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, secretary of the C.M.S. Corresponding Committee at Allahabad, to the Canonry in Allahabad Cathedral vacated by his own elevation to the Episcopate.

Deaths of Mrs. E. Durrant

Two former workers in the Mission have passed away. Mrs. Emily Durrant, who died at Hampstead on January 16, 1911, sailed for the United Provinces in 1894 and retired in 1907. She was the widow of the Rev. Isaac Durrant, formerly director of the C.M.S. Missionaries' Children's Home; a daughter of the Rev. E. Bickersteth (Rector of Watton, Herts, and previously a secretary of the C.M.S.); sister of the late Bishop Bickersteth of Exeter; aunt of the late Bishop E. Bickersteth of Japan; and mother of the Rev. H. B. Durrant of the United Provinces Mission.

and Mrs. Baumann

Mrs. Baumann, wife of the Rev. A. W. Baumann, a missionary in the United Provinces from 1868 to 1901, died at Norwich on February 1, 1911.

Reinforcements

Miss Emily Mabel Featherstonehaugh Major, who was on the staff of the Mission from 1896 to 1906, has rejoined. The Mission has also been reinforced by the Rev. Arthur Lyndon Nixon, B.A., Emmanuel College, Cambridge, Curate of St. Peter's, Bishop Auckland, a brother of Miss L. E. Nixon of the Ceylon Mission; the Rev. Arnold Claude Pelly, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, of the Cambridge Pastorate, a nephew of the Rev. Barclay F. Buxton, late of the Japan Mission; and Mr. Frank Garfield Hodder Williams, M.B., B.S., London University, National Student Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. of India, and Mrs. Williams: Mr. Williams has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. Miss Janet Wortley Drury, B.A., London University, a niece of the Bishop of Sodor and Man, and an accepted missionary of the C.M.S., has also sailed for the United Provinces, where her services have temporarily been lent to the Z.B.M. Mission. The Rev. and Mrs. S. Gillespie, from the Punjab Mission, and Miss B. Davies, from the Central Provinces and Rujputana Mission, have been transferred to the United Provinces. On the other hand the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Proctor have been transferred from the United Provinces Mission to the Central Provinces, and the Committee have accepted the resignations of the Revs. L. Ashby, H. Bennett and A. J. Culwick.

Overwhelming work

There can be few parts of the mission-field where the missionaries are confronted by more overwhelming work than in the United Provinces. In the Meerut district, which contains 1,735 villages and 1,540,000 inhabitants, the Society's staff in 1910 consisted of a superintending missionary, whose time was almost entirely occupied with the charge of the station, the supervision of the schools, and pastoral work; three women missionaries, engaged in work in the zenanas and among the women of the villages; and a second ordained man, responsible for all the evangelistic work with the exception of that among the women, who had fourteen catechists to assist him, four of whom were advanced in years. In spite of the fact that the Rev. L. C. Perfumi spent seven months of the year in itinerations he was not able to reach more than 150 villages, i.e. fewer than one-tenth of the whole number, and only fifty of these could be visited more than once. In the Azimgarh district, which is about the size of the diocese of Travancore, there are, besides two women missionaries, one ordained man, who is almost fully occupied with work in a large and growing school, and two or three Indian helpers; while Jaunpur, in that district, has no resident missionary at all and no catechist, and the services have to be conducted by the head-master of the mission high school. Again, three districts, covering 5,595 square miles and with a population of about 5,000,000, are worked from Aligarh. The staff, so far as men are concerned, consists, besides school teachers, of one ordained European missionary, seven Indian catechists and two colporteurs, with the result that several large centres where the people are very friendly have to be left unevangelized. Yet once more, in the Gorakhpur district, with a population of 3,000,000, where the C.M.S. is the only society at work (except the Salvation Army, whose agents confine themselves to a criminal tribe), there are only two agents, ordained men, available for evangelistic effort—a European who is cumbered with the care of the temporalities of the station and of Christian villages, and an Indian. Such a condition of affairs carries with it two disabilities for the missionaries. First, they are weighed down with the impossibility of coping adequately with the opportunities before them; and second, in the effort to utilize these so far as is in their power they are tempted (as, indeed, are all workers for Christ) to neglect that quiet communion with God which is the source of strength and efficiency. This latter point is brought out in the following passage from the annual letter of Miss D. J. Snelson, of Benares :—

One ordained European missionary among five million people

'I am the bearer of a message to you from God. It is weighing like a heavy burden on my heart until I tell you.'

The speaker was our Christian night-watchman—a Brahman convert baptized just ten months before. As regards the things of this world he was 'unlearned and ignorant'; in things spiritual he was deeply taught of God. He went on to say, 'God appeared to me last night and charged me to tell you that the work you are doing is the work which He has given you. It is a work of building; it is building for the glory of Christ. Now, pray more that the glory of Christ may increase.' Then he went on to say that God wanted the work done with less of rush and hurry and fret, that these hindered the building. He wanted more calmness of spirit, more quiet meditation, then there would be less discouragement and the work would proceed.

'Rush and hurry and fret hinder the building'

I listened with increasing awe and amazement: the messenger so unlikely, the message so startlingly deep and true.

The missionaries in the United Provinces, however, have some advantages, one being the sympathy which they experience from many

Help given by Anglo-Indians

Anglo-Indians, from Sir John Hewett, the Lieutenant-Governor, downwards. On the occasion of the annual meeting of the Church Missionary Association at Allahabad, which raises more than £400 per annum for the work, Lady Stanley, Lady Knox and Mrs. Keir, the General's wife, were 'At Home' to the station, and 600 persons assembled—almost one-quarter of the total European population of Allahabad.

Formation of a Diocesan Council

The year under review witnessed some development in the organization of the Mission. At the annual conference of workers, when the more prominent part taken by the Indian members and the optimistic tone with respect to the prospects of the work were conspicuous, a scheme was presented whereby the Central Indian Church Council and the Administrative Committee of Conference should be amalgamated into a sort of Diocesan Council, having advisory powers only, on which the Bishop and Archdeacon of Lucknow should sit ex officio. A main object of this proposal, which was adopted unanimously by both the conference and the Church Council, was to draw more closely together the evangelistic work as carried on by the C.M.S. and the pastoral work as carried on by the Church Council. That effect has already been attained in some degree, for in Agra the Rev. J. N. Mukand, an Indian missionary working under the Society who is responsible for the evangelistic work in Agra proper, has been placed in charge of St. John's Church; while, conversely, at Benares the Rev. P. C. Chattree, the Indian pastor, is working regularly as an evangelistic preacher also, and draws part of his stipend from the local Mission. Arrangements have been made, moreover, by which the Indian Church Council, assisted by a grant from the C.M.S., becomes responsible for the work at Faizabad.

Literary work

The literary work of the year was as follows:—Canon W. Hooper translated into Hindi the Revelation of St. John; he also translated his own book, The Doctrine of Salvation as set forth in Christianity, Hinduism and Islam, and began the translation into the same language of his Commentary on the Epistle to the Hebrews; the Rev. Malcolm Jan translated into Urdu the Rev. T. Walker's Commentary on the Epistle to the Philippians, and began that of Canon E. H. M. Waller's Commentary on the Apocalypse under the supervision of the latter; the Rev. W. E. S. Holland was engaged on the preparation of a Commentary on St. John's Gospel; the Rev. L. Stahlschmidt wrote a Text Book on Commerce; and Miss E. M. Waller contributed a paper of Bible-study notes on Exodus to a Y.W.C.A. Urdu magazine.

I. PROVINCE OF AGRA

Educational work

THERE were two classes at the Divinity School, Allahabad, in 1910, one composed of men training to act as junior catechists, and the other for those reading for the grade of senior catechist; there was also one candidate for deacons' orders. Divinity School

The foundation stone of the final block of buildings for the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel, also at Allahabad, was laid in November by the Metropolitan of India, assisted by the Bishops of Lucknow, Madras, Lahore, Nagpur, Bombay, Tinnevelly, Travancore, and Chota Nagpur, who were present in the city for the Episcopal Synod to deal with the allocation of that portion of the Pan-Anglican Thank-offering assigned to India. The new buildings, the erection of which was made possible by the promise of a further liberal grant from the Government, when completed will raise the total accommodation to 100 rooms and also provide a hall and quarters for one of the staff. They have been designed by Mr. Oertel and Sir Swinton Jacob, two of the leading architects in India, who generously placed their talents at the disposal of the Mission. On June 30, 1910, the hostel had been in existence for ten years. The warden, the Rev. W. E. S. Holland, writes :— Oxford and Cambridge Hostel

As we look back on these ten years, 'our mouth is filled with laughter.' Magna fecit nobis Dominus. To those who have watched the hostel since its inception—the smallness of its beginning, its struggles for bare existence against determined and resourceful Hindu opposition which time and again threatened to overwhelm it, the novel and altogether experimental character of its missionary methods under untried and inexperienced leadership, the insecurity of its academic position, the variety and incident of its early vicissitudes, internal and external, the wealth of interest and generous support evoked in the Universities at home and among the official and unofficial European population in the station,—the story of those ten years must always seem like a fairy tale, were it not so manifestly God's doing. During the decade 450 students, including those now in residence, the majority of them Brahmans, have passed through the hostel. We now refuse every year four times as many applicants as we can admit. At first in small and rented premises, the hostel is now housed in spacious grounds and commodious buildings, accommodating a hundred students and costing a lakh and a quarter of rupees, two-fifths of which has been contributed by Government and the remainder raised by voluntary donations in England; and it has not cost the Society a farthing, except the living allowances of its missionary staff. The record of ten years almost 'like a fairy tale'

Concerning the missionary side of the work Mr. Holland adds :—

Its most distinctive characteristic, the entire voluntariness of all Christian teaching, was at first a bold experiment, but has abundantly vindicated itself. By God's good hand upon us, we have weathered many a storm, including an organized, determined and prolonged boycott of all Bible-reading at a time when racial bitterness was at its height. With the exception of that single period, always about half our men, generally more than half, have come to us by regular appointment twice or thrice a week for individual Bible-study. Our work offers, perhaps, a unique missionary opportunity. For many hours each day we are engaged in the most direct and intense form of evangelistic work. And yet we have but one baptism to record. There is ground for deep searching of heart. Have we been unfaithful to the Gospel committed to us, the Gospel which is still the power of God unto salvation! Yet what but the Gospel has effected those changes of heart and character which we have wonderingly watched, those conversions from a life of worldliness and selfish- Unique missionary opportunity ness to a life of godly fear and unselfish effort, of earnestness and truth and love, of fearless straightness and humble piety and devoted service? What has taught these men to pray and to trust, to love the Lord Jesus and drink in of His Spirit? It is Jesus Christ, and not we, Who has gained these victories and effected these transformations of character. What He has begun He will surely finish in His own time. It took centuries to prepare the Jews to receive the Christ. It has taken centuries to make the baptized pagans of mediæval Europe Christians in more than name. The educated (and that means the formative) classes of Indian society are being permeated by Christian thought and feeling. Christ is already India's only standard. The leaven is in, and it is at work.

During the year under review sixty-six of the eighty-two men in residence read the Bible regularly with Mr. Holland or one of the two 'short service' men, Messrs. Shaw and Evers, and there were several tokens that a work of grace was going on in the hearts of some of the students. One man remarked to the warden, 'Sir, I was irreligious when I came to this hostel; but I am trying to remember God all day now, whatever I am doing; and it gives me such power and happiness. You must not press me. God must teach me these things bit by bit.' Another man, who had entered the hostel from a mission-college, a Christian by conviction, went so far as to ask for baptism, but after some days of intense spiritual stress he failed in courage to endure the wrench from home which would follow his public confession of Christ, and went off a few hours before the time fixed for his baptism. His father afterwards sent him to England, in the hope that acquaintance with that Christian country might dissipate all ideas of becoming a Christian. Important work is accomplished at the hostel by other means besides direct Bible teaching. Lectures were delivered to the students during the year by, inter alia, the Bishop of Southwark (who remarked that the men had the bright, happy look which previously he had noticed only on the faces of Christians), Bishop Taylor Smith and Swami Isananda, once a Hindu sanyasi, who was baptized a few years ago at Benares, and still wears his old religious garb. Athletics, too, so formative of character that it is said that no one who has taken part in athletics has been condemned for sedition in India, were developed, and in various ways a patriotic spirit was fostered. One man became a keen student of Indian art, engaging actively in research and in the publication of old Indian paintings, and another opened a night-school in the bazaar for poor students, to which he devotes the whole of his leisure every evening.*

St. John's College

St. John's College, Agra, from which the collegiate school was completely separated at the beginning of 1910, has some 250 students, besides about fifty other men belonging to the business department, and nearly two-thirds of the twenty-four lecturers (who include nine Europeans) are Christians. Bible instruction is given in the various classes, and lectures (in connexion with the funds supplied by Haileybury School) are delivered on Saturday mornings to the professors and students. At the daily prayers in college a large number of the men, though non-Christians, join in the Lord's Prayer. The college staff organized during the last term of 1910 a series of lectures on 'What Christians believe' for the students of Agra in general; the Commissioner of Agra, the Judge, the Cantonment Magistrate, and other leading officials of the city identified themselves with this branch of work by acting as chairmen, and the lectures were attended by from 150 to 300 students, besides a certain number of professional men, chiefly 'old boys.' The Mohammedan master, who was mentioned in last year's Report * as an earnest inquirer, received baptism; a former Mohammedan student, residing in another part of the United Provinces, wrote to say that he and his wife wished to be baptized; another former student begged to be baptized secretly; and yet another, studying in London, lately confessed that he believed in the Saviour, but was kept back from baptism by his mother.

Baptism of a Mohammedan master

The college department of St. Andrew's College, Gorakhpur, has twenty students. Men there are only prepared up to the intermediate examination of the Allahabad University, and not for the B.A. examination; the consequence is that students prefer to go to some first-grade college where they can remain for the whole of their course, rather than to enter St. Andrew's College, and then, after passing the intermediate examination, seek another institution in which to read for their B.A. degree.

St. Andrew's College

At St. John's Collegiate School, Agra, the principal, the Rev. Norman H. Tubbs, has the oversight of 1,200 boys connected, with five different schools. When he took up the work he speedily realized the need of hostels for Hindus and Mohammedans as well as for Christians in order to make it thoroughly effective. After referring to the expected arrival to his assistance of two young Cambridge men about to work on the short service system, he thus explains the situation:—

St. John's Collegiate School

> When I see a staff of seven Cambridge graduates running a small preparatory school of sixty boys in England and realize all the home training and Christian influence these boys have enjoyed, I am amazed that it should have been considered enough in a non-Christian country to put one missionary in charge of a mission-school (besides much other work). It should be remembered that there is no school in India (except the very select Chief's College) that is at all like our great public schools. The schools are more like English board-schools; but a day-school system can never influence the boys in a way that a boarding-school can. The more I see of the boys in our Christian hostel and compare them with the Hindu and Mohammedan boys, the more I realize how much Christ has done for us. There is a standard of truth and honour among our Christian boys that you fail to find in non-Christian boys. However perfectly a day-school may be organized, and however much we may scheme to see much of boys out of school-hours, it is clear we cannot have the same grip on the boys and influence on their character as in a boarding hostel. Again and again I am conscious of the home influence undoing much that we try to do in school.

Adverse home influence

Mr. Tubbs goes on to mention other facts which point to the need of hostels. He writes :—

The need of hostels

> Indian parents are extraordinarily careless about their boys. Their very love for them (and Indians are great lovers of children) makes them indulgent. Boys in India choose their own schools ; they come and enter themselves just as we would go into a hotel. If they do not get promotion, or if they are punished, they decide to leave and very few parents are strong-minded enough to stop them and insist on obedience. And so in India you find boys of thirteen or fourteen coming into the city and forming 'chummeries' with other boys. They choose some lodgings in the bazaar, and there, away from their parents and reliable guardians (sometimes their so-called guardian is a cousin, himself an undergraduate in his first or second year !), they live in the midst of the glare and temptations of the bazaar. What should we think of English public schoolboys living together in lodgings in Piccadilly or the Strand ? And yet I know of at least twenty-seven—and there are probably more—boys living under these dangerous conditions. You see them reading by some wretched rushlight in the midst of sights and sounds which a boy ought never to have even heard of. It says something for Indian boys that they come out as well as they do from such a condition of things. But their health, discipline and morals suffer enormously.

Other high schools

A young man, formerly in the school, was baptized at Allahabad.* During the last five years the number of boys at the Meerut High School has grown from 269 to 404, although the two junior classes were abolished in the summer of 1910. Two new class rooms were added to the buildings during the year, as well as a dormitory which enables the hostel to accommodate twenty more boys. The Azimgarh High School likewise, which now has 400 names on its rolls, was popular and new class rooms became necessary, the money for which has been found by raising the fees. Six of the boys passed the matriculation examination of the Allahabad University, and a number of the lads are said to possess a good knowledge of Scripture which exercises a distinct influence on their lives, while some appeared to have a genuine love for the Saviour. Four pupils at Jay Narayan's School, Benares, were successful in the matriculation examination.

Middle Schools

There are six Middle Schools for boys in this section of the Mission ; all of them are Anglo-vernacular with the exception of the Swinton Memorial School at Gorakhpur, where the teaching is entirely in the vernacular. This school is crowded out with 135 lads, 'Indians of the soil, the sons of farmers, the true young India.' The secondary schools are valuable not only for the direct spiritual work which is accomplished in them, but also for the favourable attitude towards missionaries which they engender. The Rev. S. Susunkar, writing of his evangelistic meetings in Benares, says that he often met men enlightened with English education, particularly those who had belonged to mission-schools, who took his part and reproached those who interrupted the preaching; and Miss E. M. Waller mentions the friendly treatment which she and an Indian Bible-woman experienced at the hands of a station-master in a village she visited, and adds that his wife had attended a zenana school, and his son had been a pupil at St. John's Collegiate School, Agra.

Normal School

The preparation of schoolmistresses is carried on at the Normal School at Benares, where the girls are 'very loveable though, withal, very stupid,' and a hostel for twenty-five girls was opened during the year; and in two classes—the senior, in which most of the work is in English, and the junior, in which it is in the vernacular—at the Queen Victoria High School at Agra. Two candidates from the senior class passed their examination in April, 1909, and expressed a desire to undertake missionary work, but asked if possible to try it for six or twelve months before pledging themselves permanently. Their wish was complied with. They were sent to Azimgarh, where they were an 'untold help,' and at the close of the year's trial they entered the Lady Muir Memorial School in Allahabad to train definitely for missionary work. Two other normal students passed their examination in May, 1910. The number of pupils at the Queen Victoria School increased to eighty boarders and fourteen day-girls. One of the three candidates sent up for the matriculation examination was successful and gained a Government scholarship, and the five who sat for the middle school examination passed. *

Queen Victoria High School

Girls' Boarding-school

The Girls' Boarding-school at Meerut, which was opened early in 1909 with three boarders, now has forty-four in addition to sixteen day-girls. A little boarding-school for village girls has been set on foot in Meerut, similar to that for boys at Jeyi which has proved so useful.†

Orphanages

Steps were taken to reorganize the Boys' Orphanage at Sikandra, where there is a nursery for babies, a school for boys (about fifty in number) up to fourteen years of age, and a hostel for the lads who are being trained in printing, iron work, carpentry, weaving, etc. At the Girls' Orphanage, which is situated at Sigra, Benares, there was some difficulty in getting the girls (some of whom, before the orphanages were amalgamated, had been at Sikandra, others at Gorakhpur and others at Benares) to 'shake down' together, but the unrest and discontent were happily overcome, and harmony and friendship supervened. The inmates, 175 in number, are of all ages, and even include old women who have been in the institutions for many years! Some of them are taught fine needlework, others to make chutney and jams, and others to help in garden and field work.

Elementary schools

A great work is being accomplished by means of the Elementary Schools in the Mission, for not only do the children themselves learn about the Lord Jesus, but they are the means of carrying some knowledge of Him to their relatives by repeating in their homes the texts and hymns which they learn at school. Moreover, the teachers engage in evangelistic work out of school hours, preaching in the bazaars, visiting the high-caste people, and distributing handbills and selling Scripture portions to those who can read in the vernacular. In some cases marked opposition was shown to these schools, as in the Azimgarh district, where no fewer than six have been closed during the last two years in consequence of the antagonism of the Arya Samajists, Hindus and Mohammedans; and in the Meerut district, where the baptism of a number of people at Pilkhua * so aroused the fears of the people that they withdrew their children from school lest they, too, should become Christians. On the other hand there was a general desire for education which caused the number of pupils to increase,† and often led the people to request that mission-schools might be opened. The Thakurani, the principal woman, in one village in the Aligarh district begged that a school might be opened in her house, and offered herself and her two little daughters as pupils; a well-to-do Brahman doctor in another village asked for a school for high-caste girls, and offered to help by renting one of his newly-built houses; and a rajah at Pali, near Bulandshahr, gave money to the Mission for the erection of a boys' school on his estate, and guaranteed a yearly sum for its up-keep. A new school was opened for the children of Mohammedan workmen at Ghaziabad, and one for Hindu girls at a village six miles north of Azimgarh, with the result in the latter case that the women and girls abandoned idolatry and were in consequence forbidden by the men to read any longer.

Requests for mission-schools

Evangelistic work

A good deal of opposition was experienced in connexion with the evangelistic as well as the educational work, especially at the hands of the members of the Arya Samaj. They are making great headway in the United Provinces, and it is said that 'they have a regular network of agencies all over the country, and a branch in almost every large city or village,' and that they are now turning their attention to the depressed classes for whose children they are opening schools, and whose reception into caste some of them even advocate. The opposition was felt in several villages both in the Meerut and Muttra districts, where doors were shut in the faces of the women missionaries and they were driven out of the places amid the jeers of the men. In the cities the bazaar preaching was often interrupted, while at some of the melas youths from the colleges and schools were employed to frustrate the efforts of the evangelists, and constructive work, from the Arya Samaj point of view, was also carried on. Miss S. Bland, referring to a mela held near Agra, contrasts the zeal of the reforming Hindus with the supineness of the Christians. She writes :—

> At one large gathering of women only we found ladies belonging to the Arya Samaj very busy preaching, singing and giving away books. Some of these ladies are our pupils! I could not help wishing that our 'Upper Ten' Christian women would show the earnestness these 'Upper Ten' Hindu women show. It was sad to reflect that the only Christians at work were our paid teachers, whereas the Arya Samajists were all voluntary workers.

Need of careful dealing with non-Christian religions

It is possible that some of the opposition referred to may have been aroused by injudicious handling of their subject on the part of Indian Christian preachers. The Rev. L. C. Perfumi expresses his desire that they could be persuaded to abandon 'a polemical and controversial style of argument, which can only provoke irritation and resistance,' and the Rev. P. Webber had much the same conclusion forced upon him by attendance at some lectures delivered in Agra by a member of the Arya Samaj. Mr. Webber says :—

> The subject of the lectures was the beliefs of Christians and Mohammedans. I did not go expecting to learn anything about Christianity; but I certainly did learn something, and that is not to ridicule the religion one wishes to oppose. One lecture was announced as dealing with the Christian idea of God, and a great deal of the time was taken up with an account of the conflict between Moses and Pharaoh, the real point of the attack being the 'hardening of Pharaoh's heart.' To me it was chiefly a demonstration of how easy it is to hurt another's feelings, and how very readily, with a little touch of imagination here and a little distortion there, the whole colour and tenor of a narrative may be changed.
> I am thankful that I was able to attend and to hear what I did, as it helped to emphasize the conclusion to which most missionaries have come, viz., that our work is not to find fault with the religions that already hold the field, but to preach Christ and Him crucified.

Timidity of villagers

'We want to hear more'

On the whole, the villagers were more prepared to listen to the Gospel than the people of the cities, for though here and there they showed that they were suspicious of Europeans,* and it was difficult to win their confidence, there were many places where they manifested a distinct eagerness to hear what the Christian workers had to say. This readiness to listen to the Gospel appeared also in connexion with the work among women. Miss I. Schellenberg reports that in several villages in the Meerut district the low-caste people showed a real desire to hear about Christ, and some high-caste women eagerly called her into their houses and said, 'Tell us again of what you told us last year; we have not forgotten, but we want to hear more'; while Miss A. E. Lowick, another missionary in that district, speaks of a 'growing spirit of inquiry,' and says that Hindus and Mohammedans are laying aside not only their opposition but also their indifference, and are buying books and asking that their women may be taught. There were cases also in which Mohammedans as well as Hindus showed that they appreciated the opportunities of learning about the Saviour. A number of Moslem women were persuaded to visit Azimgarh from their distant villages for treatment of their maladies at the Government dispensary; while in the city they stayed in the mission-bungalow, and one of them said, 'It is just like heaven to be here; we are hearing of the Lord Jesus all day long.' Perhaps the most striking instance of a fresh opening was that which occurred in the Muttra district. Miss V. C. Saunders narrates the circumstances as follows:—

'It is like heaven to be here

A friendly rajah,

In February, 1910, the rajah of a small Native State called Shivpur, paid his yearly visit to Muttra for the worship of his patron saint Shiv, the god of destruction. He came with a large retinue and the women of his household, and we were asked to visit his wife and daughters and went several times while they were here. The rajah has been very friendly with the Rev. P. Zenker for many years, and begged him to visit him in his State, but as he was not able to undertake the journey, it was arranged that Miss Stratton and I should go for three weeks. A small bungalow in the centre of a garden was set apart for our use, and we were guarded day and night by four soldiers with guns. The rajah treated us with the greatest kindness and consideration, doing all he could for our comfort, and sending a carriage every day to bring us to the palace to visit and teach the three ranis and his three daughters.

As we had been given leave to go and teach wherever we liked, when not sent for to the palace we made our way into the town, and, escorted by two of the rajah's servants, we were taken to suitable houses to visit and teach the women. In a rich banker's house we were welcomed by the lady of the house, saying, 'I am so glad you have come; I have heard so much of your teaching, and have been longing to hear it myself.' So she sat herself down right in front, and listened with all her ears. Meanwhile forty or fifty women collected in the courtyard in front of us, and crowds of men pressed in at the door and stood behind them, and sat all up the stairs to the roof, and collected on the roof and looked down upon us, so that the house was packed, and all listened in perfect silence while we preached the Gospel to them as simply and clearly as we could. As we left, the banker's wife begged us to 'come again and give her more knowledge, for we are all fools,' she said. In the four or five different houses to which we were taken we had a similar warm reception and crowd of eager listeners.

One evening the missionaries were allowed to show the magic-lantern on the wall of the courtyard before the palace; the rajah sent a message through the town to call all the women together, and between 600 and 700 assembled. When the ladies had to return to Muttra the rajah asked them to send him resident teachers, offering to give as much land as might be required for a mission-house or church, to help contribute towards the expenses of building, and to pay the salary of a master for a boys' school; he expressed his desire also for a man and his wife to teach in the town and surrounding villages, and said that he would defray the expenses of periodical visits from a missionary.

Spiritual work in zenanas

In many zenanas there is a 'real spiritual work going on under the surface,' and there are a number of women who confess that they believe in the Lord Jesus as their Saviour, and trust in Him alone; but it is very difficult for them to confess Christ in baptism, not only because they are hardly free agents, but also because of the hold which caste has upon them.* A few women, however, had the courage to take the decisive step—a Mohammedan hafiza who professes to know the Koran by heart, the fruit of the work of a student at the Lady Muir Memorial Training College who is now a teacher at the Benares normal school; a woman whose eldest brother and his wife were baptized a few years ago; and a Lepcha woman from Sikkim, one of the unevangelized countries on the borders of Tibet and China.† Others were baptized with certain of their relatives. Thus in October a Mohammedan doctor and his wife and daughter were admitted into the visible Church at Aligarh, as, a few weeks later, was the man's aged mother; ‡ and at Mussourie a woman was baptized with her husband and brother-in-law (relatives of the man mentioned in last year's Report as baptized at Aligarh)§ after enduring opposition and loss at the hands, sad to say, of their European employers. Thirteen adults in all were baptized in the Mussourie district; nine in that worked from Aligarh, including, besides those already mentioned, two Mohammedans, a Hindu of royal blood who is a nephew of an Indian Christian member of the Legislative Council of the United Provinces,‖ and a young man of the 'writer' caste; ¶ ninety-nine persons in the Meerut district, among whom were a Brahman whose aged father was present, overwhelmed with grief at his son's confession of faith, and the first converts (six in number) from the Chamar caste at Pilkhua;  and in the Allahabad district another young Brahman, a Bengali belonging to the Indian Medical Service in which he has attained the rank of captain. This man studied medicine in England, where he married an English woman; and, strange to say, he was only the more inclined to Christianity by the ridicule which the medical students and young doctors around him poured upon it. Of another convert, whose story illustrates the usefulness of Christian literature, Canon S. Nihal Singh writes as follows:—

Women take the decisive step

Baptisms

The young man, who is just twenty-two years of age, is a Brahman by caste. His parents died when he was twelve years of age, and he lived with his two elder brothers till a Bairagi monk happened to visit his village and coaxed the boy away. He took him to Poona, where after six months he made him his disciple of the Vaishnava sect. The boy lived in the company of the Bairagis, and began to read Hindi and learnt the mantras of that sect. He happened to come to the grand annual gathering of the Hindus at Allahabad during the Magh mela some years ago, where a Hindi handbill was put into his hands by one of the Christian workers, in which the absurdity of bathing in the Ganges to wash away sins, and of worshipping idols, was shown by the writer. The boy was moved and touched with the contents of the handbill, and heard of the holy name of Jesus for the first time. When the mela was over the company moved on to Ujjain to another mela, where he got a copy of the Dharm Tula, i.e. 'The Balance of Truth,' in the Nagri character, which he read most voraciously till his faith in the idols was entirely gone. Once he was reading quietly this tract and was overheard by a comrade, who reported the matter to the headman of the company of Bairagis. The mahant took the book away from his hands and tore it into pieces, telling him in the most peremptory manner never again to read books of the Christians. The young man says he lived two years with the mahant after this incident and asked his leave to go home and see his brothers. He got permission, and after remaining some time at home, he left to wander about again as a Bairagi, but never went back to the same monk. He came in contact with us in our itineration at one of the out-stations and began to read with us the Gospel of our Lord. He was nearly five months with us as an inquirer, learning the Creeds, the Ten Commandments and the Lord's Prayer by heart, and when found satisfactory I baptized him.

Inquirers

Besides those actually baptized there were a number of more or less definite inquirers, notably in the Aligarh district * and around Gorakhpur. Persecution caused many in the latter neighbourhood to draw back, but five families among them finally decided to be baptized at all costs.

Pastoral work

Some of the disadvantages and hindrances attending the work have already been enumerated, but mention has not been made of that which is the most serious, viz., the unworthy lives of those who profess and call themselves Christians, including, alas! not a few Anglo-Indians. It was observation of these latter which led a young educated Bengali to remark that 'in spite of its beauty Christianity is a lip-religion.' One cause of backsliding among the Indians in the neighbourhood of Mussourie has been that many professed Christianity merely in order to get rid of their old low-caste name, since few Europeans are willing to engage low-caste servants; in other parts persecution has led to a renunciation of Christianity; in others the lack of pastoral supervision has been largely responsible for cases of declension. The Christians 'need much shepherding,' writes one missionary, and increasing care is taken to provide for their spiritual welfare. Special services were conducted at Basharatpur and Muirabad by the Rev. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly, and at Aligarh by two Indians, one of them a clergyman, with good effect.† The temporal welfare of the converts was not lost sight of. Both at Meerut and Gorakhpur the women are taught needlework, which not only brings in a welcome addition to their scanty incomes, but also leads them to attend classes; while at Basharatpur a Christian mela was held, at which prizes were given for various forms of industry. Many of the converts showed a good deal of zeal in engaging in evangelistic work, preaching in the bazaars of the cities and accompanying the missionaries when they visited the villages; and an improvement is reported in a number of Christians whose lives have caused anxiety in the past. In the Meerut district, whence sad reports have been forthcoming of late,‡ it is said that the Christians are 'waking up,' that 'there are more visible signs of spiritual progress,' and that several persons have endured persecution and unjust accusations at the police courts with a Christian spirit. A number of the backsliders profess to be ready to return to the Christian Church if a catechist can be stationed in their village. At Gorakhpur also there was 'real progress,' and the intemperance which in former years had sadly marred the Christmas festivities was conspicuous for its absence.*

II. PROVINCE OF OUDH

EXCEPTING at Ajodhya, a little town five miles from Faizabad, supposed to have been the birthplace of Ram, and consequently a sacred spot to the Hindus, where the inhabitants, most of whom obtain their food from the endowments of the numerous temples, 'hate Christians and do not like to hear about Christianity,' the missionaries had much liberty for evangelizing the people in the Province of Oudh. Around Sultanpur not the slightest prejudice was shown, magic lantern meetings were largely attended, the people 'received the preaching with avidity,' and such remarks were made as, 'We already know what you have been teaching, but it is very difficult to act up to it,' or 'Your religion has got a foundation, but ours is only dust and ashes.' Even among the Mohammedans a greater willingness to listen to the Gospel was displayed than in former years. The Rev. J. Qalandar says that 'the spirit of animosity, bitterness, bigotry and fanaticism is losing ground, and the people are more prepared to investigate the claims of the Gospel.' Some Moslems are keen students of the Bible, and many of the heads of colleges in Lucknow, when visited, gladly accepted a copy of St. John's Gospel in Arabic. Two rather significant events of the year were a request by a Mohammedan gentleman that the Mission would open a school and begin work in his village—an invitation which unfortunately had to be refused in consequence of the lack of men and means; and a visit from a Hindu inspector of schools, who having heard the story of the Prodigal Son, as given with lantern illustrations, desired Mr. J. McIntosh to assist him in the preparation of some 'moral lectures' of the same character as the parable. A young Shiah Mohammedan was baptized whose first impressions of Christianity were received during a discussion in which the superiority of the living Saviour to a dead prophet was shown; shortly after his baptism some of his friends, meeting him alone, handled him severely, and he was lost sight of. Another of the year's converts was a well educated young Brahman, who gave promise of a life of usefulness in Christ's service, but the Arya Samaj got hold of him, and he was enrolled as a member of that body.

Educational work

The High School at Lucknow had 360 names on its rolls at the end of the year—a larger number than ever before, and this although the fees were raised. The Rev. A. J. Harvey, who was in temporary charge, maintains that the educational work is distinctly evangelistic in character. He writes :—

Christian teaching leavening the minds of boys

How Christian teaching is leavening the minds of the boys with the principles of the Gospel, one incident will show. In a secular lesson, a boy, in a piece of English composition he had done for me, had written regarding the meeting of the two sacred rivers, Ganges and Jumna, at Allahabad: 'By bathing at the very place where the rivers meet a person may easily get salvation.' I could not refrain from putting to the boy and to the class the question, 'Does the boy who wrote that really believe that a man can get salvation by bathing in the river? What does he mean by salvation? If a man after bathing goes and deals dishonestly and speaks lies, has he got salvation?' The boy who had written it stuck to his assertion, but all the rest of the class (all of them Hindus and Mohammedans) were against him, and laughed at him, saying, 'You can't get salvation unless your heart is right.' One young Mohammedan added, 'Yes, and it is no good making the pilgrimage to Mecca unless your heart is in the right state with God.' Where did all those young men obtain the conviction of the primary importance of inward righteousness? Was it from Hinduism or Islam? No! It was through the leavening of the mind with the spiritual truths received daily for years in school, the unconscious Christianizing of their habits of thought.*

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The Central Provinces of India, together with Rajputana and the other Native States known as Central India, were formed into the Diocese of Nagpur in 1903, the first Bishop, Dr. Eyre Chatterton, being consecrated on March 25 of that year. The Society's work, which is carried on in the Central Provinces, Rajputana and the Bombay Presidency, was separated from that in the United Provinces and placed under a separate committee in the same year. Jabalpur, the oldest of the C.M.S. stations in the diocese, was occupied in 1854; Mandla, 1879; Marpha, 1892; Patpara, 1897; Katni Murwara, 1899; Deori, 1909. In Rajputana, Kherwara was occupied in 1880; and Bharatpur, 1902. In the Bombay Presidency Biladia and Lusadia were occupied in 1901.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Mission is carried on in four sections: among Hindus and Mohammedans in (I.) the Central Provinces and also (II.) in Rajputana; and among people of animistic cults; (III.) the Gonds, and (IV.) the Bhīls.

I. and II. At Jabalpur and Katni Murwara (see Plate 12), in the Central Provinces, and at Bharatpur, 300 miles from the former and within some thirty miles of Agra, but situated in Rajputana, the work is mainly among Hindus, and is carried on by means of a high school, a middle school and a hostel for Christian boys at Jabalpur, an Anglo-vernacular school at Bharatpur, and several vernacular schools, and by evangelistic efforts in the villages. The women's work is, for the most part, in the hands of missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S.

III. The Gonds, an aboriginal tribe, are reached from Mandla, Patpara, Deori and Marpha, which are in the Central Provinces and within about 100 miles of Jabalpur. There are orphanages for boys and girls at Patpara.

IV. Another aboriginal tribe, the Bhīls, are found at Kherwara, Biladia and Lusadia, villages more than 400 miles west of Jabalpur, in the Bombay Presidency. There are the Thompson Memorial School and an orphanage for boys at Kherwara, and an orphanage for girls at Lusadia, where also medical work is carried on.

The Society's staff comprises eleven European and four Indian clergymen, two laymen, eleven missionaries' wives, one of whom is a doctor, and ten single women. The Indian Christian lay agents engaged in the Mission number ninety.

The following are the members of the Jabalpur Corresponding Committee: The Bishop of Nagpur, Archdeacon C. Price, Mr. W. G. Bagley, and the Revs. A. I. Birkett, C. W. Darling, E. D. Price, W. G. Proctor and R. Hack (Acting-Secretary).

Reinforcements

THE Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Proctor, transferred from the United Provinces; Miss Bertha Sophia Fowler, who went to India independently in 1896, and since 1902 has been working at Bharatpur in close connexion with the C.M.S., and who has now joined the Society's staff; and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Charles, the former of whom after acting as an assistant missionary in the Mission for six years has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. Miss B. Davies has been transferred from the Central Provinces to the United Provinces Mission. The names of the Revs. John Ghose and Pakkianathan Jacob, who were admitted to deacons' orders in February and March, 1911, respectively, have been added to the list of Indian clergymen connected with the Society. The Committee arranged for the retirement of the Rev. E. Walker, as there is no prospect of his return to India.

The Jabalpur Corresponding Committee were confronted by a difficult task in the summer of 1910 when they were notified that they must not expect to receive more money from the Society in 1911 than would suffice to meet the expenditure sanctioned for the then current year. They were obliged in consequence to abandon the hope of placing a clergyman at Bharatpur. In order that the work might suffer as little as possible the missionaries out of their slender allowances began to contribute about £6 per mensem to a deficit fund, while renewed efforts were made to obtain financial help from friends in India. The Jabalpur Missionary Association, the formation of which was recorded in last year's Report,* bids fair to be of increasing assistance in this matter. Quarterly gatherings were held in connexion with it; the annual meeting was signalized by an 'At Home' kindly given in his garden by General Wallace, K.C.B.; and contributions amounting in all to Rs. 2,300 were received during the year.

Educational work

High School

Middle School

THE High School at Jabalpur only passed two of the eleven boys who sat for the University entrance examination, thus sharing the sad experiences of other schools in the Central Provinces, but four boys from the middle department, as well as two belonging to the Middle School, were successful in the high school scholarship examination. In connexion with the high school there are two hostels, viz., St. Luke's Hostel, for Christians, in which some young men who do not attend the high school are received, and which had thirty-seven members—double the number of the previous year; and St. John's Hostel, for Hindu and Mohammedan students, with twenty members. But little fruit was seen of the spiritual work in the school, though many of the boys probably share the opinion of one of their number who remarked openly, 'I think we ought to follow Christ and copy His example, but I do not see the use of being baptized'; but on the other hand the missionaries were greatly cheered by the death-bed testimony of Pandit Matan Lall, who for more than thirty years had been closely connected with the school, first as pupil and then as master and school-clerk. Shortly before he passed away he said, 'Christ Who knows my heart, Who is always seeking, has found me, and I have found Him. I am going to heaven where He is. It is hard to have remained a Hindu, but my heart is right and I am resting in Christ.'† The primary schools of the Mission are influencing the children's relatives as well as the children themselves, since the pupils sing up and down in the villages the hymns which they learn.

'I am resting in Christ'

Evangelistic work

In the evangelistic work very little open opposition was met with. The educated classes in Katni showed a good deal of outward friendliness, even in cases where there was secret hostility; while in Jabalpur fresh zenanas were opened to the workers, and several high-caste parents were anxious for their daughters to be taught. The Gospel was listened to in the villages with less prejudice than in former years, and the preachers were welcomed at places where previously they had been received with disrespect and their message ridiculed. Although there has not been a large number of accessions to Christianity, yet the attitude of the people towards their old faiths has been considerably modified. The Brahmans complained that their temples and fairs are not thronged as in the past, and many people, the Rev. R. Hack says, 'have forsaken their idols and have been delivered from their slavish fear of demons and spirits.' He gives some instances :—

Consulting 'familiar spirits' is a common practice at the time of full moon and on special festivals. Hymns are sung and offerings made to certain spiritual beings (not usually evil ones), who are supposed to enter into the body of a medium and speak through him to the worshipper; the words are usually so incoherent that an interpreter is necessary. A Katni man, a short time ago, determined to test the 'spirit,' so he asked questions about an imaginary sickness of an equally imaginary son. He was told that the sickness was caused by the spirit of his wife's grandmother obsessing his son. As he had no son to be 'obsessed,' he promptly proceeded to beat the unhappy medium, who condemned him to die within fourteen days for insulting the spirit; but the man has for two months been going about as usual, and he laughingly tells people how he proved the spirit to be a fraud. With regard to idolatry a man said to me one day, 'I haven't worshipped an idol for over twelve years and a half—never since —— Sahib preached in our village.'

Testing a 'spirit'

Nine adults were baptized at Jabalpur and seven, most of them villagers, in the Katni district. There were others who were admitted to the catechumenate, and others again who were secret believers or at all events diligent inquirers as to how peace with God might be obtained. Some of these were held back by the ties of relationship or caste. 'If I become a Christian,' said one, 'it will break my poor old father's heart, so I cannot take the step until after his death'; while in the villages any one who is outcasted has very small chance of gaining a livelihood.

II. BHARATPUR

BHARATPUR was still without any ordained missionary of the Society, but the Rev. P. M. Zenker visited the station every month from Muttra to administer the Sacraments. The efforts of the workers were somewhat hindered by an outbreak of plague, which obliged them to close the schools, and prevented visits to the villages in the district. Partly by way of example the missionaries were inoculated, but it failed to reassure some of the people or to induce them to submit to similar treatment; they only said, 'It is quite different with you; they use something else with us, and we get plague and die.' A number of upper-class zenanas in the city were visited, and in one of them Miss M. M. Crossley had a paper put into her hand on which a man had written to the effect that he was interested in Christianity and wished to know whether if he became a disciple of Jesus Christ he would still be able to abstain from eating flesh. A marked Testament was sent to him with explanations, and the catechist paid him some visits, but before long he left the city and was lost sight of.

III. GOND MISSION

Pastoral work

Most of the Gond Christians are said to have been regular in their attendance at services, and with a prosperous year contentment reigned among the 120 people belonging to the Christian village of Deori, in happy contrast to the previous state of affairs. There were, however, one or two cases in the Mission which called for the exercise of discipline, and the converts at Marpha are described as failing to realize their responsibility for winning others.

Educational work

The industrial work at the Orphanages at Patpara gave more promise than in 1910, and the boys' schools advanced steadily, but the Gonds lack the intelligence which is characteristic of the Hindus. Regular visits were paid to the Leper Asylum, also at Patpara, and most of the twelve adults baptized during the year belonged to that institution.

Evangelistic work

In work in the villages the missionaries are handicapped both by the lack of intelligence just referred to, which makes the women slow to understand and quick to forget, and also by their timidity, which in villages which had not previously been visited led them to flee from the workers. One woman pathetically remarked from behind a door where she had been listening, 'Years ago I heard some teaching like this, but it went out of my heart.'

IV. BHĪL MISSION

Educational work

The three men who were in the Catechists' Class at Lusadia when the year under review opened, passed their examination in February, and shortly afterwards left for work in various villages. Their places were taken by a teacher, and two of the lads belonging to the Thompson Memorial School at Kherwara. Fourteen boys, all but one of them Christians, in the seventh standard in that school completed their course in the summer and passed the examination. Twelve of them took up work under the Mission as school teachers, but the two mentioned above having offered their services to the Church Council were accepted as lay pastors and began their practical training. Through there being so many new teachers available it became possible to re-open several schools which had been closed since 1900, but the missionaries were not allowed by the authorities of the Native State in which the greater part of the Bhil Mission is situated to set schools on foot in any villages excepting those in which they had them before the famine of 1900. The number of inmates in the Girls' Orphanage at Lusadia has been reduced to sixteen; four girls, who had grown up, left to be married. Orphanage

Additional accommodation was provided at the Lusadia hospital by the removal of the assistant to another house; his old quarters became available for better-class patients, of whom there was a continuous stream. One great disappointment which was experienced in connexion with the dispensary at Biladia is described by the Rev. W. Hodgkinson as follows:— Medical work

> A man was gored by a bull and was very seriously ill. We attended him daily for many, many weeks, and spoke to him and his wife of the Great Physician. Both seemed to drink in the good news, and as soon as the man could walk they came to church, and were admitted to the catechumenate. The whole Church rejoiced. Day by day they were prepared for baptism, and there seemed to be no doubt as to their sincerity. But as the day for baptism drew near the wife began to absent herself from the teaching, while the man always made excuses for her. At last the day arrived, and we went to their house to bring them to church, only to find the door shut and bolted! Later we heard that their relatives had come and that a man had held his gun over the wife's (his sister's) head saying, 'If you become a Christian I will blow out your brains.' Poor people, they yielded, and were persuaded to go to the brother's house for a few days. We have seen them since, and once the woman attended a Sunday service, but, for the time, the fear of man has become a snare to them.

Inquirers yield to pressure brought to bear by relatives

Seven adults and five children were baptized early in 1910 at Mori, a village in the Lusadia district;* and another man and his wife, besides the couple who have been spoken of, were admitted to the catechumenate at Biladia during the year. In the Mission in general the outlook was bright in that the people were ready to listen to the Gospel and in some cases were even anxious to be taught. The singing of bhajans (hymns) is a great means of imparting Scripture truth to the Bhīls, for they are fond of music and often in the villages asked the preachers to pay them another visit so that they might learn the bhajans. In some Hindu zenanas conversations occurred which showed how greatly the women need the comfort and help which Christianity alone can bring. Miss R. Carter writes:— Evangelistic work

Women 'without hope'

> Talks with the women revealed something of the darkness and sadness in which they live. One woman came and said to me: 'Miss Sahib, I have lost my husband and sons, and am all alone in the world, and I have much sorrow of heart.' I spoke a little of the God of all comfort, and she said, 'Oh, yes, I often take the name of Ram; when I get up I take the name of Ram, and I light little lamps and worship Ram; but I still have great sorrow of heart.' A little talk followed about the Lord Jesus, and then she said, 'Miss Sahib, there is no one here to teach us true worship; our children grow up and eat and drink and die like the animals, and there is no one to teach them the true worship.'

A new departure was made at the Hindu mela at Samlaji by opening a bookstall, which afforded capital opportunities for making friends with the people and speaking with them on the subject of Christianity.

Pastoral work

The converts were fortunate in the enjoyment of several special efforts for their edification. In March, 1910, a convention for Gujerati-speaking Christians, the first to be held, took place at Nadiad; seven different Missions were represented, and a number of the Bhīl converts attended, some of them marching for several days in order to be present. 'We learnt at Nadiad,' one of them said afterwards, 'that the religion of Christ is not a small affair of a village or so. It is for the towns also and for the whole country.' Shortly after this convention a series of services was held at Lusadia, which, though not attended by the same striking scenes as those in 1909,* were yet instrumental in blessing to many.

'The religion of Christ is not a small affair'

Literary work

The Rev. A. I. Birkett finished the preparation of an enlarged edition of the Bhīl hymn-book, and also made a tentative selection of Psalms to be set in Bhīl metre to Bhīl music; while the Rev. W. Hodgkinson prepared a book bearing the title A Year's Lessons on the Church Catechism.

PUNJAB, NORTH-WEST FRONTIER AND SINDH MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1853; Peshawar, 1854; Multan, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1862; Srinagar, 1864; Bannu, 1865; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886; the Jhang Bar, 1899; Islamabad, 1902. Work was commenced at Kotgur in 1844 and Simla in 1845, prior to the annexation of the Punjab. At Lahore, the capital of the province, a divinity school was founded in 1870 by the Rev. (afterwards Bishop) T. V. French. The Rev. G. M. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Baluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where work among the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the Valley of Kashmir a medical mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially at the time of the famine in 1880 and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. McLeod, Generals Lake, Taylor and Maclagan, Colonel Martin and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is slightly older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850), Hyderabad (1856) and Sukkur (1859) on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, a C.M.S. missionary, being the first Bishop. He was succeeded on his retirement in 1887 by the Rev. H. J. Matthew; and he in 1899 by the Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

There are five sections of the Mission: the Punjab, Kashmir, the North-West Frontier Province, Baluchistan, and Sindh.

I. Of the thirteen stations in the Punjab, nine are in the plains, viz., Lahore, Clarkabad, Multan, Gojra, and Toba Tek Singh (in the Chenab Colony) in the Lahore district, and Amritsar, Batala, Tarn Taran and Narowal in the Amritsar district; and four, Simla, Kotgur, Kangra and Dharmsala, are in the Himalayas.

Educational work is carried on by means of a divinity school at Lahore; high schools at Amritsar, Batala (Baring School for Christians and A.L.O.E. School for non-Christians), and Multan; Anglo-Vernacular schools at Fathgarh and Narowal; a Christian boys' boarding-school at Clarkabad; a middle school at Bahawalpur; and the Alexandra High School and a middle-class school at Amritsar for girls. There are orphanages at Clarkabad and industrial work at Lahore; at the latter station there is also a widows' home.

Medical work is represented by a hospital at Amritsar, with affiliated dispensaries at Narowal, Jandiala, etc.; and a women's hospital at Multan. Some medical work is also carried on at Kotgur.

Considerable bodies of Native Christians are found in the Amritsar, Narowal and Tarn Taran districts, at Clarkabad, and in the Chenab Colony, to whom both European and Indian clergymen minister.

II. The Society has two stations in Kashmir—Srinagar, the capital, and Islamabad, some thirty miles to the south.

At the former there is a high school for boys, with a branch school at Islamabad; also a general hospital, and a leper asylum supported by the Kashmir Government, but managed by the Society's missionaries. There is also a women's hospital at Islamabad.

III. At each of the three strategic points occupied by the Society in the North-West Frontier Province, viz., Peshawar, Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan, at the entrance to the several passes into Afghanistan, a hospital is maintained, by means of which many members of the wild frontier tribes are influenced. Branch dispensaries are also carried on at outlying places.

There are the Edwardes College and High School at Peshawar, and high schools also at Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan.

IV. At Quetta, the Society's only station in Baluchistan, there is a hospital with two branch dispensaries.

V. Karachi, Hyderabad and Sukkur, three important centres, are occupied in Sindh. At the first named there is a high school and also a bookshop.

The C.E.Z.M.S. is responsible for several hospitals and for the greater part of the women's work in the Mission.

The foreign staff of the Mission consists of thirty-three clergymen, twenty-five laymen, forty-three wives of missionaries, and twenty-nine other women missionaries. Twenty-five of the above are doctors and eleven are trained nurses. In addition twenty-one Indian clergymen and 133 Indian Christian lay agents are on the staff of the Mission.

The following are the members of the Punjab Corresponding Committee: The Bishop of Lahore, Dr. D. N. P. Datta, Mr. F. E. Gwyther, Colonel Hendley, I.M.S., Mr. H. T. Knowlton, I.E.S., Colonel Maclagan, R.E., Mr. W. de M. Malan, I.C.S., Captain R. Skinner, R.E., Mr. E. Tydeman, Major Wilkinson, I.M.S., and the Revs. C. M. Gough, Canon H. U. Weitbrecht, and E. F. E. Wigram (Acting-Secretary).

Deaths of the Rev. J. Sheldon and Miss M. Michaelis

ONE of the early missionaries at Karachi, the Rev. James Sheldon, died at Weston-super-Mare on April 11, 1910. He laboured in Sindh from 1854 to 1881.

Another former worker in close connexion with the Society, though not actually a C.M.S. missionary, has been called to her eternal rest in the person of Miss M. Michaelis, of the Berlin Ladies' Society, who died in Germany on June 3, 1910. She accomplished valuable work at Kangra and Kotgur, and was at Dharmsala, near the former station, when the earthquake of April, 1905, occurred, which destroyed the Kangra station. She herself was buried in the ruins at Dharmsala for several hours.

Reinforcements

The Punjab Mission has received the following recruits during the year: the Rev. Willoughby Bryan-Brown, junr., B.A., Downing College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of Christ Church, Eastbourne, a brother of Miss E. S. Bryan-Brown, of the Fukien Mission; the Rev. Frank Clendon Long, M.A., Auckland University, Vicar of Waipiro Bay Parochial District, of the New Zealand Association; Mr. James Newton Graham and Mrs. Graham who is a first cousin of Miss B. L. Frewer of the Mid China Mission; Mr. Vernon Harold Starr, M.B., B.S., London University; Miss Olive Harding, of Girton College, Cambridge; Miss Olive Frances Lacey, a trained nurse, who received her training under the C.M.S. at The Willows; Miss Annie Eliza Manwaring, another trained nurse, a niece of the Rev. A. Manwaring, late of the Western India Mission; and Miss Mary Theodora Redman, trained at The Olives, a daughter of the Rev. J. Redman, of the Punjab Mission, a niece of the Rev. I. W. Charlton, late of the Bengal Mission, and of the Rev. A. E. Redman of the Punjab Mission, and a first cousin of Mrs. A. T. Kember of Hangchow. Mr. S. Gillespie, who has been admitted to deacons' orders, and Mrs. Gillespie have been transferred to the United Provinces Mission. The Rev. J. Tunbridge, after thirty-three years' service, has been placed on the Superannuation Fund.

A 'decisive hour in the Punjab Mission

In some respects the present may be regarded as a 'decisive hour' in the Punjab Mission by virtue both of the movement, partly social and partly religious, among the depressed classes, and also of the spread of education.* The authorities in the Mission, replying to a circular letter concerning equipment, state that an evangelistic missionary for Srinagar, clergymen for Dera Ismail Khan and Multan, graduates to work among students at Hyderabad and Lahore, and two women missionaries for Montgomerywala, are required for the maintenance of existing work; while in order that advance may be made they ask for a missionary to open a new centre in the Jhang Bar, and two to be in readiness to make a forward move in the Multan district when the colonization in that region, which appears to be imminent, begins.

Literary work

The Rev. Canon H. U. Weitbrecht completed his Commentary on St. Matthew in English, and a tentative revision of the Psalms in Urdu; he also arranged some selected services from the Prayer-book for the poorer Christians, and revised the Urdu translation of some books of the Apocrypha by the Rev. S. A. C. Ghose of the S.P.G. Canon J. Ali Bakhsh acted as co-editor with an Indian Presbyterian clergyman of two Hindustani magazines, one for mission agents who do not know English and the other for educated non-Christians; the Rev. J. A. Wood edited the Punjab Mission News, which has a circulation of about three hundred per mensem; the Rev. E. Guilford continued the revision of the Psalms in Gurmukhi; the Revs. A. E. Ball, J. Redman and T. Mansukhani served on a committee which completed the translation of St. Matthew's and St. Luke's Gospels into Sindhi—each in two versions, one for Mohammedans and the other for Hindus; the last named also wrote a Life of the Saviour for Hindus, and four handbills for Mohammedans; and the Rev. A. D. Dixey rendered portions of the Gospels into Brahui.

Honours for missionaries

King George V. has bestowed the Kaisar-i-Hind gold medal on Dr. T. L. Pennell (who in 1903 received the silver medal from King Edward VII.) in recognition of his work on the North-West Frontier; and the silver medal on Dr. H. T. Holland, 'for faithful service in the relief of suffering and disease.' The Bishop of Lahore has appointed the Rev. Ihsan Ullah as Archdeacon of Delhi for a period of five years.

devote themselves to spiritual work among their countrymen. To promote the efficiency of those who are already engaged in that work summer schools for readers are held annually, and in 1910 were conducted at Tarn Taran and Narowal. A Training Class for junior vernacular women teachers was opened at Clarkabad in the spring of the year and soon had thirteen members. Every class in the

High School for boys at Multan was full, and the Scripture lessons were valued by many of the lads, some of whom seemed to show that they were deeply influenced by Christian teaching. The number of pupils at the A.L.O.E. School for non-Christian boys at Batala continued to increase. The Alexandra High School for girls at Amritsar had more boarders and day-scholars than in 1909; a kindergarten class was set on foot, and two non-Christians were admitted as boarders—a new departure, since only Christian girls had previously been received as such. Advance was shown also at most of the Lower Secondary Schools in the Mission. That at Bahawalpur, sixty miles south of Multan, the only missionary agency in the Mohammedan Native State of that name, has an Indian headmaster who is a 'real missionary'—a matter for special thankfulness in view of the difficulty so often experienced in obtaining efficient

Lower Secondary Schools

Baptism of a mission schoolboy

Christian masters for mission-schools. A boy belonging to the school at Kotgur, under Mr. S. E. Stokes, was baptized at Karnal in the autumn. Mr. Stokes had advised delay, but the youth, who was sixteen years of age, left Kotgur on his own initiative and went to Karnal for the purpose of getting baptized. Mr. Stokes went to fetch him back, and on the return journey the boy's uncle with other villagers fell on the party and seriously wounded Mr. Stokes. The uncle and others were brought up by the police for grievous hurt and riot, but at Mr. Stokes's intercession the Government withdrew from prosecution. The Industrial Work at St. John's College, Lahore, prospered, and a good spirit prevailed among the apprentices.

Hostels

Hostels are maintained in connexion with many of the secondary schools, and new ones for non-Christians were opened at Clarkabad and Narowal, in consequence of the standard of the schools at those stations being raised to the Vernacular Middle. Besides the hostels connected with the schools there are one or two others which call for brief notice. That for Christians at St. John's College, Lahore, was closed in the summer vacation in consequence of a spirit of insubordination, and when re-opened an age limit was assigned so as to prevent it becoming a sort of residential club for Christian men, no longer youths, in receipt of good salaries, and keep it more exclusively for students. The number of inmates of the Lady Lyall Home, which belongs to the Lady Dufferin Fund Committee though it is managed by the Society's missionaries, and is primarily intended for women medical students, rose from seven to twelve through the admission of five graduates reading for their teachers' certificate. The movement among the depressed classes renders the need of Vernacular Schools for their children acute, the more so that non-Christians are beginning to pay attention to these classes in the hope of turning them away from Christianity towards Hinduism or Mohammedanism. In the cities there is often some difficulty in maintaining the primary schools, and at Multan the landlord of the house in which a school for Hindu girls is held was attacked by a number of men and forced to give the missionaries immediate notice to leave. An instance of good being accomplished by a mission-school in the Punjab came to the notice of Miss E. A. Case of the Ceylon Mission. One day, while travelling by train in Ceylon, she entered into conversation with a soldier who proved to be a Christian. He told her his story, which she narrates as follows :— Vernacular Schools

Abundant fruit from work in a mission-school

He never attended a Christian school and knew nothing about our holy faith. He married a young girl who was educated at a mission boarding-school in North India, but not baptized. One day he went into an inner room where his wife was. He found her with a book open on a chair before her, and she on her knees doing, as he thought, puja (worship) to the book. So he asked her what she meant, as it was of no use doing puja to the book; it was not a god; he took the book from her, and the words 'Holy Bible' were on the cover in English. He called the girl's mother and asked her what it meant, and she said it was something her daughter had learned at school. The girl-wife then said that the mission sahib at school told her to pray to God, and that He was everywhere and would hear her. She then told them a little about the Book and the Lord Jesus which she had learned at school. Her husband was so interested that when they could get alone he got her to tell him more. Then he looked up the missionary, who passed him on to the Indian pastor for instruction. His elder brother and his people got very angry at this and said he was going to bad houses and bad people, and in the end turned him out. So he and his wife went to another city, where he got employment under a Christian engineer who knew his father. This gentleman passed him on to the missionary of that place. There also he was instructed, and he and his wife received baptism.

For three years he wrote regularly to his elder brother, but got no answer. At the end of that time he had a letter from his brother asking him to come and see him. He wrote and said he could not come, but if his brother wanted him he could come to him instead. The brother came and told him that there was something in this religion, and that he also believed it, but he wanted to know more. So he said, 'You must learn as I did and go to the pastor who taught me, and about whom you said those bad things.' This man and his family were instructed and became Christians. Since then their only sister, who is a graduate of an Indian University, has become an out-and-out Christian.

The number of C.M.S. mission-hospitals in the Punjab remained unaltered, but that at Kotgur is small, only containing four beds, and the women's hospital at Dera Ghazi Khan, three-fourths of which town have been swallowed up by the Indus,* was truly primitive in character—'the "wards" are mere mud-houses with holes for windows; the food is cooked between bricks in a corner on the floor; and the washing is done at the well.' But in spite of the surroundings many women applied for treatment and there were about 100 in-patients. Many of them were most refractory, refusing to undergo the treatment recommended or to take the medicines prescribed, declining the food prepared for them, objecting to wear warm clothing or lie between sheets, evincing little gratitude, and in some cases even leaving in the middle of the night without a word of warning or farewell. Nevertheless there were a good many who accepted a copy of the Gospels in one language or another, and one woman is spoken of who 'simply hungered and thirsted after righteousness,' and wished for more teaching than the missionaries were able to give. Medical work among the men in that part of the country was carried on by Indian doctors at Charwatta, eight miles from Dera Ghazi Khan, where a site has been chosen for a town to take the place of that city, and whither the inhabitants of the latter are beginning to move; and at Sakkhi Sarwar, thirty miles distant.* The first convert from Sakkhi Sarwar, a Mohammedan lad, was baptized in the autumn, and there were several inquirers. At Multan also, where the work in the women's hospital has increased more than tenfold during the decade since it was first opened, and the number of in-patients in 1910 was forty per cent. larger than in any previous year, there was much to encourage. The girls who were being trained as nurses were more promising; the compounder who was baptized in Multan a year or two ago improved greatly; the patients (influenced doubtless in some degree by the trained nurse, a woman who, after leading for twenty years the life of a well-to-do Hindu, accepted Christ as her Saviour, left everything and took up hospital work) listened to the Gospel with more attention than before; and a Mohammedan woman, a former patient, appeared to be a Christian at heart, though she showed no signs of desiring baptism.† At Amritsar the people recognized that the kindness with which they were treated was shown them for Christ's sake, and the itinerations undertaken by the doctors at that station afforded proofs of the help which a medical mission gives to the general work. The Rev. E. Guilford, who accompanied the Rev. Dr. G. B. Davis on an itineration, bears his witness as to the advantage which the presence of the latter afforded, and says:—

First-fruits from a branch dispensary

Kindness of doctors recognized as shown for Christ's sake

An ideal arrangement

> It is ideal when the evangelistic and the medical missionaries can work side by side right out among the villages; for while the former is preaching the Gospel of love the latter can show it in action. 'God has come into our village' was a remark I heard more than once while the doctor was at work. Our modus operandi was to settle on a place and make it our headquarters for a week or so. Then each day a band of preachers would go forth from there to the surrounding villages, preach the Word, and send all sick persons they came across to the doctor at headquarters. In this way a large area was covered, and the doctor got an average of 150 patients daily. To attend to the spiritual wants of these a preacher was always left behind with the doctor, while my wife did all she could to help in the dressings and in talking to the women patients. I have never enjoyed an itineration more than this one, neither do I think more solid good was ever done in a single month than was effected during the month that Dr. Davis was with us.*

Evangelistic work

The reports concerning the evangelistic work lay a good deal of stress on the increasing attention which is given to the Bible. One missionary writes from Amritsar that more people than formerly are reading it in their homes; another says that a marked feature in connexion with the bazaar-preaching has been the readiness with which the people, after listening, have bought Scripture portions; the Indian pastor at Ajnala states that when religious controversy is being waged a man, to prove his point, will often quote from the Bible; and at Narowal requests for a copy of the Scriptures were often received. An incident, reported by the Rev. F. Lawrence, is very significant. He writes:—

Increasing attention paid to the Bible

Scripture portions sold in a native shop

I was inquiring for an Urdu book at a native bookseller's shop in Amritsar city within a few yards of the Golden Temple. The man had not the book I wanted, but said, to my great surprise, 'We sell the Gospel, both in English and in Urdu.' It was as if the Religious Tract Society were offering the Koran for sale at their depôt in St. Paul's Churchyard!

Here and there the preachers met with some opposition, but such an occurrence was the exception rather than the rule, and the antagonism arising from caste is said to have diminished; indeed it may even be affirmed that Christianity has won a place among the religions of India in the estimation of the people of the Punjab. The openings for preaching the Gospel are chiefly in the villages; it is to them, according to the Rev. E. Guilford, that 'the finger of God is pointing' and in them that the greatest results are obtained. There is still something akin to a mass movement towards Christianity. In the Tarn Taran district the number of village congregations increased during the year from ten to twenty-two; in that worked from Clarkabad there were inquirers and catechumens under instruction at many places; in the Ajnala district there is 'life and movement'; and though around Narowal there was a certain pause in the movement at some places, yet at others distinct progress was discernible, and in the last four years the number of villages containing Christians and catechumens has risen from ninety-seven to 150, and of persons under instruction from 2,000 to 4,000. The motives which have inclined the people towards Christianity are largely social, but nevertheless the teaching imparted to them is making a vast difference in the lives of many.

The 'finger of God' points to the villages

Mass movements

Zenana work was carried on by the Society's missionaries at Multan and Lahore. In the former town between fifty and sixty houses were visited, and some ninety women taught regularly ;* while in Lahore many women appeared to be greatly interested in the Gospel, but the interest did not deepen into conviction.

Baptisms

The year witnessed the baptism of 175 adults in the Narowal district ; of about fifty, chiefly belonging to the lower castes, in the Asrapur district; and of more than 200 persons in the Tarn Taran district. At Tarn Taran itself fifty-eight persons were received into the visible Church on Easter Day, 1910,† but baptism was administered in other parts of the district as well, to remove the ideas which still prevail in some quarters that the initiatory rite into the Christian Church consists in a feast of beef or pork ! The converts of the year included some Sikhs ; three Mohammedans at Amritsar, one of whom had been a paid itinerant preacher of Islam and had read the Bible for many years, mainly for controversial purposes, and whose wife, once bitterly opposed to his baptism, afterwards put herself under instruction ; an orderly who had been taught by the S.P.G. missionaries at Delhi ; and a man who formerly had been Dr. Jukes's munshi and compounder at Dera Ghazi Khan. Dr. Jukes writes of this man as follows :—

A man poisoned because of his wish to become a Christian

> When we went on furlough in 1896 he was poisoned owing to his wish to be a Christian. This poison made him mad and he was a patient in the hospital eighteen months, but recovered sufficiently to resume his work on my return. As a result of the poisoning he lost all desire to be a Christian, and all memory that he had wished for it. After our transfer from Dera Ghazi Khan he took up service with Government from time to time, and I found him in Quetta when I went there. Shortly after I left he paid a visit to Dera Ghazi Khan and fell ill of a fever, which lasted many months. He was then seized with a conviction that he must confess his faith in Christ. While working with me as munshi he had translated all the New Testament into Western Punjabi, and a large part of the Old Testament, and he knew his Bible much better than many Christians ; but from his poisoning till the fall of 1909 he had no wish to become a Christian and denied all previous desire for it. On the Saturday before Easter he was, to our great joy, baptized by the name of Samuel.

Many more persons would have been baptized had there been a larger staff of workers, but the size of some of the districts, coupled with the widespread nature of the movement towards Christianity, made it impossible to examine all who had been prepared by the village teachers for baptism. The Rev. W. P. Hares, of Narowal, says that there are many scattered about over his district who have learned the appointed lessons, but have to wait their turn for a visit from the missionary. He adds that every adult before baptism has two, three or four personal interviews with the missionary, who examines him as to his knowledge of the fundamentals of Christianity. Three hundred inquirers are returned from Tarn Taran. In the Amritsar district the names of some had to be struck off the list, but others, in spite of the pressure to which they were subjected by their masters to dissuade them from embracing Christianity, stood firm in their desire for baptism, and in one village there were fifty-two persons under instruction, in another eighty, and in a third eighty people were actually ready for baptism and were only waiting for a visit from their pastor to administer the rite; while in a poor suburb of Amritsar city there were some eighty inquirers, largely the fruit of the zeal of a poor Christian lad living in that neighbourhood. Of individual inquirers may be mentioned a great guru who visited Mr. Stokes, asked for baptism, and told him that there are now some thirty Swamis (religious leaders) in the Punjab who go everywhere preaching Christ. A young man of good family asked for baptism at Bahawalpur, and was invited to stay at Multan for instruction so as to avoid disturbance, but he had not been in the city for twenty-four hours before five men arrived from Bahawalpur and forcibly took him away. A similar case of opposition occurred at Simla, where a young man who openly professed his desire to become a Christian was detained in his home by his friends, and was never allowed to leave it without a guard.

An inquirer taken away by force

Special services for the edification of the Indian Christians were held at Clarkabad and Tarn Taran early in the year under review, and made a deep impression.* At some stations there was a falling off in the attendance at services, and at Montgomerywala dissensions prevailed for a time among the congregation, but otherwise nothing but good is said of the converts. In the Chenab Colony gifts were larger, a general advance both in habits of cleanliness and in spirituality was apparent, and the community 'progressed in corporate consciousness.' This sense of brotherhood is one of the good results of the wave of Nationalism, which, while bringing some evils in its train, has undoubtedly delivered the converts from an individualistic and one-sided view of life, and has made them realize in some degree that they are members one of another. An increase in the contributions of the Christians is reported also from Narowal, where in four years the offerings of the people have multiplied tenfold, and from Tarn Taran, where they amount to about ten annas a head, though the people belong almost entirely to the labouring classes and the average monthly earnings of a family do not amount to more than twelve shillings. In both of these districts testimony was borne by non-Christians to the good character enjoyed by the Christian converts. At Narowal many disputes which in the ordinary course of events would have gone before the local Hindu magistrate were settled by the Church committee, and that official more than once refused to try cases of minor importance, saying that the Christian panchayats were fully able to deal with them. In the Tarn Taran district the testimonies were more direct. The chief man of one village, where there are about 150 Christians, said that they had vastly improved since their baptism; the lives of some others led a Sikh sardar to remark, 'For truth and righteousness and justice we have to look to the Christians; we cannot find these virtues among ourselves'; and concerning another place Mr. Guilford wrote in December:—

> At a village where our people were boycotted for about five years by two-thirds of the village for refusing to participate in heathen rites to scare away cholera which was raging in the place, the leader of those who bound themselves by an oath not to employ Christians, and agreed to submit to a fine of Rs 25 if they did employ them, came to me when I was encamped there a few weeks ago, and said that, happen what might, he would not be bound any longer by his oath, for he was determined to employ a certain Christian, as he was the best worker and the most honest man in the village. To show his bona fides he brought an offering of fruit and sugar and Rs. 5 towards the Church funds. From the same village another of the boycotted Christians found employment in the Canals Department under Government. At the time I was at the village last autumn an order was received that about a dozen men were to be discharged from the canals, and our brother was among them. When they appeared before the European officer to take their discharge, the Moslem sub-overseer under whom they had worked pleaded that the Christian might be retained, as he was the best and most upright worker that he had.

Deaths of well-known Indian Christians

A well-known member of the Christian community, Babu R. R. Raha, passed away at Simla in July, 1910. For many years he had been manager of the Punjab Bible and Religious Book Depôt in Lahore, and he was thoroughly respected by both Europeans and Indians for his sterling goodness. An appreciation of him, written by Sir P. C. Chatterjee, a non-Christian, the acknowledged head of the orthodox Hindus in Lahore, and who has been Judge of the High Court and Vice-Chancellor of the University, appeared in the Church Missionary Review.* Another well-known Indian Christian gentleman, Mr. Chandu Lal, died suddenly at Lahore at the end of 1910.

II. KASHMIR

An epidemic of cholera

THE Valley of Kashmir was visited in the autumn by a serious epidemic of cholera, which attacked some 20,000 people, of whom fewer than half recovered. All ordinary occupations as well as pleasures were suspended for a time, and many days were devoted to general mourning. Part of this consisted at Srinagar of processions of Mohammedans carrying a flag on a long pole, beating a gong and shouting the name of God in connexion with such phrases as, 'What wrong have we done? We have done nothing wrong. Take this evil away. Take it away.' During the epidemic, which was more fatal at Islamabad than at Srinagar, Dr. Minnie Gomery paid more than 1,000 visits to sufferers.†

† Gl., March, 1911, p. 44; Gaz., Feb., p. 50.

Medical work

Almost every branch of the work was affected by the cholera, even that carried on at the mission-hospitals, for the villagers are afraid to travel when there is infection about. Nevertheless, the number of patients was well maintained at Srinagar, and also at Islamabad until October, when the hospital was closed owing to Dr. Minnie Gomery having to leave on furlough. The patients at Srinagar listened well to the teaching which was given, and some of them, so far as could be judged, put their trust in the Lord Jesus. Mrs. Greville Stuart, the widow of a former C.M.S. missionary in the United Provinces, who kindly assisted in the evangelistic work in the wards, speaks of one woman who prayed with apparent earnestness, 'O God, grant me salvation for Jesus' sake,' and of others whose faces seemed to light up as they understood something of the beauty of the Gospel. Dr. Ernest Neve made a couple of itinerations, and at one village to which he went was visited by 450 patients in a couple of days. The house surgeon at the Leper Hospital had to be dismissed because of certain irregularities, and shortly afterwards, fearing that his life was in danger, apostatized for the third time.*

Educational work

The High School at Srinagar has about 600 pupils, and the four branch schools in different parts of the city, together with a fifth at Islamabad, thirty-five miles away, contain between them some 800 more. Fifteen lads out of twenty who entered passed the matriculation examination of the Punjab University. In the absence of the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe on furlough, the the Rev. F. E. Lucey, assisted by Mr. Musgrave, of Christ Church, Oxford, a short-service man, continued the efforts to develop a spirit of social service in the lads. On one occasion, during the cholera scare too, the school fleet towed some logs required for the Ranawari dispensary through the Mar Canal—a canal of 'stagnant, filthy water and evil smell'—and the next day volunteers carted the logs through half a mile of narrow bazaar from the landing-place to the dispensary. Mr. Lucey says that it took about two hours to move one of the logs into the hand-cart, shifting it inch by inch. Most of the boys were ready enough to read the Bible, and some seemed to be deeply influenced by it, and were only kept back from open confession of faith in Christ by the tremendous cost which that involves, i.e. loss of livelihood, if not of liberty. Two of the students, one a Hindu and the other a Mohammedan, asked for baptism, and were sent away to another part of the country to be instructed. Good reports were received of the Mohammedan convert from the school whose baptism was recorded in the Annual Report for 1907–8,† and who is now at the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel, Allahabad. The Rev. W. E. S. Holland says of him, 'The quiet and simple consistency of his life, together with his thorough-going sympathy with Indian feeling and aspiration, have won for him the respect of all and the affection of many of the hostellers.'* The two primary schools at Srinagar had to compete with several State schools, but held their ground, and the girls' school at Islamabad, which was set on foot amid many difficulties in 1908, made steady advance and had fifty-seven names on its register at the end of the year.

Evangelistic work

The libraries and reading-rooms, which were mentioned in last year's Report,† continued to be useful, and the old moulvi there spoken of asked one day to be allowed to buy at full price a Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel which he had borrowed, as he wished always to have it by him. Efforts were made to circulate the Scripture portions and other Christian books not only by means of the libraries, but also by house-to-house visiting in the city and itinerations among the villages. The Rev. E. Johnson-Smyth, who devoted himself especially to this branch of work, says that in Srinagar he one day sold as many as thirty books in two hours, simply by standing on one of the main bridges and accosting the passers-by, and that in the villages he found many persons able to read and disposed of a good many books, where the moulvi of the place was not antagonistic. He writes as follows :—

Sale of Christian books

> The results of this work cannot be expressed in the form of statistics, but results, I feel sure, there must be. A young clerk in one of the Government offices bought The Teaching of Christ in His own Words, and a few days later he volunteered the information to one of our Indian brethren how deeply struck and impressed he had been with the teaching. 'If that were Christianity, he would like to be a Christian.'

Of course some opposition was shown to the circulation of Christian books, and one Mohammedan of good position in Srinagar was accused by an acquaintance of being a heretic on account of some Christian literature which had been seen in his house. The matter was brought before the leading mujtahid, but he dismissed the case, saying that similar books might be found in the houses of the foremost mullahs, and that the Bible was a sacred book for all Moslems.

III. NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE

By means of the mission-hospitals in the North-West Frontier Province many different tribes are reached, and not only those found in the province itself. Women and others from Kabul, boys from Kohistan, far away over the frontier to the north, Pathans, Afridis from Tirah—all these were admitted into one or other of the hospitals during the year. There was no lack of applicants anxious to avail themselves of the skill of the doctors and nurses; indeed, it often happened at Bannu that there were as many as thirty-five women in-patients, although the wards reserved for them are not supposed to accommodate more than sixteen. The kindness which the patients experienced and the Christian teaching which they received were not without their effect. At Tank the people showed their appreciation of the work of Dr. Nathaniel Williams, the Indian Christian doctor, by subscribing Rs. 1,400 towards the building of a new dispensary; and at Akora, where a dispensary is held once a week, the leading residents, who originally opposed the opening of the dispensary, requested that it should be held every day.* Another instance of the power of the medical work to remove prejudice was narrated by Dr. T. L. Pennell in the course of an address delivered in London in the summer of 1910. He then said:—

> There was once a mullah in Bannu who was particularly virulent in his public denunciations of the Mission and everything connected with it. He would frequently give public lectures, which were tirades against all Christians and missionaries in particular, telling the people that if they died in the mission-hospital they would assuredly go to hell, and all the mission-medicine they drank would be turned into so much lead which would drag them relentlessly down, down to the bottomless pit—and much more in that strain. We were, therefore, somewhat surprised when one fine morning we beheld four white-robed talibs (disciples) bringing a bed to the hospital, on which was a form covered by a white sheet, and on lifting the sheet there was this very mullah! We did not ask him awkward questions, but admitted him at once, and I think our Christian assistants throughout his long and dangerous illness showed him particular attention and nursed him with special care. They never taunted him with his former attitude toward us, but strove by the exhibition of Christian forbearance and sympathy to give him a practical exhibition of what Christianity is. When he left the hospital he thanked us in the presence of his disciples, and offered a prayer for blessing on the hospital, and he is now one of our staunchest friends.

In some instances a real interest in Christianity was shown. A couple of mullahs visited the hospital at Dera Ismail Khan several times on purpose to ask questions about Christianity, and on one occasion the friends of one of the patients were so anxious to hear the Gospel while they were in the ward that it was difficult to attend to the medical side of the work. A compounder at Bannu was baptized with his wife and child, but, on the other hand, much sorrow was caused there by the apostasy to Islam of the hospital assistant in charge of the work at Thal, in pique at having been reprimanded for certain irregularities, and of another man, a recent convert, who was influenced by him.†

Baptism of a hospital assistant

Two other persons besides the man mentioned above were received into the visible Church at Bannu, and there were four Hindu inquirers in Kohat, as well as one, a young man, at Dera Ismail Khan, who, however, was enticed away by his Mohammedan uncle. In the latter town the bazaar-preaching was always listened to with attention, but there were very few signs of any fruit.

Educational work

Twenty-eight of the 482 boys belonging to the High School at Peshawar went in for the matriculation examination of the Punjab University, and fourteen of them were successful. The number of boarders in the hostels connected with that school and with the school at Dera Ismail Khan increased. As in other parts of India, much difficulty was met with in securing Christian teachers, and it is to this that Mr. C. F. Hall attributes the lack of definite spiritual results at Peshawar, for if any boy shows a marked interest in Christian teaching it is only natural that masters of his own faith should warn the boy's parents of the danger, from their point of view, which threatens their son.

The lack of Christian teachers

IV. BALUCHISTAN

Medical work

THERE was less opposition than formerly to the religious teaching in the hospital at Quetta, the Society's station in Baluchistan, but on the other hand there was not so noticeable a spirit of inquiry.* The amount raised locally for the medical work by fees, etc., has increased during the last decade from Rs. 750 to Rs. 7,500. The death of the hospital evangelist, Barkhurdar Khan by name, which occurred in Sindh in the autumn, will be sorely felt. 'As a controversialist,' the Rev. A. E. Ball says, 'he stood in the first rank,' and Dr. H. T. Holland adds that the evangelist preached Christ not only with his lips but also in his daily life.† In the spring of 1910 the Rev. A. D. Dixey and Dr. H. T. Holland undertook an itineration in Kalat State, where two branch dispensaries have been established, one at Dadar, open in the winter, and the other at Mastang, open in the summer. The Brahuis, the people of the State, are nominally Mohammedans, but on the whole they are not fanatical, nor are they careful in the observance of their religious duties. The duties which they regard as incumbent on all are summarized as being to avenge blood, to show hospitality to all visitors, to pardon an offence on the intercession of a woman, and to cease fighting when a mullah, sayyid or woman bearing the Koran on her head intervenes. In the course of the tour, a full account of which appeared in the Church Missionary Review,‡ sufferers were medically treated, visitors were received, and much was done to win the sympathy of the chiefs and headmen without whose goodwill there is little chance of making way among the ordinary people.

Bookshop, where during the year twenty-seven Bibles or Scripture portions and 359 other Christian books in English were sold, and 442 and 1,188 respectively in the various vernaculars. Eleven adults received baptism, and there were several inquirers, including three Mohammedans and a young Persian. The last named confessed his belief in the truth of Christianity, and when he left for his home he declared that he would return to Quetta for baptism.

Educational work

The school for Mohammedans had to be closed, but that for the depressed classes, the only one of its character in Baluchistan and the North-West Frontier Province, had a good number of names on its roll. It is difficult to retain the low-caste children for long, but good work has been done by the school, and some old boys now occupy respectable positions in the town.

Pastoral work

The congregation, which has increased by nearly 100 per cent. during the last decade, has some members whose Christianity appears to be little more than nominal, but others displayed simple trust in God, and the thankofferings which were made during the year showed that they attributed the blessings which they enjoyed to the right source.

V. SINDH

Educational work

THE High School at Karachi made steady improvement in efficiency with the result that the Government grant was doubled, but the number of names on its roll was rather smaller than in 1909. By means of the Bible-teaching, which is given every day with the exception of Saturday, character is being 'built up on a solid foundation'; and the chief officer of the municipality one day expressed the opinion that men educated in mission-schools, and it may be presumed that he had the Karachi school as well as others in his mind, were on the whole of stronger character and more trustworthy and straightforward than those taught in other schools.

Influence of mission-schools on character

Evangelistic work

Several tours were made by the missionaries and Indian clergy in Sindh. The method usually adopted was to preach both morning and evening in the bazaar of each town or village visited, and sell gospels and tracts; then to visit any religious institution that there happened to be, and converse with the men assembled there; and in addition to call on any men who might be likely to welcome a visit. Bibles and Scripture portions had a ready sale, and frequently the people listened quietly, though opposition was met with in the Karachi district, and in one town in the Sukkur district some schoolboys tore up the Scripture portions which they had bought.

Activity of the Arya Samaj

There were several indications of the activity of the members of the Arya Samaj, whose itinerant emissaries were found in unexpected places, and who are evidently 'fishing with a net of very small mesh.' The Book Depôt at Karachi has been made self-supporting by instituting the sale of school books as well as Baptisms. religious books. Two Mohammedans were baptized at Karachi, one of whom was led to seek instruction through listening to the bazaar-preaching; and five persons at Hyderabad, three of them Tamils and the other two girls belonging to the orphanage of the C.E.Z.M.S.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that the C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society there have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Junnar was occupied in 1843; Malegam, 1848; Aurungabad, 1860; Poona, 1882; and Manmad, 1901.

The first Bishop of Bombay, Dr. Carr, was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been: Bishops Harding (1851), Douglas (1869), Mylne (1876), Macarthur (1898), Pym (1903) and Palmer (1908).

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Five stations are occupied by European missionaries (of whom there are twelve clergymen, nine wives, and five single women on the list) in Western India.

The institutions in the Mission consist of the Robert Money School for boys and a boarding-school for Christian girls in Bombay; at Poona, to the south-east, a divinity school, and a high school for Parsi girls; while at Sharanpur, a suburb of Nasik, which lies to the north-east, there are orphanages and a middle school, as also at Aurungabad, about 100 miles east of Nasik. There are hostels in Bombay, Lonauli, Poona, Aurungabad and Badnapur.

Special efforts are made to reach the Mohammedans in Aurungabad; and itinerating work is carried on from Manmad, rather to the north, and also from some of the other stations. The Z.B.M.M. does most of the work among the women, but the C.M.S. has some zenana work at Aurungabad. The Indian clergymen, ten in number, are responsible for the oversight of most of the 3,800 Native Christians. There are also 156 Indian Christian lay agents.

The following are the members of the Bombay Corresponding Committee: the Bishop of Bombay, Archd. W. A. Dickins, Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Mr. F. J. Clark, Mr. D. L. Johnston, R.E., Sir H. E. E. Procter, Mr. W. L. Weldon, and the Revs. L. B. Butcher, W. Kennelly, H. J. Smith and Canon R. S. Heywood (Secretary).

Deaths of the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji,

A WELL-KNOWN Indian clergyman, the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji, died at Panchgani on June 24, 1910. He was baptized in 1856, and ordained in 1870. For twenty-nine years he laboured at Aurungabad, in the Nizam's Dominions, where for most of the time he was in charge of the work. Between 1870 and 1893 he admitted 1,400 persons by baptism into the Church.*

Mrs. T. K. Weatherhead

On September 4, Mrs. Weatherhead, the widow of the Rev. T. K. Weatherhead, passed away. Mr. Weatherhead worked in Western India from 1860–78, and afterwards for a year was in charge of the C.M. Children's Home. Two of his sons, the Revs. H. W. and H. T. C. Weatherhead, are missionaries in Uganda.

and Mrs. Sorabji

The widow of a former C.M.S. pastor, the Rev. Sorabji Kharsedji, was called to her rest on October 24, 1910. For some time before her husband's death until a few years ago she conducted the important Victoria High School for girls at Poona, connected with the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission. Her last days were spent at Nasik, where she rendered valuable help in the Christian village of Sharanpur.*

Reinforcements

The names of the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Thorne, and the Rev. William Thomas Veel, of Islington College, L.Th., Durham University, have been added to the list of C.M.S. missionaries in Western India. Mr. Thorne was on the staff from 1889 to 1907, since which time he has been acting as a C.M.S. Organizing Secretary at home. Miss Evelyn Clara Gedge, a niece of Miss M. S. Gedge of the Ceylon Mission, has sailed for Western India, where she is working under the Z.B.M. Mission, to which her services have been temporarily lent. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. G. Clark, tendered with the design of reading for a degree and then rejoining; and Miss H. D. Sever's term of service has expired.

Development of Native Church organization

A step in the development of the Native Church in the Mission was taken during the year under review by the establishment of a Central Board, consisting of the Bombay Corresponding Committee and a certain number of elected representatives of the various Church councils, with the Bishop of Bombay as chairman, the functions of which are to give titles to Indian clergy, to recommend their locations to the Bishop, to settle matters of finance, to direct the evangelistic efforts of the Native Christians, etc. In connexion with this Board a 'Forward' fund has been set on foot with the object of encouraging the converts to undertake more effectually and zealously the evangelization of their non-Christian countrymen. It has already justified its existence, for the Bombay District Church Council has undertaken the support of two 'Own Missionaries' on the island of Salsette, immediately north of Bombay. In other parts of the Mission also the gifts of the Christians showed a tendency to advance and the spirit of self-support appeared to develop, albeit at Manmad, where in the past a good example of liberality has been set, some falling off was witnessed. The growing influence of the Christians, one of whom has lately been appointed a Justice of the Peace, another a Professor of Physics at the Grant Medical College, Bombay, and a third to a post in the Nizam's Education Department, has fostered in them an eagerness to 'stand on their own feet'; while among the villagers in the district of Aurungabad a desire for self-improvement has sprung up, due to the feeling that the old hereditary means of earning money, which are more or less connected with heathen practices,† are not worthy of Christians and must be abandoned. This improvement, however, must depend largely on education, and since the people recognize that under present circumstances any increase in grants from the C.M.S. cannot be looked for, they are compelled to see what they can do with their own resources. In other respects besides self-support a good account is given of the converts. 'The recent reductions ordered from home,' writes Canon R. S. Heywood, the secretary of the Mission, 'have stimulated the little congregation at Malegam to do more to evangelize the Heathen round about them'; and the Rev. H. J. Smith, of Aurungabad, tells of a growth of spiritual activity among the Christians connected with the Hindustani Mission in that city. The converts, moreover, enter with joy into the celebration of the Church festivals, and make them an occasion of promoting discipline. The Rev. S. S. Patole writes as follows concerning the celebration of Christmas Day in Aurungabad :—

Greater zeal concerning evangelization

> From twelve o'clock midnight the young men go from house to house carol-singing and telling people Christmas Day has come. This goes on till daybreak, and in the morning they put on their best clothes and assemble and walk in procession to church, singing, with Indian music. Thus they enter the church. The men and the women are separate. The church is decorated with flowers, and they usually have a large dinner by subscription, in which the whole congregation takes part. During this, from time to time, some one repeats poetry or hymn; then the whole congregation shouts, with one consent, 'Victory to Jesus Christ!'

How Indian Christians celebrate Christmas Day

He adds that at Easter those who walk contrary to their profession are 'not allowed to partake of the joy of the day' or to sit with the other converts at dinner, in order that 'their fault may be remembered by the congregation, and others may learn not to do the same.' Many of the Christians, however, are still very ignorant, and exposed as they are to temptations and, in some cases, to petty persecution in the form of false accusations of theft, etc., while often they have but little opportunity of receiving instruction and exhortation, it is hardly surprising that some of them fall away from the faith. A passage from the Rev. J. P. Butlin's annual letter shows clearly how great are the disabilities under which some of the converts labour in the last named respect. He writes :—

The exercise of discipline

> I wonder whether friends realize at home the awful spiritual poverty of these people? Some in isolated villages see a teacher once a month, a pastor once a year, and a missionary once in five years. What would our dear people at home, whose church is round the corner, say and do if they only heard a sermon from an ordained pastor once a year, and he only a deacon at that? And then think of the sinking of heart or else hopeless carelessness and indifference in the midst of Heathenism when the missionary announces that their only teacher has to go, dismissed through lack of funds! Do you wonder that some of them, ignorant as they are, throw the whole thing over and marry their children by Hindu rites and return to Hinduism? Who is going to look or care? Then they get turned out of the Church, bad reports go home, and who wonders at it? What would many of our working-men at home do in like circumstances, too poor to pay for their own teachers? The way some of these after dismissal have never ceased to preach the Gospel and look after scattered Christians has been magnificent. It is with a somewhat heavy heart I write this letter, because, though souls are dying for the Word of Life and are asking me for it, I cannot reach them; though people demand to be taught I cannot supply the teachers even when I have them to hand; and those already enlightened sink back again, through lack of instruction, to ignorance and sin. And what about the numerous inquirers now fast coming in? I cannot get round to see them and examine them all. I am in many cases afraid to baptize them—who is to keep them in the faith? You will say I am faithless, but God has committed to human instruments the Word of reconciliation, and, alas! we have to retrench. What about the old man dying in our district, his faith in Hinduism lost and with only a dim perception of Christianity? 'I have no faith in Hinduism,' he said; 'I believe in Christ. No missionary or teacher has been near to instruct or baptize me. I hope Christ will accept me.' And so he died, stepping out into the darkness alone.

Few spiritual privileges

I hope Christ will accept me'

In the cities the difficulties of the converts arise rather from the temptations to which they are exposed than to the lack of the means of grace, and so great are the former that many young men yield to the desire to be free from all moral and religious restrictions, and come to consider it 'an honour to be bound by nothing.' It has therefore been felt desirable to increase as far as possible the number of mission-hostels, so that Christian young men may have some refuge from the sin which surrounds them in lodgings. During the year two new hostels were opened in Bombay, one for middle-class clerks and telegraph men and the other for students,* and a third at Poona for Christians from up-country visiting the town in search of work.

New hostels

Educational work

Nine students read in the Divinity School at Poona, most of them drawn from the backward classes. A great change was observable in the lives of some of the pupils at the Robert Money School, Bombay, and visits were occasionally received from old boys desirous of learning more about the Saviour. The number of children in the Girls' Boarding-school, and also in the day-school connected with it, increased; the children, it is said, represent about sixty different towns and villages. At St. Helena's, Poona, an upper secondary school for Parsi girls, there are some 160 names on the roll. The Anglo-Vernacular School at Malegam has been closed owing to the necessity for retrenchment. The Orphanage at Nasik had a record year in that the doors of the little hospital did not once require to be opened, while the primary school earned the highest possible Government grant. A former pupil in one of the primary schools at Khed became an inquirer during the year.

Evangelistic work

Evangelistic work was prosecuted by the ordinary methods, including lectures in English to educated Mohammedans at Poona, in which a certain moulvi displayed great interest, raising a discussion after almost every lecture and showing a remarkable knowledge of the Bible; public controversies in Bombay, at which Moulv Ahmed Masih, of the S.P.G. Delhi Mission, was the Christian apologist;† other discussions, conducted in Hindustani, held week by week at Aurungabad, and attended by audiences varying from 100 to 200;‡ preaching to the crowds of people waiting for their trains at the important railway junction at Manmad; and distributing

Christian literature. Cheering news is received from every hand. The Mohammedans were increasingly friendly; in Aurungabad itself prominent men often offered the huqqa, or pipe of peace, to Christian workers in token of friendship, they welcomed and returned visits from the Rev. H. J. Smith, and they took free advantage of the weekly 'At Home' which was held for them. The women were not behindhand. Miss L. Wood says that zenana work has increased so rapidly that it is difficult to describe it, and that she and her native helper have been obliged to abandon their original intention of only visiting as many women as could be taught regularly, so numerous were the invitations they received and so wonderful the openings for preaching the Gospel. She gives an example :—

Friendliness of Mohammedans

Rapid growth of zenana work

> One day we went to a house in a suburb of Aurungabad which we had never visited before, and where a request had been made for a visit. We were taken into the zenana at once and found a well-educated (for a Mohammedan) lady. She could read and write, and even knew some words of English. After much talking and tea-drinking and eating of pan, we at last got to work and began hymn-singing. This was the signal for a crowd to gather. From many doorways the women of the zenana appeared, and through a gateway at the back many more neighbours gathered round us until we had a congregation of twenty or more. In a crowd like this there is nearly always some listening hungry face, and here there was one woman who seemed to listen with all her heart while we told of the need of a Saviour and God's wonderful provision. In this zenana we were able to leave some of the written Word of God, in the form of a picture leaflet, and before we left our hostess was reading it.

Reports concerning efforts to reach the Hindus are no less hopeful. When itinerating in the Aurungabad district the missionaries were approached at a place called Ramkhed by deputation after deputation from neighbouring villages, representing little congregations of from twenty-five to sixty people, and in nearly every case the burden of the petition was 'Give us a prayer-house.' At a place near Poona a whole Tamil community was seriously considering whether they would not unitedly accept Christ as their Saviour and guide; while in the district worked from Bombay there were openings on all sides, and a willingness, if not an eagerness, to listen to the Gospel. One old woman frequently visited Miss H. D. Sever's tent and expressed faith in Christ, but added piteously, 'I am an old woman now, and my brother has kept me for many days; how can I leave him now? Why didn't you tell us when we were young?' Even among those who do not in any sense profess to be inquirers there are indications of a changed attitude towards Christianity, and cases occur from time to time which show how widely the influence of the Gospel is being felt. The Rev. S. C. Kurhade mentions a headman, who has since died, who some years ago having prayed in vain to the Hindu gods for a son, made a vow to the living God, and obtaining a son in his old age, built a temple in which now there is no idol, but a lamp is kept burning by his relatives. Another pastor, the Rev. I. Y. Yesudian, says that those who in bygone days would not give so much as a drink of water to Christians, now invite them to dinner and call them 'brothers of the Book.'

Baptisms

The adults baptized during the year in Bombay include a couple of Mohammedan men, who are said to be zealous in seeking to win others for Christ; a man and woman, inmates of a leper asylum; four adult Gujeratis, several Marathas,* a Beni-Israel lad, and eleven converts won by the S.P.G. Tamil Mission and baptized on the sea-shore by one of the Indian clergy connected with the C.M.S.† Fifty persons were received into the visible Church in the Nasik district; at Poona a woman was baptized with her son and his little wife, eight years of age, and also a Tamil Hindu and a Tamil Mohammedan, in whom their European employers, engaged in the Government service, took great interest, both instructing them and also acting as sponsors. Three inquirers are reported from Khed, which is worked from Poona, and which in the past has proved hard ground; and five men were admitted to the catechumenate at Sakur, a village in the same district. A Brahman of mature age ‡ and a Mahar were baptized at Manmad, but several disappointments were met with in that district, and in one village a number of Mahars had to be put back after the Baptismal Service had actually been begun. The Rev. T. J. Ison writes:—

Candidates for baptism put back at the last moment

> They had been pressing for baptism for some time, but I felt that there was more desire for earthly gain than for spiritual benefits, so I kept them back. At length, however, their baptismal day was fixed. Our first thought was to have the baptism in their own village, but they urged that it should be in our Manmad church. Nine men, six women and three children came and were hospitably entertained. They came to church apparently ready for the solemn step. A great congregation gathered. The Rev. W. Wyatt, of Nasik, came to take the service, as the people were received as catechumens in his time. He spoke very earnestly to them of the joy which was not only on earth but in heaven on such an occasion. The Baptismal Service was then begun. All seemed right until the decisive question was asked, 'Do you wish to be baptized?' then hesitancy and evasion became apparent, and finally the question of the leader of the party, 'Will you get us land?' showed that they were not ready, and, to our distress, we had to close the service without baptizing them. We pointed out afterwards that their behaviour was an insult to God and to the congregation, and that they must wait some time longer till they learned that baptism is concerned with 'things spiritual,' not 'things temporal.'

From Aurungabad come tidings of the baptism of some sixty persons. Among them were a Mohammedan tailor, another man who for many years had opposed Christianity but was led to change his attitude by the fatal illness of his eldest son, and four families at a village called Palkhed, where the Gospel had long been resisted. These people were first impressed at a Christian marriage service, which was held in their village and to which they were invited. The sanctity, beauty and power of the service, and also the Christian worship and prayer, attracted them, and they asked for instruction. Mr. Butlin, writing in December, says:— People attracted by the beauty of the Christian marriage service

> Although the candidates could neither read nor write, and one or two had grey hairs, they were enabled to take in the main truths of their salvation and state them intelligibly. They had a clear perception of why they left Hinduism and came to Christ, and could also give some account of His life, i.e. birth, death, resurrection, ascension and coming again to judge the world. It was a pleasure to see their new-born enthusiasm and zeal for Christ in their ready answers to the baptismal questions, and their evident understanding of the meaning of the rite. Their zeal and love are just the same now, and charm even the old Christians they come across. One of the most touching incidents I ever heard was related of them by their catechist last month. One of their children had died while the catechist was absent on tour. They felt it not right to bury the child as a Heathen without any prayer, so they knelt down by the grave and said the Lord's Prayer, for that was all they knew, and then one of them offered up a simple prayer full of faith. How did we find out? The Heathen told us. It had impressed even them.

The Rev. D. L. Joshi, who has been appointed to a Canonry in Bombay Cathedral, continued to edit the Anglo-Marathi magazine, The Torch of Religion, and also translated into Marathi a Life of Jesus Christ, intended especially for non-Christian students; while the Rev. L. Hari devoted some time to the revision of the Gujerati Prayer-book. Literary work

SOUTH INDIA MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The Tamil Country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the eighteenth century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been Bishops Spencer (1837), Dealtry (1849), Gell (1861) and Whitehead (1899). Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of C.M.S. missionaries, Robert T. Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started in 1843 the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-two years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several Indian clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Native Church, hitherto chiefly drawn from the Malas and other out-caste or low-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Raghavapuram, 1872; Khammamett, 1888; and Hyderabad, 1901. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godavari, was founded at Dummagudem by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Indian Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent and others (not to mention workers of the S.P.G., which has a fruitful Mission contiguous to that of the C.M.S.), the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as assistant-Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891. Dr. Morley was consecrated in 1896, his jurisdiction (consensual) extending over Tinnevelly and Madura. He resigned in 1903, and was succeeded by Dr. Williams.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The South India Mission, in which twenty-four European and Colonial clergymen, ninety-two Indian clergymen, two laymen, twenty-one wives of missionaries, and nine single women are engaged, falls into three divisions.

I. The first division comprises the work in Madras, the Nilgiris and the Wynaad, though these are widely separated, Ootacamund being 300 miles south-west of Madras.

Pastoral and evangelistic work in Madras is almost exclusively in the hands of a District Church Council, which is manned and, as regards pastoral work, entirely financed by Indians; but the Society has a divinity school and the Harris High School, and is responsible for special efforts to influence Mohammedans. In the Nilgiris and the Wynaad there are several schools for boys, and a number of hill tribes are reached by the evangelistic work.

II. The Telugu Country stretches 500 miles northward from the city of Madras along the eastern coast of India, in some parts extending inland for 300 miles. About half-way up, near the coast, lies Masulipatam, the head station of the Telugu Mission; the other chief stations are Bezwada, on the Kistna, some fifty miles from its mouth; Ellore, north of Masulipatam; Dummagudem, 100 miles up the Godavari; Raghavapuram, on the borders of the Nizam's dominions; and Khammamett and Hyderabad (see Plate 12), both in those dominions, the latter being the capital.

The chief educational agencies are the Noble College with an attached high school, a training institution, and the Sharkey Memorial Girls' School, at Masulipatam, and high schools for boys at Bezwada and Ellore. Twenty-eight Indian clergymen are engaged in ministering to the numerous but scattered bodies of converts.

At Hyderabad the work is chiefly among Mohammedans; and at Dummagudem a few Kois are reached.

III. In Tinnevelly, at the extreme south of the Indian Peninsula, a District Church Council with an English chairman, under which fifty-two Indian clergymen are labouring, is responsible for the pastoral work among the 65,500 Christians, and also, with the help of an Itinerating Band of evangelists, for most of the evangelistic work, the majority of the Society's missionaries being engaged in education.

There are a preparandi class at Palamcotta, a college and high school in Tinnevelly Town, high schools for boys at Palamcotta, Mengnanapuram and Srivilliputhur, and boys' boarding-schools at Surandei, Sachiapuram and Dohnavur; while female education is provided for by the Sarah Tucker College and a boarding-school at Palamcotta, the Elliot Tuxford School at Mengnanapuram, and boarding-schools at Nallur and Suviseshapuram. There are schools for blind boys and girls at Palamcotta.

The C.E.Z.M.S. carries on women's work at most of the C.M.S. stations.

The following are the members of the Madras Corresponding Committee: The Bishop of Madras, Archdeacon E. L. Cox, Mr. W. Chamier, Mr. A. S. Cowdell, Mr. P. Hawkins, Mr. E. S. Hensman, Mr. S. D. Pears, and the Revs. Norman Bennet, E. A. L. Moore, R. H. Welchman and R. W. Peachey (Acting-Secretary).

Deaths of the Rev. T Kember,

A VETERAN worker in South India has been removed in the person of the Rev. T. Kember, who died at Ootacamund on January 18, 1911. He joined the Mission as a layman in 1865, and from the first was connected with the Palamcotta Training Institution, of which he was appointed principal in 1875. Three years later he was ordained. 'His quiet and consistent life,' the Rev. T. Walker says, 'was marked by special humility, love and placidity.' Mr. Kember's son, Dr. A. T. Kember, is on the C.M.S. staff in Mid China.*

the Rev. M. H. Cooksley

The Rev. M. H. Cooksley, medical pastor at Mengnanapuram, passed away on February 7. He was ordained by Bishop Sargent in 1878, and for forty-two years had been in charge of the dispensary at his station.

and the Rev. S. Sandosham

The Rev. S. Sandosham, who died on April 4, 1911, had been a Hindu of the Shanar caste. He was ordained in 1876, and after serving in several of the Tinnevelly pastorates retired in 1909.

The effects of retrenchment

Many of the reports received from the Mission are sad reading in the indications which they afford of what is meant by retrenchment. In the Telugu Country the evangelists' class at the training institution has been closed owing to the financial straitness; and in the Nilgiris a similar fate has overtaken a number of village schools, and men and women who have served the Mission for many years have been turned adrift through no fault of their own. The Rev. H. A. D. Moorhouse speaks of an old teacher to whom he was obliged to give notice as the school was to be closed, and who weeping bitterly exclaimed, 'I have served the Mission faithfully for twenty years, and must I now go and eat the bread of a stranger?'

Teachers dismissed

As to the position in Tinnevelly and the feelings of the missionaries there about retrenchment, the Rev. E. S. Carr wrote in December :—

The youngest clerical missionary in Tinnevelly of nineteen years' service

In a few weeks our youngest ordained missionary will be of nineteen years' service. There are six of us (apart from the Sarah Tucker College ladies), and with a nineteen-year gap it is difficult to see how the work can go on after another few years unless recruits are at once forthcoming to be in preparation for the work in the future. It is only reiterating what has been said many times before to express surprise and amazement that just at this time, when the doors are opening all round as seldom or never before, and when the whole world is ringing with the reports of the wonders of the Edinburgh Conference, we, who have been bearing the burden and heat of the day, should have to sit down and concert measures for the retrenchment of the work, to decide which school shall be closed when there are urgent cries for more—schools which are acknowledgedly producing better citizens than the majority of those which are not mission-schools, and to bear the taunt of the Hindus that we are 'withdrawing before the revival of Hinduism.'

Reinforcements

One recruit has been assigned to the Mission, namely, Miss Dorothy Muriel Barker, trained at The Olives. The names of the following who have been admitted to deacons' orders have been added to the list of Indian clergy connected with the Society: The Revs. John Abraham, R. Vethanayagam Asirvatham, D. Perimbam Durairaj, Katta Gnananandam, Guzzula Gnanaprakasam, Ganupati Kantayya, Abraham Masillamoni, John Henry Pattarpiran, Golla Prakasam, Goteti Sambamurti, Pakkianathan Samuel, Bandara Satyanandam, Masillamani Srinivasagam, Kalingi Yohan and Maramudi Yohan. The Rev. V. Gnanamuttu has been transferred to the Travancore Mission.

Madras District Church Council

The Rev. W. D. Clarke, the chairman of the Madras District Church Council, which is self-supporting and self-governing, reports the baptism of thirty-two persons in the Southern Pastorate, of which he is in charge. The Zion Church Missionary Association, the formation of which was recorded in last year's Report,* raised nearly Rs 300 in 1910, with which they supported an Indian missionary at Pammal, about fourteen miles south of Madras.

Educational work

Divinity School

Harris High School

THE Divinity School at Madras had nine students, representing three different years, a fact which made it difficult for the Rev. E. A. L. Moore, who was single-handed, to arrange for their tuition. The Hon. the Prince of Arcot, K.C.I.E., presided at the speech day of the Harris High School, and he and twenty other friends, sixteen of whom were Mohammedans, contributed towards the prizes. There was a considerable increase in the number of pupils, and though bitter hostility to Christianity prevailed in some quarters there was no objection made in the school to the teaching of the Bible. The schools at Ootacamund were inspected in the summer by the Bishop of Madras, who kindly took charge of the work there for a short time when the Rev. A. N. C. Storrs was invalided. The village schools in the Wynaad are often the only lights in dark places. Not long since a whole family in one village was converted through the instrumentality of the teacher of the school and his wife, but it became necessary, owing to the financial situation, to close the school. One of the catechists at Ootacamund, however, appealed to the congregation there to avert the disaster, and within a few days they raised enough money to provide the teacher's salary for six months, and a little later they formed a small missionary association which guarantees Rs 10 per mensem for the maintenance of village schools.

Evangelistic work

Frequent opposition was shown to the open-air preaching in Hindustani, which was held in Madras on five days in the week, but it was not sufficient to put a stop to the work, and Canon M. Goldsmith and his companions sometimes had good audiences. In the summer Canon Goldsmith made a couple of tours, during which he had many opportunities of addressing Mohammedans, and on at least two occasions was garlanded! A couple of young men appeared nearly ready for baptism, and others were inquiring. The Rev. L. Dhan Singh, who is working temporarily in connexion with the C.E.Z.M.S. at Bangalore, reports the baptism of seven adults belonging to Hindustani-speaking gipsy tribes.*

II. TELUGU COUNTRY

Educational work

Training Institution

THE Training Institution at Masulipatam has several departments. In 1910 there were a divinity class, in which six men read for deacons' orders; a class for evangelists with fifteen members; a normal school with nearly thirty students; and a boarding-school. The evangelists' class was a new venture, designed to meet the pressing need for agents caused by the recent mass movement, and eleven of the youths were expected to leave early in 1911 to undertake work in various villages. This class, as already stated, has since been closed in consequence of orders to retrench received from home. The Rev. J. B. Panes reports that there was a marked improvement in the conduct of the students, and, speaking of athletics, observes that the lads who are keenest at games are usually the best all round and become the most efficient workers.

Noble College and High School

At the Noble College there are nearly 100 men preparing for the Madras University B.A. degree, while the attached High School and branch schools contain more than 1,000 boys. An instructive comment on the assumption sometimes made that Brahmans cannot be won for Christ is furnished by the fact that there are four Brahman converts and five sons of Brahman converts on the college staff. One Brahman student came forward during the year as an inquirer; and testimony to the power of the Bible teaching was given by an earnest orthodox Hindu student who remarked in the course of a discussion, 'I don't want to be influenced by Christianity; I don't want to be like So-and-so,' mentioning another student in the class. Early in 1910 a branch of the Student Movement was formed in the college under the title of 'The Noble College Christian Union,' membership being confined to college men and boys of the fifth and sixth forms. Twenty-five of them joined, and they set on foot a Sunday-school for heathen boys and also a weekly prayer-meeting. Through the influence of the movement four of the students resolved to devote their lives to missionary work in their own country.* In the autumn a meeting of the newly-formed old boys' association was held and was attended by 150 former students.

Pastoral work

The closing of the evangelists' class at Masulipatam is a matter for keen regret seeing that not only is there a great shortage of teachers—in the Khammamett district, for example, after deducting the most unsatisfactory village congregations, there remain 122 congregations without a resident teacher—but also the quality of the present staff leaves much to be desired. In the Raghavapuram district pressure unhappily has to be put upon the agents to induce them to prepare for the annual Bible examination;† 'debts hamper the work and deaden the influence of the great majority of the workers'; and several of the younger agents had to be suspended for drunkenness. Among the private Christians there was a great tendency to work on Sundays, and caste feeling ran high between the Malas and Madigas, though both sections belong to the Pariah community. Some of the converts practised sorcery. At one place in the Ellore district, a man's second wife considered herself haunted by her predecessor's ghost, and called in a sorcerer to lay the evil spirit; he asked to have the deceased's jewels delivered up to him for the purpose of his incantation, and in the dead of night, when all the household were asleep, he decamped with the spoil. Moreover, in at least one district, although the aggregate contribution of the Christian community has increased of late, yet the average per head is considerably smaller than before the large accessions of late years began. Most of the recent inquirers and converts are very poor,‡ and the high prices of food grains have made existence a struggle for the majority; but still it is said that they might give more than they do. On the other hand, good accounts are given of the liberality of the Christians in some parts of the country; and at Khammamett, although the harvest was a poor one, and with the exception of the two pastors none of the converts were earning as much as five shillings a week, while the majority of them could not count on one good meal a day, the thankofferings of the Indian Christians amounted to more than Rs 300. Thank-offerings

In the Raghavapuram district there was very little desire for instruction, and in one village forty persons relinquished all connexion with Christianity because of trouble with the police; and at Hyderabad, a city fourteen or fifteen miles in its greatest length and containing 500,000 people, apparent results of the work were few although the outlook was promising. These were exceptions, however; in most parts of the Mission inquirers continued to come forward in large numbers. From Bezwada a 'steady inflow of new inquirers' is reported; in the Khammamett district during the first nine months of the year, 241 Sudras, 310 Malas and 284 Madigas put themselves under instruction; and in the Dummagudem district the Malas of important villages, who had long rejected the Gospel, sought admission into the ranks of inquirers. The Rev. J. Cain writes:— Evangelistic work Large number of inquirers

In one village evangelists were welcomed a few years ago, and a certain number of people were about to decide to follow Christ when the young man who was the most earnest among the seekers was carried off by cholera, and the rest, fearing a like fate from the anger of the offended goddess, drew back. Now they are most pressing in their request for Christian teachers, and the evangelists who visit their village are greatly encouraged by the welcome they receive. In another village, where the heads of the Mala settlement long set the evangelists at defiance and taunted them with their failure to obtain hearers, several families resolved to follow Christ; but, alas! small-pox visited the village and their leaders fell victims, and the Heathen laughed them to scorn. We are glad to say that the inquirers have recovered their courage and are now earnest disciples.

In dealing with the Sudras several difficulties have to be met. The Rev. E. S. Tanner enumerates some of them as follows:—

One of the chief is caste feeling; some of the people have shown a good example in this respect, but the majority do not see that the feeling is wrong. One great victory has begun to be won, namely, the sending of their lads to the boarding-school. Of course, this means eating and drinking with lads of Pariah origin. Another trouble concerns marriage. Suitable parties are not easily found, and then it goes against the grain for them to have a clergyman of Mala origin to perform the ceremony. So far there has been only one marriage, though another and an influential one may take place soon; if it does the whole position will be greatly strengthened. There is some little trouble, also, about the Holy Communion, but this is due partly to ignorance, which I think will soon be overcome. Difficulties in connexion with Sudra inquirers

There are strong forces working against the movement, the village officials and police with the caste people are all against it, with a few rare exceptions. The inquirers are all illiterate country people, and many stories are circulated by enemies as to what they will have to undergo if they continue in the Christian religion. The women of these Sudra inquirers at present are a Women hard to reach source of weakness on account of their backwardness in receiving instruction at 'prayers.' 'Prayers' have in most cases to be held in the open, owing to the paucity of 'prayer-houses,' due to the necessity of obtaining special sanction for their erection from H.H. Nizam's Government. It is altogether against the women's idea of propriety to be taught by a young man (especially as he is of a different caste) and in public. Moreover, they are shy, and a laugh from a bystander caused by a slip will often effectually stop a woman and her companions from making another attempt. Baptism is a source of strength to these people, not only for the grace given, but from a sense that they have 'burnt their bridges behind them.'

Mr. Tanner adds, as concerning the trials of the Madigas, that many of them hold Government lands free from taxation as remuneration for village work, and they are placed under the thumb of village officials, one of whom is almost always a Brahman and the other often a Mohammedan, who can and do make it very uncomfortable for them. In February, 1910, 127 persons were baptized in the Khammamett district; thirty-five of them were admitted into the visible Church by Bishop Talbot, of Southwark (now of Winchester), who was then on a visit to India, and the remainder by the Bishop of Madras.* There were ingatherings also at several places in the Ellore district—thirty-eight persons were baptized at Pulla, an out-station occupied in 1909, amid much opposition on the part of the devil-dancers; others at Idara, another new out-station, where the native zemindars have harassed the converts by closing their wells and by actual violence; and forty-one at a place called China Lingala, where the teaching and example of their fellow caste men in another hamlet of their town was instrumental in overcoming opposition to Christianity.

Literary work

The Rev. J. B. Panes saw through the press his notes on Isa. i.–xxxix., and an elementary harmony of the Gospels, both intended for the use of students and both in Telugu; and the Rev. J. Cain prepared some lessons based on Norris's Key to the Acts of the Apostles, which were translated into Telugu by Mr. V. Yesudas.

III. TINNEVELLY

Tinnevelly College

Six men read for holy orders in the Ordination Class at Dohnavur, one of them sent from Jabalpur, where he had been working as a catechist among the Tamils. The fees at the College in Tinnevelly Town were raised, in some instances by as much as fifty per cent., and yet, notwithstanding that there is a Hindu college in the immediate neighbourhood, not one of the 650 boys belonging to the Society's institution applied for a leaving certificate. Attached to the C.M.S. college there is a Christian hostel, the inmates of which of their own initiative took part in the observance of 'Gospel Day' (i.e. the day on which all Tinnevelly Christians are asked to make personally a united effort for the evangelization of others), singing and preaching in seven villages in spite of the intense heat, and distributing tracts and handbills as well as delivering addresses. The number of boys in the High School at Palamcotta rose in 1910 from 193 to 341. Examination results were disappointing, but the boys did well in athletics, and, better still, forty-one of them were confirmed, and a band of lads went round the neighbouring villages Sunday by Sunday preaching the Gospel. At the Srivilliputhur school there was a hopeful spirit of inquiry among some of the Hindu boys, and the masters showed much interest and zeal in evangelistic work.

High School

Miss G. M. Walford has been appointed principal of the Sarah Tucker College at Palamcotta, in succession to Miss A. J. Askwith. Some difficulties were met with in connexion with the staff in consequence of the Mission being unable to offer as high a rate of pay as that given in Government institutions. The four upper secondary teachers in the training school department passed their examination, one heading the list of candidates in the Presidency. Many applications for teachers were received from heads of other schools, thus showing the estimation in which the Sarah Tucker girls are held. Only one of the eleven girls who sat for the matriculation examination was successful. At the beginning of 1910 a hostel was opened which very soon was nearly full and at the end of the year had four mistresses, one of whom acts as matron, and seventeen girls living in it. Another new venture was the establishment on the compound of an institution, to which the name of the Home of Love has been given, and in which are received orphans and others who, belonging to heathen homes, need special care and help; it had some twenty-five inmates in December. An Association was also formed for old Sarah Tucker girls, with the design of uniting them in prayer, Bible-study and work for others, and was taken up with enthusiasm. The need of keeping in touch with former pupils appears from an incident narrated by Miss R. E. Howard. She writes:—

Sarah Tucker College

Keeping in touch with former pupils

> Some weeks ago a woman came and had a long talk with one of our teachers. The next week we went to visit her in her home. She said that she and another woman had, as little girls, been pupils at the Sarah Tucker School in its earliest days; that the other woman for many years before she died, had prayer every night with the women in the house, though she was never baptized and the house was a Hindu house; and that she herself, now a widow, wished to become a Christian and be baptized.

A number of branch schools are connected with the Sarah Tucker College, including a boarding-school at Nallur, which there was some talk of closing as it had a debt of Rs 600 on its funds. Before a final decision was arrived at in the matter the Sarah Tucker girls were asked whether they could do anything so that this school might be kept open. They at once resolved on a sale of work, and joined heartily with the staff in preparations for it, while some former pupils, even so far away as in Travancore, tried to collect money, the result being that the debt was cleared off. Thirty-six of the 169 pupils of the Elliot Tuxford School at Mengnanapuram were confirmed in the spring of 1910. The Blind Schools contained seventy-four boys and thirty-five girls, to whom grass-mat-weaving, basket-making, cotton-weaving, etc., are taught, the last named being a new industry to them. Nine boys and young men were baptized in March, 1910, and ten others in August, and it is said that the converts evince a great desire that their companions should become Christians. Twenty blind young men and five young women are now employed as teachers and evangelists in various places.*

Elliot Tuxford School

Schools for the Blind

Pastoral work

In many of the circles, fourteen in number, in which the pastorates connected with the Tinnevelly District Church Council are grouped, meetings for the agents are held annually, with a view to leading them to seek more earnestly for power in their work and a blessing upon it. The Rev. R. F. Ardill, who conducted several of these gatherings, speaks of them as having been marked by confession of sin and a realization of new joy and strength on the part of the workers.

Increased liberality

Some of the pastors happily are able to report increased liberality on the part of those to whom they minister. In the Surandei Circle the contributions have risen in the last five years from Rs 2,413 to Rs 5,885, the collections for Church work more than doubling during that period; while the people in the Idayunkulam Pastorate raised Rs 1,133 during the year, and thus were able not only to support their own pastor, but also to help some of the other pastorates in their circle. At Arumuganeri the Christians were zealous in seeking to win their heathen fellow-countrymen, and Gospel Day was well observed in most of the pastorates.† In the Panneikulam Circle two or three families of well-to-do Roman Catholics joined the Protestant Church, having been convinced of their error by reading the Bible and by conversation with Protestant Christians. The Rev. E. S. Carr says:—

> They were the leaders of a Roman Catholic community of some 200 houses, and have undergone a good deal of opprobrium and actual loss on account of their change. The Roman Catholics have lately been obliged to provide Bibles for their people, when they insist on having them, as otherwise they purchase our Bibles. So they have issued an annotated edition. But it was from reading this very Bible that these people were convinced of the error of Romanism.

At Suviseshapuram also several families forsook the errors of the Church of Rome. On the other hand there were secessions to the Roman Catholics in the Seval Circle, where toddy-drinking and Sunday work were prevalent among some of the converts; while in other pastorates irregular marriages * continued to be a source of evil, and certain superstitious and even definitely heathen customs were followed. But before passing judgment on the Christians their comparative isolation and the temptations and persecution to which they are often exposed should be borne in mind. The Rev. F. W. Breed gives some instances. Writing from Sivagasi he says :—

Isolation and temptations of converts

Not very many miles away from here is a man who became a Christian. Soon afterwards he was wrongfully accused of murder and kept in jail several months pending trial. Possibly those who accused him did not expect to secure a conviction, but he was put to heavy expense for his defence, and his private affairs all went to pieces while he was away. Soon after his release another charge was brought that he had committed arson. In another place, where a number of people gave in their names as catechumens, a charge was brought against them of rioting at night in a street through which they, as members of another caste, are not supposed to pass. The whole thing was a fabrication. The case was dismissed by the magistrate, and quarrels in the village have died down for a time. When I last saw the people I found that some of those who at first were thought genuine inquirers have dropped off, but a few remain who seem really to desire to be taught and baptized.

Trumped-up charges

Special evangelistic efforts were made during the year in a number of circles, the most interesting, perhaps, being one organized by the Indian Missionary Society of Tinnevelly, and held at Srivaigundam for the benefit of the English-speaking Government officials, landowners and lawyers. Lectures by Tamils and Europeans were arranged, and for four nights in succession the meetings, enlivened by Tamil Christian music, were well attended by the class which it was sought to reach. The Itinerating Band, which assisted in this effort, visited twenty-one centres during the year, staying at each for a period ranging from ten days to six weeks, according to the number of villages and the size of the towns in the neighbourhood. Now and again a stone was thrown at the preachers, and this was specially the case in Tinnevelly Town, where the animosity of some of the people had been aroused by three girls from their midst going openly to the zenana ladies to be taught the Bible ; but as a general rule kind treatment was experienced, and in one town a Brahman, hearing that Mr. E. Keyworth, the leader of the band, had no shelter, since there was too much rain for the tents, sent a key giving access to a Government office which was under his charge. Of his reception at another place called Thayalpatti, Mr. Keyworth writes :—

Evangelistic work

The chief man came in a gold-lace turban and other full dress to welcome me to excellent lodgings, where he garlanded me. Although he is not yet baptized, he has built a very good schoolhouse on a high plinth; with stone walls and tiled roof, and also a good teacher's house and kitchen, all costing about £66, of which he gave £40 himself. Three years ago he handed over the whole premises as a free gift, with the consent of the other subscribers, to the C.M.S. who appointed a Christian teacher. Now, seeing so much improvement in the village through Scriptural instruction and the teacher's good life, he proposes to build a church for us. We suggested that there was no congregation as yet, but he replied that he would ask for baptism and persuade about fifteen families of each caste to join us also.

Obstacles to the acceptance of the Gospel

There were of course many obstacles to the acceptance of the Gospel—in some cases unwillingness to give up sin, as with the poor fellow who said, 'The Bible is much too good for me, as it condemns the ways that I love'; and in others caste, which prevented men from paying heed to what was said simply because those in their neighbourhood who had accepted the truth were in a lower social position than themselves *—but at the same time the general tone of the workers is hopeful. Indeed one Indian pastor, after twenty years' work at his station, is able to say that 'there are signs which show unmistakably that at no distant time whole villages will seek the Lord.'

Professional robbers become inquirers

The Rev. P. G. Simeon, in whose annual letter the remark just quoted appears, reports a movement towards Christianity on the part of some Maravars, professional robbers, in a small town called Visaiyanarayanam, five miles from Suviseshapuram. The people, about 1,500 in number, were carefully instructed, but eventually the Church of Rome stepped in and they all joined that communion. A somewhat similar experience, but so far without quite the same sad sequel, befell Mr. Carr. He was told that a number of Maravars wanted to forsake Hinduism because they were forbidden to enter the temple and were tired of their position in Hinduism; the whole community at first proposed to become inquirers, but other members of the Hindu community sowed discord among them, and only twenty families actually put themselves under instruction. In the Arumuganeri district fifty of these people gave up their evil habits and accepted Christianity; about the same number of persons (it is not stated to what class they belong) were under instruction in two other villages in the district named, standing firm in spite of severe persecution; and at Katnarpati, a village in the Virudhupatti district, twenty families, ninety souls in all, applied for admission to the catechumenate. Among the individual inquirers were the Brahman at Palamcotta whose attack by his relatives and rescue by the police were recorded in last year's Report,† and who is now receiving industrial instruction at a Wesleyan Mission; a man at Ambasamudram, whom a Hindu official tried to lead away into the acceptance of Vedantic philosophy; a boy who left his home and ran away to Palamcotta, seventeen miles distant, begging the pastor to admit him to the 'Book Religion' and allow him to enter the high school; and a woman, of whom the Rev. H. A. D. Moorhouse gives the following account:—

Twenty families apply to be received as catechumens

One evening we held a peculiarly solemn open-air service in a large village. There were about 600 people present. They sat far into the night listening to the ever convicting and convincing story of the Cross. As speaker after speaker spoke in earnest and impassioned tones of the great Atonement for sin we felt that the people were much impressed. A few days later a woman from that village, the wife of a small landowner, met the members of our band as we returned from preaching. She stopped one evangelist and said, 'Sir, did you not speak to us of the sufferings of your Jesus? Did you not tell us how the blood flowed down from His head and hands and feet, that we might have our sins forgiven? What love He must have had to us! Tell me, how can I pray to Him?' Happily, our young evangelists always carry copies of the gospels in their pockets. They expounded to her simply and fully the Way of Salvation out of the Gospels. She went home with three gospel portions in her possession with passages suitably marked for reading.* 'How can I pray to Him?'

Here also may be recorded another incident, though the man referred to can perhaps hardly be regarded as an inquirer. It is told by Mr. Schaffter as follows:—

One evening I heard a clear voice in one of the lower rooms of the college from the verandah where I was pacing up and down. It was reading Romans xii. aloud. Later on, as I did not recognize the voice, I went into the room, and what was my surprise to find that the reader was not a Christian, but a Brahman clerk in a magistrate's office some seventy miles away. He was, I found, pleading with a Christian hostel boy, who came from that town, on behalf of peace in that Christian family where there were dissensions. In spite of my being there, he went on begging, 'For Christ's sake, be at peace. You are dishonouring your Master by these quarrels.' He suddenly got up and told me he had to leave to catch his train. On my expressing surprise at his reading God's Holy Word with such pathos and zeal, he replied, 'Sir, there are many like me, who honour the Lord Jesus.' He had to hurry away, and then the hostel boy told me how that Brahman clerk was known in his office and the whole town as 'the Christian.' A Brahman known as 'the Christian'

A few of the large number of adults who received baptism during the year call for notice—a Toda lad, baptized at Dohnavur, where he had been under instruction for a couple of years; a young weaver who after seeking for peace in Hinduism, and even contemplating becoming an ascetic, found what he needed in Christianity; a member of a zemindari family, in whose conversion a Christian lady and her nephew were instrumental; three mechanics at Palamcotta; a rich man at Sivagasi, who afterwards brought his nephew, a lad twelve years of age, to the Saviour, and whose brother is said to be a Christian at heart; and a young landowner. Mr. Moorhouse says of the last named:— Baptisms

One Sunday afternoon I was giving a short address in a little village church on the necessity of decision for Christ and of making a good confession before men. I noticed a well-dressed man listening very earnestly. Next day the pastor brought this young man to see me. The pastor said, 'This young man desires to confess Christ and to receive baptism.' I asked the pastor to relate his story. Briefly it was as follows. The young man was the landowner of a neighbouring village. Three years ago he was a bigoted Hindu. He was utterly opposed to Christian preaching. One evening a few Christians went to preach in his village. He opposed them and spoke very violently against Christianity. A dear old catechist, full of wisdom which comes from above, An opponent of Christianity converted led the excited young man on one side. He said to him, 'My friend, before you abuse Jesus Christ learn a little about Him. If you will read our Holy Book I will give you my own New Testament.' The young man promised he would and took the Book home. That faithful catechist has passed to his rest. But the young man read, prayed, believed. For about two years he was a secret believer. Then he came to the special services we were holding. He was convinced he should openly confess Christ. I visited his village with the pastor. On inquiry we were told by his heathen neighbours that his life had been quite changed for the past two years. He received baptism publicly in the presence of his friends.*

Literary work

The Rev. T. Walker's literary work consisted in seeing through the press his commentary on the Acts of the Apostles, in the Indian Church Commentary Series, revising a small Key to the Prayer-book and a book of Gospel hymns, both in Tamil, and translating the Apocrypha into that language. Miss A. J. Askwith was engaged in bringing out a hymn-book in Moon's type for the blind, and in preparing the MSS. of those books of the Bible which have not hitherto been produced in the raised type.

* Some interesting notes on the work in Tinnevelly, written by Bishop Williams, appeared in the C.M. Rev., Dec. 1910, pp. 728, ff.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

The Mission in the protected Hindu States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the Malabar Coast, in the extreme south of India, between the Ghats and the Indian Ocean, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. The Metran (or Bishop) of the ancient Syrian Church of Malabar, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas, had in 1806 requested help from the English Church. For twenty years the Mission was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others; their object originally being to benefit the Syrian Church by encouraging and aiding it to reform itself. Since 1837, however, the missionaries have aimed directly at the evangelization of the Heathen, thousands of whom have been baptized, while, as an indirect result of the work, a love of the Gospel has sprung up among the ancient Christians, whom the missionaries have urged to remain in and reform their own Church. Mar Athanasius, an old C.M.S. schoolboy, who was Metran from 1843 to 1877, was an active reformer. Since his death a large section of the Syrians has become an autonomous episcopal Church (known as the Reformed Church of St. Thomas), which maintains reformed worship in the vernacular, holds annually a convention for the deepening of the spiritual life, and carries on evangelistic work. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Kottayam and Cochin, 1817; Mavelikara, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission was begun in 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy in 1881.

The Rev. J. M. Speechly was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin in 1879. His successors have been Dr. E. N. Hodges (1889) and Dr. Charles Hope Gill (1905). All the above were C.M.S. missionaries before their consecration.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Of the stations at present occupied by the Society's missionaries, three, viz., Kottayam, Pallam and Allepie, are in the State of Travancore, where also are the Tiruwella and Alwaye districts, which are worked as itinerancies, while two, Trichur and Kunnankulam, are in the Cochin State.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Gill, of ten European clergymen, seven missionaries' wives, and five single women. The Indian clergymen number thirty-six, and the Christian lay agents 753.

Some of the missionaries are in charge of districts and are carrying on evangelistic work at Trichur, Kunnankulam, Alwaye, Allepie and Tiruwella. Others are engaged in educational work at the Cambridge Nicholson Institution (a theological college and normal school), a college, and the Baker Memorial School for girls at Kottayam; the Buchanan Institution (a normal school) at Pallam; and a high school for boys at Mavelikara. The C.E.Z.M.S. has a few stations in the country.

The majority of the 53,293 converts in the Mission are linked with one or other of the twenty-nine pastorates connected with four Church Councils, and the care of them appertains to Indian clergy, with whom some of the European missionaries occasionally join in evangelistic work.

United Conference of Christians

A UNITED Conference of an unusual character was held at Kottayam in May, 1910, under the auspices of the Travancore and Cochin Christian Association. Jacobites, Mar Thoma Syrians, Roman Catholics (both of the Syrian and the Latin sections of that Church), Anglicans and Congregationalists, to the number of 600, met and discussed the present state of the Christian community in Travancore and Cochin, the need of legislation with reference to their succession to property, and the question of starting co-operative credit societies for their welfare—all being questions affecting their temporal rather than their spiritual well-being. Landed proprietors, graduates of Madras University, clergymen of the several Churches, Government officials, and other leaders of the Christian community met, listened to excellent papers and discussed the same, and the harmony and concord were complete.

Convention of Syrian Christians

The Annual Convention of Syrian Christians, which took place in February, 1910, was attended by about 20,000 persons. The addresses were given by the Rev. T. Walker and R. F. Ardill, both of the Tinnevelly Mission, and were interpreted by Indian clergymen; each sentence had to be repeated by another speaker some fifty yards distant in order that all might be enabled to hear. It was reported during the convention that the Mar Thoma Syrian Church had been assigned a mission-field of its own in Canara, in connexion with the National Missionary Society of India, to which two missionaries had been appointed. A third, one of the Syrian clergy, was added to the list before the meetings came to an end.*

Death of the Rev. K. Koratha

The Rev. K. Koratha, the senior Indian clergyman in the diocese of Travancore and Cochin, passed away on September 1, 1910. He entered the service of the Society about the year 1860, and was ordained in 1868. He was the translator of several books, including certain parts of the S.P.C.K. Commentary. He retired from active service in 1903.

Reinforcements

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Arthur Peveril Turnbull, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of New Shildon. The Rev. V. Gnanamuttu has been transferred from Tinnevelly to Travancore. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards, after nearly forty years' service.

Educational work

The work of the C.M.S. in the Mission is now largely educational, and the reports of the missionaries show how seriously the necessity for retrenchment, which obviously precluded all advance, was felt. For example, in connexion with the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, Kottayam, where seven students were in the divinity classes and twenty-nine in the normal classes, the Director of Public Instruction asked whether it was possible to double the number of normal students under training, since the Government did not wish to open a training school of their own in Kottayam if it could be avoided. For the request to be complied with, however, a second European on the staff would be needed, as well as some extension of the buildings, and since there is no probability of the requisite funds being available, even if the man were so, it is likely that the opportunity of exercising a Christian influence over a number of future schoolmasters will have to be allowed to pass unutilized. The Buchanan Institution at Pallam, where women teachers are trained, had fourteen students in the normal department and about 180 children in the school department. Eight of the former sat for their teachers' examination; six passed the complete test and another the written examination, while an assistant mistress passed the practical test. The branch of the Gleaners' Union connected with the institution raised a little more than Rs 200 for missionary work, of which sum about one-quarter was devoted to the support of a girl in the C.M.S. school at Onitsha. The requirements of the new educational code have rendered some additional outlay on the institution necessary, and in order to provide for this eight of the nine branch schools have had to be closed, and a number of teachers have been thrown out of employment through no fault of their own. There are between 600 and 700 students at the Kottayam College and High School, to all of whom Scripture teaching is given daily. Over seventy-five per cent. of them are Christians. Some of the teachers of the Baker Memorial High School for girls at Kottayam had to be dismissed, after a connexion with the school lasting over a good many years, because of the orders received from the Government that only qualified masters were to be employed. Two girls of the five who entered passed the matriculation examination, and the four who sat for the Peter Cator Scripture examination gained certificates, two being placed in the first class.

Evangelistic work was maintained at several festivals, including that held at Alwaye in the spring in honour of Shiva. With the help of a band of mission boys from Trichur preaching was continued throughout the night from 5 P.M. to 6 A.M. and was listened to by a large number of Heathen. Both on such occasions and in the ordinary course of the work an attentive hearing was usually gained. 'Much of the earlier opposition,' the Rev. J. H. Bishop says, 'has been broken down, and the people are far more ready to hear the message and to purchase gospel portions than they have ever been before.' The Rev. F. Bower confirms this report, and mentions some cases in which Brahmans showed a striking friendliness. Of a certain Namburi Brahman doctor he writes:—

Opposition broken down

> Some time ago an evangelist gave him a Malayalam New Testament; he read it and became deeply interested. One day the mission agent entered into a long and animated conversation with him on Hinduism and Christianity. Of course, like other Namburi Brahmans, he is naturally conservative in religious matters. Before leaving his house, the evangelist advised him to read and study carefully our Lord's Sermon on the Mount, and then requested him to read the following words, 'Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.' After reading them aloud, he repeated very emphatically, 'They shall see God.' And then, with a look of wonder and delight, he exclaimed, 'Ah, these words are like rest to my mind! This is most excellent instruction. I will peruse this Book most thoroughly.' This old gentleman then actually requested our agent, to his great and agreeable surprise, to bring his wife with him the next time he came to his house, in order that she might instruct the women of the house in these doctrines which he so much appreciated.

'These words are like rest to my mind'

Mr. Bower also speaks of another Brahman whom he met in the train, and who remarked, 'Outwardly I am a Hindu, but at heart I am a Christian, and I should like to embrace the Christian religion.' But he added that having a wife and several children he found it impossible to do so under existing circumstances. Unhappily there are not the men or means available to make it possible to embrace the present opportunity.* In the six missionary districts 277 adults were baptized during the year, and 785 in the pastorates connected with the Church Councils.

More than 1,000 adults baptized

The Mission Press at Kottayam was engaged in printing the Old and New Testaments in Malayalam for the British and Foreign Bible Society, and in other work for the Malayalam Religious Tract Society, the Christian Literature Society, etc.

* The position of affairs as concerns the staff of the Mission was explained in the Gaz., Dec., 1910, p. 373.

CEYLON MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1817 that the Mission was commenced among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which mainly form the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population, work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddegama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kurunegala and Kegalle, 1880. For work among the Tamils, Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1850; Galle, 1903; while the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The first Bishop of Colombo, Dr. Chapman, was appointed in 1845; he has been succeeded by Bishops Claughton (1862), Jermyn (1871), R. S. Copleston (1875) and E. A. Copleston (1903).

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The greater part of the pastoral work in the Mission is in the hands of native clergymen, twenty-six in number, who are supported by Native Church funds; only two of the many District Councils are now subsidized by the Society. Both the pastoral and the evangelistic work may be regarded as carried on in four sections, viz., in Southern and Western Ceylon; in Kandy and the Kandian Singhalese Itinerancies among the Singhalese of the hill country; in the Tamil Coolie Mission, an itinerant Mission among the labourers from South India on the tea and coffee estates; and in Jaffna, the peninsula at the north of the Island.

I. The chief stations in Southern and Western Ceylon are Colombo, the headquarters of the Mission, where pastoral and evangelistic work is carried on in both Singhalese and Tamil; Cotta, within a few miles of Colombo, and Baddegama, near the southern end of the Island, where Singhalese is spoken; and Galle, farther south, and Negombo, north of Colombo, where the work is in Tamil.

II. The work of the Kandian Singhalese Itinerancies is carried on in three districts, viz., the central, with Kandy as its headquarters; the northern, worked from Anuradhapura; and the western, worked from Kegalle.

III. The Tamil Coolie Mission has three divisions, viz., the northern, the central and the southern, with their headquarters at Kandy, Hatton (south of Kandy) and Haputale (farther south-east) respectively.

IV. In Northern Ceylon the chief station is Jaffna, near which are Nellore and Copay. All the work is in Tamil.

The educational work is on a large scale, over 23,000 children being under instruction in the schools. The chief institutions for male students are Trinity College, Kandy, St. John's College, Jaffna, and an English school at Cotta; and for girls, the Ladies' College, Colombo, and English schools at Cotta and Jaffna. Provision for the supply of Singhalese catechists is made by means of a training class at Kandy, while there are training schools for male and female Singhalese teachers at Colombo and Cotta respectively, a training institution for Tamil men at Copay, and a class for Tamil women at Nellore.

The work is carried on by a staff of seventeen European clergymen, five laymen, fourteen missionaries' wives, and twenty-one other women, with whom are associated, beside the native clergymen mentioned above, 815 native catechists, school teachers and Bible-women.

Deaths of the Rev. J. G. Garrett and the Rev. G. Champion

A WELL-KNOWN missionary in Ceylon, the Rev. J. G. Garrett, died in Dublin on April 13, 1911, after an operation. A graduate of Dublin University, he went to Ceylon in 1880, and had charge for six years of Trinity College, Kandy. Since then he had been superintendent of the Kandian Singhalese Central Itinerancy. His son, the Rev. G. G. Garrett, is principal of the grammar school at Freetown, Sierra Leone.

The Rev. G. Champion, who died at Chundicully on July 22, 1910, was one of the oldest Tamil Christians in Ceylon. He joined the C.M.S. in 1844, and was ordained in 1865. He retired from active service in 1902.*

Reinforcements

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Lewis John Gaster, of Islington College, L.Th., Durham University; and Miss Mary Amelia Ledward, who has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. Miss C. E. Browne, who for five years has been working in Ceylon as a missionary in local connexion, has now been taken into home connexion. The names of the Revs. Jesson Daniel Welcome and Samuel Chelvanajakam Daniel, who have been admitted to deacons' orders, have been added to the list of native clergymen connected with the C.M.S. The name of a veteran worker, Mrs. R. T. Dowbiggin, who has been placed on the retired list, disappears from the list of the Society's missionaries, after forty-one years of self-denying service. The Committee have also accepted the resignations of the Rev. G. T. Weston, Miss A. M. Denyer and Miss E. S. Young, and Mr. J. W. Ferrier's term of service has expired.

Ceylonese appointed on the missionary conference

Two steps of importance were taken in 1910 in connexion with the organization of the work of the Society in Ceylon. First, four of the Ceylonese clergymen and two Ceylonese laymen were given seats on the missionary conference, of which the Bishop of Colombo is now chairman; and second, new regulations for the pastorates came into force, by which a Church committee, consisting of the pastor, churchwardens and sidesmen, elected in accordance with the synodal rules, was formed in each pastorate, and more definite and independent charges were committed to the Ceylonese clergymen.

Buddhist activity

The activity of the Buddhists both in propagating their own religion and also in opposing Christianity, which was spoken of in last year's Report,† continued with little abatement. They made free use of the local press; they were energetic in holding pinkamas, or religious fairs; they developed their school work, coaching the children in questions to put to the Christian missionaries, and leading them to tear up and trample on Christian tracts; and in a number of cases they endeavoured to close mission-schools. Thus a catechist in the Cotta district writes:—

Hostility to Christian schools

> 'Within one month,' said the Buddhists, 'we must drive away the catechist and close the school. For, without doubt, Christianity is like an epidemic and it will spread among our children.' So they took away all the children from our school excepting ten; and to these they gave clothes, money and lozenges; but they stayed. I was insulted and abused and spat upon near my own threshold. Twice stones were thrown on the roof. On two other occasions I was waylaid and assaulted. In all these trials I raised up my voice and eyes to my Heavenly Father; He heard my prayers and wiped away my tears. The text, 'If God be for us, who can be against us?' is constantly present in my mind. The opponents said, 'Let us see who is more powerful—Buddha or Christ,' but now our school and services are improving.

Much of this opposition was due to the efforts of an Irish Buddhist priest, who travelled about the Island making violent speeches and stirring up much ill-feeling. Less objection can be raised to the constructive efforts of the Buddhists in the form of the organization of festivals. An interesting description of one of these is given by Miss E. M. Josolyne, of Baddegama, as follows :—

A heathen festival

Processions were the order of the day. Villages took it in turn to supply food for the many priests assembled, and oil for lighting the temple. Early morning and mid-day a procession of sometimes 300 or 400 men, women and children came from the village whose turn it was to supply that day's food, the men carrying the food, the women following in single file and carrying, with uplifted hands, their offering of the coco-nut or areca-flower. In the evening flower processions (84,000 blossoms) and lamp processions, accompanied by tom-toms, wended their way to the temple. In advance of these processions went two men or two women to collect alms from the houses they pass on the way, for of course these pinkamas are held for the purpose of collecting funds for the restoration or enlarging of the temples, or for building dagobas (relic-shrines). At intervals through the day, and especially at night, a priest read from the sacred books. There were also side-shows, and a gramophone, etc., to attract the people. At the temple here a new dagoba is to be built, and this gave an opportunity for many acts of merit to be performed. A pit was dug on the site chosen, to receive the various offerings. Some women threw in strands of their own hair, with the hope of having a good head of hair in the next birth. But the greater number put in money, bands of silver, etc. A perahera from one village brought a silver model of a tree hung with silver coins. This also was placed in the pit. All these deeds they performed with the desire and hope of gaining wealth in the next birth.

The example of the Buddhists was imitated by the adherents of other non-Christian religions. In and around Kandy the Mohammedans were much on the alert: forming societies for the spread of Moslem literature, holding public preachings, and taking great care that their children were fully instructed in their own religion before allowing them to be taught by the Christian missionaries. The Hindus, in their turn, especially in the Jaffna peninsula, were not behindhand. They brought zealous lecturers over from India and America; certain European women took up their residence close to Nellore, there to work with the Hindus in aid of their religion; schools were built; and some of the rougher elements of the community dogged the footsteps of the catechists when they were visiting, preventing the people from listening to the Gospel, and destroying the tracts and handbills which were distributed.

Hindu missionaries

Educational work

For some time past, little has been done in the Mission in the way of training Singhalese catechists, but in 1910 a Training Class with six members was opened at Kandy by the Rev. J. P. S. R. Gibson with the help of two of the Ceylonese clergymen. In the summer Mr. Gibson's health failed, and the men were then received into the Hostel at Colombo for C.M.S. and other Church of England students attending the Government Teachers' Training College. Twenty-one students in the Singhalese Women's Training School at Cotta sat for examination for teachers' certificates; eleven of them formerly were Buddhists, and all of them were brought to

Training native agents

Christ through attending mission-schools. Six of the young women were confirmed. One of these, whose relatives are strong Buddhists, when asked if she knew anything of the work of the Holy Spirit, replied, 'He has made me entirely new in my heart and in my life.' Eight of the students at the Training Institution and Practising School for Tamil Youths at Copay were baptized, and ten others were under instruction in the autumn with a view to that rite.

Trinity College

The efficiency of Trinity College, Kandy, continued to increase under the leadership of Mr. A. G. Fraser. One of the students, who entered in January, 1910, won the Ceylon University Science Scholarship, of the value of £600; the middle and lower schools gained a grant at the highest possible rate of payment; and the Government agreed to give complete liberty of choice as concerned the curriculum from the lowest class upwards—the first time such a privilege had been accorded for the lower classes to any Ceylon institution. This success was due not only to the men on the English teaching staff, but in some measure to Mrs. A. M. Walmsley, who is a London B.Sc. and taught the highest mathematics in the syllabus, and Mrs. Fraser, formerly a student at Newnham College, Cambridge (Second Class, History Tripos), who stepped into the gap when Mr. Gibson was invalided to Australia, and took over all his college teaching. It is not surprising to find that difficulty was experienced, not in keeping the college full, but in keeping it from becoming too full, and three of every four applicants for admission were turned away. Athletics, with their valuable training of character, were carefully fostered, and in order to help the day-boys in these and other matters they were formed into a 'house,' like the various dormitories, and a systematic attempt was made to visit their parents.

Many applicants for admission

Scripture teaching in the vernacular

The religious work at the college was carried on in much the same ways as were described in last year's Report,* but one or two features of this branch of the work call for notice. All boys under sixteen years of age were taught Scripture in their vernaculars; the desirability of this is shown by the fact that in some cases Singhalese Christian boys were found to be unable to repeat the Lord's Prayer in their mother-tongue, or to read Singhalese at all, while others, though able in the written papers at the examination to give the answers in English, miserably failed to convey their ideas in Singhalese. The matter is of importance, for if these lads are to be useful in after years as teachers of Christianity to their fellow-countrymen, it is imperative that they should be able to impart their teaching in Singhalese. Three youths who met weekly for Bible-study have adopted in some degree the 'One-by-One' method, praying for definite individuals, and one of the three had the joy of bringing his man to a decision to be baptized—a step which, however, was forbidden by his father. Three boys, a smaller number than usual, were baptized during the year. White Cross work was carried on among the lads, and an effort was made to lead them to engage in social work. Very little trouble was experienced at the college, and the only case of any seriousness which occurred gave occasion for an exhibition of an unselfish spirit on the part of one of the prefects. Mr. Fraser gives the following account of the incident :—

Three boys baptized

Social service

> Three boys in the college cricket eleven went into a public-house to get a drink. The moving spirit in it was one who had come to us late from another college. He was expelled and the other two told off for a flogging, or to be rusticated. One was the son of a Kandian chief. While the matter was in doubt one of the leading prefects, a Christian Tamil, came to me to ask for a private interview. In it he told me that the Kandian was a hopeful character, from a bad home. There was every prospect of his making a good man if he remained at school ; but if he was dismissed he had no sheet-anchor, and he was too proud to take a flogging and remain. So he proposed that he himself, the prefect, who had never been caned in his career, should take the flogging instead. The matter ended in the two boys losing all the privileges of seniority—a very serious matter to them—but both remained in college, and both have since done well.

An unselfish spirit

A Tamil gentleman, Mr. T. H. Crossette, M.A., was in charge of St. John's College, Jaffna, for practically the whole year, since the principal, the Rev. J. Thompson, handed over the reins to him for three months before leaving on furlough in order that he might become accustomed to the responsibilities which he was to assume. Five of the students were baptized in the spring of 1910 ; another, who was then held back, was admitted into the visible Church later in the year ; and a seventh was baptized by the English chaplain at Malacca.* The Committee have approved a scheme for combining the higher classes of the three Jaffna colleges, carried on by the Wesleyans, the American Mission and the C.M.S. respectively, and so forming a Union Christian College.† Partly with a view to reducing the number of pupils, since the Government inspector reported that the staff was insufficient, and more certified teachers could not be procured for lack of funds, the fees in all the standards of the Boys' English School at Cotta were raised, but none of the lads left in consequence and fifty-seven new pupils were admitted. The higher grades of the Boys' Boarding-school at Borella secured 100 per cent. of passes in the diocesan Scripture examination, and did well also in secular subjects. The Industrial School at Dodanduwa presented fifty-two lads for examination in the three trades taught, viz., printing, carpentry and tailoring, and obtained the maximum possible grant.

Ladies' College

In the spring of 1910 the Ladies' College, Colombo, removed to more commodious premises, £170 of the expense of the new buildings being met by the proceeds of a sale of work managed entirely by the teachers and girls, with the help of a number of former pupils. The increased accommodation made it possible to take more boarders, but though the number was raised from nineteen to twenty-seven many applicants for admission had to be turned away. Some of the elder Christian boarders took part in Sunday-school work, and the conversion of the school ayah, who received baptism not long since, is said to have been due to the earnest, prayerful teaching of one of them. Miss L. E. Nixon, the principal of the college, reports a changing process as going on among the girls, saying that many who at one time were careless and indifferent to the things which concern their peace, have yielded up their whole heart and life to the Saviour; and mentions that the father of one of the pupils, not himself a decided Christian, lately testified, 'She always seems to bring God nearer to me.' An association has been formed with the object of keeping in touch with 'old girls,' in connexion with which two social gatherings were held; a magazine, edited and managed by them, has been started; and a fund has been opened for the purpose of building and equipping a college library. Some of the former pupils contemplate devoting themselves to missionary work. The Girls' High School, Jaffna, suffered much from sickness, but nevertheless, for the third year in succession, all the girls who entered for the Cambridge Local Examination were successful. One of the children was baptized with the consent of her brother (her father is dead), and some of the Hindu boarders are said to be 'more than interested' in their Scripture lessons.* Passing by the English School for girls at Cotta, where most of the children are Christians, and which had a prosperous but uneventful year, the Boarding-schools for girls call for mention. From the educational standpoint they are able to give good reports, while in several cases results were seen of the careful Christian teaching which is given in them. One child in the Borella school was baptized during the year; and twelve at Nellore asked for baptism, as did three at Kegalle and several at Baddegama. Great care and discretion, however, have to be exercised in the matter of admitting the children into the visible Church, because of the character of the homes to which they belong, and the difficulties and temptations to which the girls are exposed in connexion with the question of marriage. Mrs. J. W. Balding says that many former mission-school pupils are met with whose lives have been spoilt by Buddhist marriages, and adds, 'The usual story is that after having learnt of Christ in one of the mission-schools the girls evince a desire for baptism; their parents sometimes consent but afterwards force them into a Buddhist alliance, so that in some cases, even though the girls keep their Bibles and read them, their children are brought up as non-Christians.' It is much the same with the Hindus in the northern peninsula. In other instances the parents refuse entirely to give their consent to the baptism of their daughters. One or two examples will make the position clear. The Rev. S. M. Simmons writes from Baddegama :—

> One girl has been removed because she wished to be baptized, and her relatives will hardly allow her to speak to a Christian now. The ladies have seen her from time to time. One night she and her elder sister (also an old pupil of the school, who was actually allowed to be baptized and confirmed, but has now been married to a Buddhist), hearing that Misses Josolyne and Sparrow were in their village, stole out to visit them, while their uncle was away gambling. They had only been a few minutes in the house when a servant woman ran in, screaming out that the uncle had returned. The two poor girls fled back panic-stricken, followed by the ladies. Mercifully it proved to be a false alarm.

Elementary schools

A good deal of fruit was also seen of the work in the many Primary Schools in the Mission. The Rev. J. W. Balding, of Cotta, was asked to act as godfather to a boy whose father, in making the request, said that as a lad attending a mission-school he desired to become a Christian, but there were then difficulties in the way ; these, however, had afterwards been overcome, and both he and his wife had been baptized. Another man in the same district, who, together with his wife and six children, was baptized during the year, formerly attended a village school which ten years ago was closed as unfruitful. When a little over forty years of age this man suddenly one day walked seven miles to see the nearest catechist, and said that he was seeking God, about Whom he had heard when at school. For six months he read his Bible diligently, and then he brought the good news that his wife also had 'given herself to the Lord.' He taught her as best he could, and conducted family prayers regularly, and eventually, as already stated, both of them were baptized. Among the converts at Dikoya, in the Tamil Coolie Mission, was a man twenty-nine years old of whom the pastor says, 'The holy words he had committed to memory in his boyhood when at a mission-school were working in his heart ; he found himself in a sinful condition and seemed to care for the salvation, and believed that the blood of Jesus Christ would cleanse from all sin.' In one village school three of the boys asked for baptism ; a pupil in another was flogged by his father because he persisted in attending Sunday-school, and later, recovering from illness, tore off the 'devil-charms' which his parents had tied on him while he was unconscious ; in a third, a pupil teacher was led to Christ and after some trouble in obtaining the consent of her parents, was baptized ; and in a fourth a lad of seventeen, who had been nine years in the school, joined the catechumenate. Testimony as to the efficiency of the schools in the highest sense is borne by others besides the missionaries. A Hindu gentleman lately lamented that their women and girls believe the Gospel because they were taught it at school, and that many of them are ashamed to rub ashes on their foreheads. Moreover the opposition which has been referred to as levelled against the schools is in itself a proof that non-Christians believe that the educational work of the Society is fraught with danger to their religions. Unhappily financial straitness prevented new schools being opened, even in the case of a village, far in the interior, whence 100 men of very low caste visited Cotta to beg Mr. Balding for a teacher, saying, 'No man careth for us; we are despised and neglected; we have no temple or school; no one comes to tell us anything; we will ourselves build a school if you will send a teacher.' Moreover the same cause, financial straitness, seemed likely to compel the closing of some schools already existing when opposition diminished the attendance and consequently the fees and grants. A passage in Mr. Fraser's annual letter explains the difficulty and how it was met. He writes :—

School work affected by retrenchment

> Talawatugoda is a village school which had seventy-seven boys and girls on its roll. A trained teacher and his wife have for many years been in charge of it, and with an assistant have done all the work. Now, owing to opposition the attendance is reduced to a fraction, the assistant teacher has to go, and the trained man and his wife are put on half-pay. This means, too, that they must remove their own daughters from the boarding-school where they now are. But Talawatugoda school has produced twenty-three known converts, and the teachers' work has been faithful and good. Another school of ninety-five was reduced to fifteen after the visit of the Irish Buddhist priest. The teachers are earnest Christians, and the five senior boys who have stayed are promising candidates for baptism. But to run either of these schools on their reduced numbers means a loss of £20 a year, or £40 on the two. It cannot be done on present funds. But if it could be done for two or three years the children would come back again and the opposition—always without the grace of continuance—would die down. The pity is we find it difficult to carry on for the two years. The money sent us to help such schools, on the suggestion of two of our visitors, has done great good. It was £100, and it has saved for this year nine schools, including the above two, in different districts, one of them being now presumably safe, as it has been adopted by the Singhalese congregation in Kandy.

Evangelistic work

(1) Work among Singhalese

Evangelistic work suffered from the smallness of the staff. At Jaffna the work among the Tamil women and at Baddegama that among the Singhalese women was in the hands of a lady without any European colleague. Among the Singhalese, both in the towns and in the Kandian Itinerancy, there was also a shortage of native agents, so that part of the Society's grant for evangelistic work had to be paid to school teachers, who undertook such work in addition to their educational duties. In the Northern Division of the Itinerancy in particular, some of the men are inefficient and others are in ill-health, and it is difficult to get competent agents since much of the country is jungle and great isolation has to be faced by the catechists. In connexion with the open-air preaching in Colombo the use of large coloured Scripture pictures assisted in gathering good audiences; tracts were freely distributed and willingly accepted, and many Scripture portions and Christian books were purchased; but it was comparatively rare for any of those who listened to ask for further teaching. Many books were sold also at the semi-religious festival, called the Perahera, which takes place annually at Kandy, and the lantern meetings which were then held attracted a number of villagers to hearken to what was said.* In order to avoid trouble the late Rev. J. G. Garrett took the precaution to inform one of the leading Buddhist officials beforehand of the proposed effort on the part of the Christians, and the man expressed a high esteem for Christianity, and said that he would welcome their presence at the festival. In most of the villages which were visited and in the plumbago sheds it was easy to hold the attention of the people, but often the only apparent result of the work was that expressed in the words, 'All that you say is true, but we cannot leave our religion.' Some special services for non-Christians at Baddegama and Nugegoda in the autumn led a number of persons to give in their names as having accepted Christ as their Saviour, and through the Sunday-school work some children expressed a desire to become Christians. At one place a boy, previously in yellow robes as a Buddhist priest, was among the pupils; when examined he passed creditably and asked for a Bible as a prize. Several inquirers came forward at Talawa after a prolonged visit to the place by Miss A. L. Earp; at Kandy two women were under instruction for baptism, one in the face of much opposition at home; in a neighbouring village another woman confessed that great peace had come into her heart since she had learnt of the Saviour, but the antagonism of her relatives was so pronounced that she was afraid to continue to learn from the missionaries; and another woman, in the Baddegama district, is spoken of who remarked, 'I feel that your religion is true.' A good many baptisms are recorded—those of a Singhalese lady and her sister at Colombo, of nine adults in the Central Division of the Itinerancy, of the same number at Baddegama and of seventeen at Cotta; while among the converts at Nugegoda were the wife of a Christian, won by the exemplary life of her Christian sister, and a man sixty years of age, who testified that he experienced unspeakable joy, and found that the power of God availed to keep him from sin.†

Converts

Work among the Tamils is carried on at Colombo, and also in the northern peninsula and in the Tamil Coolie Mission. The sphere of this Mission extends over the Central and Uva Provinces and a considerable portion of the Western Province, where some 400,000

† Some incidents connected with work among the Singhalese were described in the Gl., March, 1911, p. 37.

coolies are employed, of whom not more than one in eighty is a Protestant Christian.* The formation of rubber plantations has lately led to work being instituted in districts where none was carried on in former days, while owing to the insufficiency of the Tamil labour supply the missionaries are now brought into contact with large numbers of Telugu-speaking immigrants. Many requests for teaching were received in the Northern Division, often from coolies who had heard the Gospel in their Indian homes and were eager to learn more about it, and the Sunday-schools proved most useful, although when there was much tea-leaf to be plucked on the estates both parents and children had special inducements held out to them to work on Sundays. Among the Mohammedan women in Colombo and Kandy there was a growing interest in the Bible, and several of them professed faith in Christ, but the ladies working among them say that these women do not appear to 'get beyond a certain stage,' and that until some more definite steps are taken to influence the Moslem men it is unlikely that much progress will be made among the women. The men do not trust or respect women, and while many like their women to be taught to read they are unwilling that they should learn to write lest they should enter into correspondence with any one! In the Jaffna Peninsula, where for many years efforts have been concentrated chiefly on the higher castes, more definite work than heretofore was undertaken among the low-caste people by setting apart a teacher to work among them at Copay. Visible results of what has been done among the higher castes in this part of Ceylon have been comparatively few, and in order to ascertain the causes of this lack of success, and to gain an appreciation of the hindrances which the agents experience, the Rev. W. J. Hanan addressed a series of questions on these and other subjects to the catechists. The paucity of conversions from Hinduism was attributed by one to the efforts of Hindu revivalists, by another to the bad example of some of the converts, by a third to the want of good tracts and earnest workers, and by others to ignorance, worldliness and the fear of evil spirits; while yet another gave as his answer, 'Christians do not pray for non-Christians!' 'Want of Christian sympathy,' 'the change of their religion by Christians, especially Christian Europeans,' reluctance to forsake their traditions and gods, and the opposition of relatives were assigned as causes which hindered many inquirers from being baptized; and one catechist said, 'A barber tells me that for a long time he has associated with Christians, and that he believes Christianity to be true, but none of his relatives have become Christians, and he will find it difficult to arrange marriages for his children if he does so.' In spite of all the difficulties met with by the workers they were permitted to witness much fruit of their labours, and it is cheering to read that, in the Northern Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission at least, most of the fifty-four persons baptized during the year were won by the 'consistent lives and earnest words of Christian neighbours.' Of special cases among those received into the visible Church during the year may be mentioned a kangany (overseer) who brought his whole gang of sixteen coolies with him, and wished the Rev. R. P. Butterfield to baptize them all then and there; and a conductor of an estate in West Haputale, whose story Mr. Rowlands gives as follows :— Baptisms

As a youth he had been taught in a mission-school, and what he had learnt of Scripture there worked in his heart. But, his parents being very zealous Hindus, he was not able while under their care to show his faith. The spark of life, however, that had been kindled did not die out, and after some years, when he had come to a more independent position, the Spirit of God spoke to him, 'brought to remembrance' the lessons of early life, 'convinced him of sin,' and led him earnestly to seek salvation. He made known his desire to our evangelist when he next visited the estate, and at once began to prepare for baptism. For some time, however, his wife was so much in opposition that he thought it better to delay, and meanwhile he continued to reason with her. By degrees her heart, too, was opened to the truth; she yielded herself to the promptings of the Holy Spirit and became a very earnest inquirer. On August 7 both husband and wife were baptized at Haputale church with their two little boys, and they are now rejoicing in the Lord. Having found Christ for himself the man has been diligent in seeking to bring others to Him. He invited his mother to come over from India that he might have the opportunity of teaching her, and she with two of his brothers, and two coolies of the estate with their wives and children, are all looking forward to baptism. School teaching comes to remembrance

The man just mentioned was one of twenty-five adults baptized in the Southern Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission, where there are 'bright hopes for the near future' by reason of the spirit of inquiry and the willingness to renounce Heathenism and become followers of Christ which are shown. On one estate in the Badulla district a visit paid by an evangelist led the head kangany and some thirty others to give in their names as ready to confess Christ, and the kangany led the way to the little temple which he had built in honour of his god, Kathirasan, and said aloud, 'Kathirasa, I used to dance in your honour; from this day I will only dance to Jesus Christ!' Nineteen adults among these people were baptized during the year after careful examination. Fifty adults were received into the visible Church in the Central Division, and there were many others under instruction, including a mendicant priest who one day visited the catechist, wearing his saffron robes and with the sacred ash smeared over his face. His first question was, 'Who is Jesus Swami (Lord)?' and he went on to say, 'The gods I worship seem to be powerless to do me any good, and I am anxious to know whether Jesus Swami is such a one or not.' Among the inquirers in the northern peninsula was a man who was led to the Saviour by the earnest Christian life of his wife. 'The gods I worship seem powerless

It will have been gathered from what has been said that the women who are convinced of the truth of Christianity and desire to make open confession of Christ as their Lord and Master are confronted with many hindrances and temptations in their homes.

Converts' Homes

Several Converts' Homes have therefore been opened in which inquirers and others are received, some for the sake of affording them shelter, and others in order that they may receive systematic teaching. One of these, 'Mowbray,' at Kandy, is for Singhalese. Sixteen women were admitted in 1910, making a total of thirty-four inmates. Among the newcomers were two sisters, whom the Bible-woman had met in the course of her visiting. They had formerly attended a mission-school, and were anxious for further instruction, and in order to escape going to a distant village and in all probability being forced into Buddhist marriages, they entered the home, and there joined the catechumens' class. Two girls were baptized—the fruit of the work of an old girl in a village mission-school. Six of the inmates were married during the year, all but one of them to C.M.S. workers, and two left to take up posts as Bible-women.* One of the inmates of 'The Lodge,' a home for Tamil converts at Colombo, was baptized, and two other Hindu girls asked for baptism, as did three of the inmates of 'The Snuggery' at Kandy, another home for Tamils.

Pastoral work

In the reports which are furnished concerning the character of the Christians there is naturally some allusion to their failings. Many of the converts are infected with a worldly spirit; some give way to intemperance; contracting marriages with non-Christians is a snare to others; some yielded to the temptations to impurity; and one sad case is mentioned of a woman who was baptized when a pupil at a mission-school, but married a Heathen, apostatized, and now is engaged as mistress in a school opened by the Hindus at Copay as a rival to the mission-school. Over against these few references to shortcomings among the converts must be placed the many instances in which the missionaries write with thankfulness of the zeal which they display. A noteworthy feature of the reports is the frequent mention of the efforts of the Christians to win others. Some cases may be taken at random. At Balapitiya, in the Baddegama district, a Singhalese lady, belonging to a very good family, a daughter of a former police magistrate at that place, is devoting herself to Christian work among the people. The Rev. G. A. B. Perera, of the Cotta Pastorate, speaks of one woman who goes round in her leisure hours to tell others of the Saviour; of another who holds a Bible-class for children at her home; of others who take an interest in the conversion of their servants; and of another who joins the Bible-woman in her visiting. The pastor at Mampe says that 'it is truly gratifying to see how the poor Christians are doing their part for the extension of the Master's Kingdom.' In

Voluntary evangelistic work by concerts

* Some details concerning 'Mowbray' will be found in the Gaz., Dec., 1910, p. 374.

Colombo, Singhalese ladies engage actively in evangelistic and Church work. In Jaffna not the agents only, but the private Christians as well, were led to inquire earnestly into the apparent failure of many of the evangelistic agencies, and the Rev. W. J. Hanan says, 'We have found many more people than before willing to help in voluntary Christian work. The growing religious activity of the non-Christian in propagating Hinduism, and his hostility to Christian institutions and workers, are waking up some of our Christians to a sense of their duty towards God and towards their fellows.' In other instances besides those already recorded in the account of the baptisms of the year the converts were instrumental in winning others for Christ; six of the fifteen adults baptized in the Central Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission are reported to have been the fruit of the private influence of some of the Christians, while Mr. Rowlands says of the kangany whose baptism was mentioned in last year's Report * that 'he delights to speak of the heavenly inheritance made sure to him through Jesus Christ,' and that his efforts as a seeker after souls are being rewarded. Another cause for thankfulness is found in the growth in the contributions of the converts; two pastorates in the Tamil Coolie Mission attained to self-support during the year, while in another part of that same Mission most of the Christians, it is said, recognize the duty of making some thankoffering to God when prayer has been answered and a blessing, whether temporal or spiritual, received. In several cases persecution because of the faith was bravely and unflinchingly endured. Mr. Butterfield records a case in point. He writes:—

Zeal of non-Christians arouses the Christians

Increased gifts

> An estate in the Morowakka district, by reason of an inadequate labour force, had recourse to Sunday work. The Christian coolies did not turn out nor were Christians seen at 'cash' plucking, a system by which coolies considerably increase their earnings by working after hours and on Sundays, getting extra money for tea plucked. It was noticed that Christians were not among those who came to receive the extra money. Inquiry was made and it was found that, as the converts had few, if any, debts, they had no need to work for extra money on Sundays; and, moreover, they were quite satisfied with what they earned on week-days. As the labour force was inadequate, every effort was made to drive them from the position which they had taken up. They were promised increased pay in the event of their turning out to work on Sundays. A few, attracted by the bribe, fell away. Recourse was then had to persecution by the kanganies. The converts' allowance of rice was stopped; they were beaten and persecuted in many ways. More gave in, but there still remains at the present time a strong band who refuse to work on Sundays.

Persecution because of Sunday observance

During the year Mr. K. J. Saunders, besides editing the English sheet of the Rivikirana, a Singhalese bi-weekly Christian newspaper, prepared in English a Commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel which has been translated into Singhalese, and also numerous articles for some Indian Christian papers; Mr. H. S. Perera, a Singhalese member of the staff of Trinity College, wrote a book on Ceylonese idioms compared with English; and two lectures by Mr. Gibson, one on 'Practical Suggestions for Reading the Old Testament,' and the other on 'The Revelation through Christ,' were published.

MAURITIUS MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius, on which the Society began work in 1856, is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Hindi and Tamil speaking missionaries. Over 7,000 persons have been baptized, the majority of whom have died or returned to their own country. The Diocese of Mauritius was founded in 1854, when Bishop Ryan was appointed; his successors have been Bishops Hatchard (1869), Huxtable (1870), Royston (1872), Walsh (1891), Pym (1898), Gregory (1904).

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The 1,600 converts connected with the Mission (see Plate 8) are grouped in six pastorates, and are ministered to by four native pastors. The native lay agents number sixty-three.

Most of the schools are connected with the pastorates, but the Society has an orphanage for boys at Plaisance, and one for girls at Rose Belle.

The C.M.S. missionaries (one clergyman and five single women) assist in the pastoral work, carry on the institutions mentioned, and maintain evangelistic work by means of classes, dispensaries and itinerations.

Death of Mrs. E. Luckock

THE death of Mrs. Luckock, the wife of Mr. E. Luckock who laboured in the Mauritius Mission from 1885–94 and afterwards in East Africa, occurred on March 28, 1911.

Pastoral work

Archdeacon H. D. Buswell, who is in general charge of the Society's work in Mauritius, speaks rather more hopefully than in some former years of the character of the congregations, and says that while there is still much that requires patient effort to mend, there are yet 'distinct evidences of improvement in the tone of some congregations which have long given grave cause for anxiety.' Dissensions have somewhat diminished, and although a low standard of morality prevails and calls forth the strictures even of the Heathen, there has been some change for the better in this respect.

Evangelistic work

Evangelistic work on the sugar estates was hindered by plague, but a good many Heathen were often present at the services held in the churches, and non-Christians were attentive to what was said at meetings held for their benefit.

Baptisms

A few adults received baptism—a young Chinese merchant, first influenced by reading the New Testament, and further favourably impressed by the help given him at a crisis in his life by the manager of a sugar estate; another young man whose mother also is an inquirer; a labourer to whom an immigrant Christian spoke of the Saviour; and the wife of a Christian, who was among the audience at an open-air service, and was led by what she then heard to put herself under instruction. Among the inquirers was a young Chinaman, who visited Miss M. B. Gwynn once a week to study the Bible with her, though to do so he had to travel by railway, and also to pay some one to look after his shop during his absence.

Educational work

Orphanages

Some baptisms also took place in connexion with the Boys' Orphanage at Plaisance. Three lads were there received into the visible Church, together with the brother of one of them, who was drawn in by the work at the Rose Belle dispensary.* The bigger children in the Girls' Orphanage at Rose Belle showed a good deal of earnestness, while the lace school connected with that institution had more members than in 1909, and their work met with a ready sale. The C.M.S. primary schools had a good year as regards secular results, and it is interesting to note that, speaking generally, these were best in those schools in which the teachers are most mindful of their duty as regards religious instruction. A pupil, a son of the labourer mentioned above, was baptized at Easter, 1910.

* A full account of these converts was given in the Gl., Oct., 1910, p. 146.

CHINA

WHILE the attacks which are made from time to time upon both the principle and the conduct of missionary work may serve to confirm some people in their prejudice against foreign missions, they afford an opportunity, on the other hand, to independent observers qualified to express an opinion and also to professed advocates of missionary work for showing how great and how real are the benefits conferred on non-Christian nations by preaching to them the Gospel of love. An instance occurred during the year under review in connexion with work in China. Sir Hiram Maxim, the distinguished engineer, in an article in the Rationalist Press Association Annual charged missionaries with having done 'an infinite amount of harm in China, without making a single convert,' and made other statements of a similar character; while later on, in the columns of the Morning Post, he reiterated some of his charges. The appearance of the above article led the Daily News to send a representative to interview Sir W. Caine Hillier, K.C.M.G., C.B., Adviser to the Chinese Government, who spent nearly forty years in China and Corea as Student Interpreter (1867), assistant Chinese Secretary, Peking (1879-85), Chinese Secretary (1885-89), Consul-General, Corea (1889-96), and Adviser to the Military Authorities in China (1900). In reply to the Daily News representative he remarked :—

Sir Hiram Maxim's criticisms of missionaries in China, and Sir W. C. Hillier's reply

> Sir Hiram says: 'The missionaries do not stand a ghost of a chance of making any headway in China.' I say that, so far from that being the case, they are in a stronger position now than at any previous time in history. In my experience there never was a more friendly feeling in China towards missionaries than at the present moment, and I say that that friendly feeling is richly deserved.
> Sir Hiram declares that no honest Chinaman has ever become a convert to Christianity. For my own part, I know scores of Chinese whom I believe to be sincere Christians. I should like to ask any one who makes such a statement whether he has heard of the Young Men's Christian Association in China—one of the most magnificent institutions I ever came across. It is doing untold good, yet it was started, and is being carried on, by missionaries.
>
> Again, Sir Hiram altogether rejects the statistics of the missionary societies, and declares that 'missionaries are, and always have been, the greatest liars on the face of the earth.' I myself am convinced from personal observation that there is no garbling of statistics, and that the missionary societies publish honest statements of fact.*

Missionary statistics not garbled

Sir Hiram's attack also led a correspondent, who had travelled some 7,000 miles in China within the previous two years, and had twice been nursed back to life by missionaries whom he had never before heard of, to write a letter to the Shanghai Mercury, in which the following passages occurred :—

Testimony of a former disbeliever in Missions

> When I came to China I had no sympathy with Missions in China—not necessarily did I run down missionaries—and could never be induced to believe that much good could come of mission work in China. I have since met missionaries in all parts of this Empire, have seen all sorts and conditions, have heard the different beliefs which they teach, varying as they do considerably, and am closely acquainted with the evangelistic, educational and medical work of many mission-stations. . . .

I state, with no hesitancy whatever, that never have I found a missionary in Interior China whose life and teaching did not impress the people who came near to him that he was a man of truth. . . . We may, or may not, agree with the Christianizing of China—I personally do with all my heart—but there is only one opinion about missionaries—real missionaries, men who literally lay down their lives to teach what they believe to be true. . . .

The missionary in Interior China is the greatest unpaid commercial agent that we have, and no other class of people have done more, or anything like as much for the modernizing of China—leaving out of the question the Christianizing of the country—and for the establishment in China of a Christian conscience.*

Another testimony to missionaries in China and their work is that of Dr. Morrison, the Times' Peking Correspondent, who is reported by the Daily Telegraph to have used the following words when speaking at the Authors' Club on October 10 :—

The high character of English missionaries

He thought it only fair to say that the good name which Englishmen possessed in China—a name for straightforwardness and honesty—was due not only to the high character of our official class and our business men, but also to the high character of the English missionaries, whose pleasant English homes were found from one end of the Empire to the other. We might criticize some of their methods, but the sum-total of the good they did to the maintenance of our good name was beyond calculation. Let them think what it meant to have scattered throughout that vast Empire in hundreds of stations high-minded English gentlemen, whose word was their bond, living simple and pure lives, absolutely trusted, who were working solely for the good of the people, undismayed by failure, manly and courageous. The more he saw of missionary work in China the more he admired it. The work was much better organized than before. There was now combined movement where formerly there were often merely disjointed efforts. From an experience gained by witnessing their work in every province in the Empire he wished to bear his unqualified testimony to the admirable work done by our English missionaries in China.

The Chinese do not hate Christianity

The attitude of the Chinese towards missionaries is not one of dislike and distrust, as is sometimes represented. Lord W. Gascoyne Cecil, who has twice visited China and has taken unusual pains to obtain accurate information concerning Missions in that land, says in his book, Changing China, 'I learnt that whatever may have been their sentiment in the past, in the present the Chinese have no hatred towards Christianity, but they regard it as one of the least odious parts of the Western civilization which has become for them a necessity.' He was told by a Chinese statesman that 'the Chinese do not hate Christianity, and are indeed tolerant of Missions, but they still dislike them because Christianity is the religion of the military races, and they have a historical tradition that the advance of Christianity is connected with war.' † This tolerance of Missions, and even friendliness towards missionaries, has lately been exemplified in a striking way. During very serious riots in a remote part of the province of Kwangtung, so the Rev. P. Jenkins states, 'an apologetic message was sent to the resident missionaries expressing regret that it was necessary to burn down their mission-premises, and advising them to get out of the way until the magistrates—against whom the turbulent spirits were directing their energies—had come to their right mind or lost their heads in a sense not metaphorical.'

Friendliness of Chinese towards missionaries

There appears to be no diminution in the anxiety for a modern education which has characterized the Chinese of late years,* but up to the present the efforts of the Government have been more successful in the provision of appliances than in the training of teachers. In some cases the Chinese Government recognizes that foreign help is needed in teaching, and is enlisting the help of Americans who are engaged for periods of from three to four years. It is an instructive commentary on the allegation that the Chinese are antagonistic to Christianity that the Literary Chancellor in seeking for American teachers specially requested that they might be members of the Y.M.C.A. ! †

Christians preferred as teachers

In order to assist the Chinese Government in the suppression of opium-smoking the British Government agreed at the end of 1907 to reduce the export of Indian opium by 5,100 chests a year, i.e. one-tenth of the export in 1907, for three years, beginning from January 1, 1908, with a view to renewing the agreement should China make a proportionate reduction in her own poppy growth, viz., of one-tenth per annum, so as to extinguish both growth and export in ten years. The first period of three years having expired, a new agreement was signed in May, 1911, by which the British Government agreed that the export of opium from India shall cease in less than seven years if proof is given that the production of the drug in China has entirely ceased, and that Indian opium shall not be conveyed to any province of China which has effectively suppressed the cultivation and import of native opium; the British Government also consented to the duty on opium being increased to 350 taels per chest. The earnestness of the Chinese in the matter has been shown in many ways—by the fact that in 1910 the number of chests of opium imported decreased not by 5,100, but by 12,500, no fewer than 7,400 of those brought to the country being suffered to remain in bonded stores at the treaty ports; by the resolutions and actions of several of the Provincial Assemblies ; and by the extensive degree in which the cultivation of the poppy has been given up. Additional evidence as to the reality of the efforts after reform in the matter comes from Funing in the statement of the Rev. Dr. S. Synge that suicides from opium are now almost unknown in the Funing district.*

Efforts to obtain a constitutional Government

Among the educated classes a good deal of unrest prevailed during the year, and some progress was made towards the attainment of a constitutional Government. A National Assembly was summoned in the autumn, which, amid great enthusiasm, carried a motion for presentation to the Throne of its petition for an immediate calling of a parliament; in response an Imperial Edict announced that an Upper and Lower House of Parliament will be formed in three years.† Change in another direction is foreshadowed by the agitation which has arisen against the use of the queue. Archdeacon E. J. Barnett wrote from Hong Kong on December 7 :—

Agitation against the use of the queue

> Quite an historic meeting was held at the Chinese club on Sunday last. Selected speakers harangued a large crowd on the superfluity of the queue as an appendage of beauty or utility. Amid intense silence twelve barbers mounted the platform and shaved the heads of six old gentlemen who had worn the queue for an accumulated period of 419 years. Then enthusiasm ran riot, and no less than 1,000 of those who had entered the hall in Celestial head-attire returned home carrying their queues anywhere but on their heads. To cap all, a telegram was dispatched requesting his Imperial Majesty to issue forthwith the promised Edict permitting the abandonment of the historic queue. The student and military classes are most prominent in queue-cutting. Army officers have been dismissed and students rusticated for premature action in this direction. Last Sunday, as we returned to the vestry after service in St. Stephen's Church, I noticed that only two male members of the choir were wearing queues, one of them being the pastor's son. When China shakes herself sufficiently to drop off her queue, what it portends, rather than what is actually done, deserves attention.‡

Faith in idols waning

Not least among the changes, which, however, are more conspicuous among the educated classes than among the masses of the people, is the waning of faith in idols. Mandarins try to put a stop to idol processions on the plea that they obstruct the traffic and cause a waste of money, besides tending to disturb the peace; in the city temple at Anhsien, even at the time of the festival of the city god, the whole place, including the two principal idols, was thick with dust; temples are being diverted to other uses than those for which they were originally intended; and some of the leading literati of Foochow lately said to some Christians, 'We know that there is nothing good in idolatry; Buddhism is darkness and superstition; Confucianism is good, but it does not appeal to our hearts. We confess we need something better.' A great deal of superstition, of course, still prevails, and the old faiths are strongly intrenched in the hearts of many. For example, Miss A. Kendall writes :—

Idol processions

At the close of the summer there was a great deal of sickness in and around Foochow, cholera especially, and the usual idol processions were gone through to get rid of the disease. For days the 'tall and short devils' were parading the streets to propitiate the goodwill of the 'five emperors or rulers,' who are supposed to have the control of the diseases. The people who subscribe are supposed to get the benefit of exemption from the disease. On the last evening, at midnight, numbers of paper boats were carried down to the river and burned, the idea being to collect and send out to sea all the diseases which the 'five emperors' were willing to send away from the place. About the same time they had a 'universal rescue,' that is, getting the spirits of departed friends out of hell and feeding and clothing them. A number of paper shops, with mock clothing, and tables spread with all kinds of food for their benefit, were standing in the street near our compound. Soon after that was the birthday of one of their state gods, called the 'Great Mountain,' and he was dragged about the street for two days. I think the people regard it more as a big 'show' than anything like worship. They all put on their best clothes, and have a good time generally.*

Christianizing heathen customs

One of the problems which confront missionaries in China is that of the attitude to be adopted towards customs connected with idolatrous observances but susceptible of modifications which remove the objections to them. It is interesting to note in this connexion that the Christians show a tendency to Christianize certain heathen customs and ceremonies. The Rev. Dr. M. Mackenzie gives two instances :—

The local custom, after the death of a parent, is to assemble, some weeks later, the relatives and intimate friends of the deceased. These worship before the sealed coffin. Buddhist priests perform the prescribed rites amidst the sound of bagpipes, gongs, explosions of crackers, etc., and, of course, there follows the inevitable feast. In the instance of a Christian dying, his son will have all the programme as above, with this important difference, that a Christian pastor takes the place of a heathen priest. Hymns are sung to the praise of God, and the addresses which follow deal with the glorious hope of the life everlasting. Then, again, when parents arrive at middle age the local custom is to invite the heathen priests, who chant verses to the accompaniment of highly loud and discordant music. Three days are given up to this ceremony in the case of well-to-do families. The purpose of the service is that the head of the house may live to a good old age. Our Church members utilize this ancient Chinese custom by substituting a Christian priest and inviting catechists to teach the assembled guests about the Preserver and Prolonger of life.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION *

THE PAST HISTORY

The great Empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong Kong and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tientsin and Convention of Peking. Hong Kong was occupied by the Society's missionaries in 1862; Pakhoi in 1886; Canton in 1898; Limchow in 1902; and Lingshan and Hokshan in 1910.

China, south of lat. 28°, with the exception of the provinces of Fukien, Kwangsi and Hunan, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith, the third, Dr. Burdon, and the fourth, Dr. Hoare, had been C.M.S. missionaries; the second, Dr. Alford, and the present Bishop, Dr. Lander, had been active friends of the Society at home.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Six stations are occupied in the province of Kwangtung—viz., Hong Kong, Canton and Hokshan (south-west of Canton), and Pakhoi, Limchow and Lingshan (farther south-west).

The preparation of Chinese agents is carried on at a training college at Canton, and Bible-women's schools at Hong Kong (St. Stephen's House) and Hokshan. To the training college there is attached a school for Christian boys, for whom there are also boarding-schools at Canton and Pakhoi, while for Christian girls there are similar schools at the last named station, and also at Hong Kong (Fairlea) and Hokshan. St. Stephen's College, Hong Kong, exists to provide a Christian education on modern lines for the sons of Chinese gentlemen, while St. Stephen's Girls' College does the same for their daughters. St. Paul's Anglo-Chinese School and a girls' high school meet the need of Eurasians and Chinese unable to pay high fees, and at Kowloon there is a rescue home and orphanage.

A hospital and leper asylum are maintained at Pakhoi, and a dispensary at Limchow. Evangelistic work is prosecuted in the numerous towns and villages of the large districts by both men and women missionaries.

The staff of the Mission consists of eleven European and three Chinese clergymen, three doctors, nine missionaries' wives and twenty other women missionaries, three of whom are trained nurses. Eighty-eight Chinese Christian lay agents are employed.

Reinforcements

THREE of the year's recruits have been assigned to South China: the Rev. Charles Brodie Shann, B.A., Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of Christ Church, Clifton, a son of the Rev. R. Shann, late of the Mid China Mission, and a nephew of Bishop Hoare; Mr. Charles Gilbert Stenhouse Baronsfeather, M.B., LL.B., Trinity College, Dublin; and Miss Emily Mary Gertrude Barber, of the New South Wales Association. On the other hand the Committee have accepted the resignation of Mrs. E. B. Beauchamp, Miss M. B. Moore's term of service has expired, and the Society's agreement with Mr. F. R. Donaldson has been terminated.

Educational work

Theological Class

At the beginning of 1910 the Theological Class was transferred from Hong Kong to Canton. There were then nine students; one of them left later in the year owing to ill-health, another was asked to resign because of serious divergence from the Church's

* In the names of provinces, towns, etc., in China, the spelling of the Imperial Post Office is followed. standard of doctrine, and two others took up work in the Mission. In Hong Kong the C.M.S. has a college and five secondary schools, English and vernacular, besides some seven day-schools, and all these are managed and maintained without any cost to the Society beyond the allowances of the missionaries connected with them. St. Stephen's College maintained the reputation it has gained in the Oxford local examinations, two passing the preliminary, nine the junior and eight the senior. Several of the students were confirmed during the year; others were baptized; and others, again, who have not yet confessed Christ openly in baptism, are standing alone for Him in some of the best Chinese families, amid harshness, ridicule and persecution.* Sir F. Lugard, the Governor of Hong Kong, bore testimony on the speech day to the value of the teaching which is given at the college. Referring to the Hong Kong University, in connexion with which two hostels are to be licensed, those of the London Missionary Society and of the C.M.S., he said :— St. Stephen's College

> I am determined, so far as lies in my power, that the education afforded by this University of ours shall be such as to educate the moral character, and indeed I may add the emotional side of the students of the University, as well as merely the intellectual and material side. We shall be delighted to have the results of your experience in this college, which is in itself a standing proof of the possibility of the solution of that problem.

St. Paul's Anglo-Chinese School at Hong Kong has been reopened with a view to giving a sound education to the sons of Christians and others who cannot afford the high fees which are charged at St. Stephen's College; an appeal for funds for the requisite buildings and for a church to be erected on the property of St. Paul's College resulted in £2,000 being quickly subscribed by the Chinese alone, most of it from the parents of pupils or from old boys of the school. One of the latter, his Excellency Wu Ting Fang (lately Chinese Ambassador at Washington), headed the list with a contribution of $5,000. A change was witnessed in the conduct of several of the pupils which caused great thankfulness. There was some falling off in the number of lads at the Boarding-school at Pakhoi, but the discipline of the school improved. Good work is done by the two Chinese masters, former students at St. Paul's College, who of their own initiative have started a Sunday-school for the boys. St. Paul's School

A Bible-women's School was carried on at Hong Kong and another for a few months at Shiuhing, where four women were in training.† St. Stephen's Girls' College and Preparatory School, which was opened in 1905 with five pupils (three boys and two girls), now has nearly eighty names on its roll. The preparatory school is being developed under Miss C. E. W. Hunt, who is a trained kindergarten teacher. Two of the college girls passed Bible-women's schools St. Stephen's Girls' College the junior Oxford local examination, and four others the preliminary examination. A greater 'spirit of helpfulness' appeared among the girls, and they showed a good deal of keenness in connexion with a working party which was begun with the object of assisting to raise funds for the new church which has been spoken of. About thirty of the pupils joined a Bible-reading Union; one of them asked for baptism; many others were 'on the verge of Christianity'; and a former pupil, who while in the school maintained a rather scornful attitude towards Christianity, was baptized. An important work is carried on in the homes of the pupils, which are visited as far as possible by the ladies connected with the college. One Chinese lady thus instructed has been baptized, and others, stimulated by what their children have taught them, are anxious to learn more about Christianity. The curriculum at the Girls' High School is similar to that at the college, and the former institution, like the latter, met with success in the Oxford local examinations. The number of pupils at Fairlea, a Christian Girls' Boarding-school, to which, however, some non-Christians are now admitted, varied from fifty-eight to seventy-two. There was a steady growth in spirituality among some of the elder girls, and one of the younger pupils, together with her mother and brother (a day-scholar), received baptism. Some of the girls at the Pakhoi school, and at the Victoria Home and Orphanage at Kowloon also, asked to be baptized. Seven girls were sent to the orphanage during the year by the Registrar-General. The nature of the life from which one of them was rescued can be gauged from the following extract from Miss A. K. Storr's annual letter:—

'On the verge of Christianity'

Girls' High School

Christian Girls' Boarding-school

Victoria Home

> The girl had been so very severely beaten that she had been away to the police for protection. We heard afterwards a little of the way the child had been brought up. It seems that the people to whom the girl belonged had about twelve slave girls. These girls were taught to sing Chinese songs, and then on any festive occasion the girls were dressed smartly, and sent to sing and amuse the guests, and also at the same time to steal from them all they could without being noticed.

Fruit of the day-school work of former years was reaped by the baptism of a young woman who had been a pupil in a mission-school ten years before.

Medical work

The reputation of the 'big healing-place,' as the medical mission at Pakhoi has been called, where there are sixty beds in the general hospital and 150 in the leper hospitals, stands high, and some of the patients are attracted from considerable distances. Many of them 'responded to love and care,' and in certain cases a change was apparent in them which could only be attributed to the influence of the Gospel. Miss M. B. Moore mentions a patient from a wealthy family who read daily, both privately and also to her attendants, a Bible which was given her, and whose husband made liberal donations to the hospital funds and in aid of the work at the leper asylum when his wife left for her home. Other patients became interested in Christianity, and one at least on returning to her home put herself under instruction for baptism.*

Evangelistic work

The year may be said to have been marked by advance in the Mission, for although Shiuhing, where in the past there has been comparatively little response to the Gospel invitation, was abandoned, Hokshan, some twenty miles south of that city, and Lingshan, 108 miles north of Pakhoi, were occupied in July and September respectively, while a new out-station was opened at Sheunglok, forty-five miles from Pakhoi. Everywhere the prospects were favourable. In the district around Canton there are 'numbers obviously waiting to be won' for the Saviour; the people were eager to obtain tracts and gospels; and the example of P'ikt'aam and Kongp'it'au in giving their ancestral halls to serve as churches † was followed by two other villages, Tokong and P'ikkong. From both of the new stations, Lingshan and Hokshan, unlimited opportunities are reported, and at Pakhoi evangelistic meetings were well attended. That town suffered much from plague, which was officially stated to have carried off ten per cent. of the population. Two men and two children of the Christians and the husbands of three of the Christian women died. These three men gave evidence of repentance at the last, and one of them, who had persecuted his wife in the past, before he died asked her whether he could be saved without being baptized, and in reply was pointed to the case of the penitent thief. Others of the Chinese who were carried off had deliberately rejected the offer of salvation through Christ. Miss E. G. George writes:—

Occupation of Hokshan and Lingshan

Ancestral halls turned into churches

> One was an elderly woman, who had heard for years, but because her house was blown down in a typhoon, she was offended, saying what advantage was there in serving the Heavenly Father if He did not protect our belongings? She not only did not herself attend services afterwards, but she hindered others. A second woman had been visited many times, and although always polite to us yet continued hardened to the Gospel and was an ardent worshipper of idols. A third had been servant in a missionary's house and a regular attendant at service and class; but, in spite of warning, she married a man who already had a wife, and thus cut herself off from the privilege of baptism. The fourth had heard, and even passed through the station class, but she would not decide for Christ, and her conduct was so erratic that we fear she knew nothing of repentance, for at one time she took down all her idols, but afterwards replaced them.

Baptisms

Many baptisms are reported—six in the Shiuhing district before the missionaries were withdrawn; twenty-nine at P'ikt'aam, mentioned above; thirty-one at Naampok, another place in the Canton district; twenty-four at Kongmoon; and so on. Five leper women were baptized at Pakhoi, and twenty adults were expected to be baptized there at Christmas, while from nearly all the stations many persons were admitted to the catechumenate. Among the inquirers were some students and a schoolmaster at Canton, and a woman at Kotak whose husband was beaten by his relatives because he allowed her to attend a station class.

Pastoral work

Little is said as to the character of the Christians. Many of the catechists are drawn from lowly positions, and though good men, are unable to bear with humility the change to the office of teachers (the highest profession in China); 'with the position, but lacking the power, they essay to be overlords with disastrous results.' Some of the converts are woefully ignorant, and for all of them the prayer may well be offered which fell one day from the lips of a member of the Church committee at Hokshan, that 'there may be more difference between Christian and heathen lives.'

KWANGSI AND HUNAN MISSION *

Work in the province of Kwangsi was begun by the C.M.S. in 1899, when Kweilin was occupied. Four years later a forward step was taken by opening a station at Yungchow, 150 miles distant, in the province of Hunan. Hengchow, north-east of Yungchow, was occupied in 1910 and Siangtan in 1911. The difficult nature of the journey up-country has militated against rapid advance, and the staff of missionaries has been but small.

The province of Kwangsi and that portion of the province of Hunan which lies south of latitude 28° were included in the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong, until 1909, when they were formed into the diocese of Kwangsi-Hunan, to which Dr. W. Banister, a C.M.S. missionary, was appointed. He was consecrated in the year named.

The staff of the Mission consists, besides Bishop Banister, of eight European clergymen, five missionaries' wives and three other women missionaries, one of them a doctor. The Chinese Christian lay agents number twelve.

Reinforcement

THE staff of the Mission has been reinforced by Miss Charlotte Bailey, M.B., Ch.B., Birmingham University, a daughter of a member of the C.M.S. Committee.

The Changsha riots

The riots at Changsha, which broke out on April 13, 1910, and were briefly alluded to in last year's Report,† were primarily caused by the scarcity of rice. At first an undisciplined mob was at work, but before long indiscriminate rioting ceased and a determined and systematic attempt was made to destroy all foreign property. That which was foreign-owned was either burned or smashed to pieces, while that which was only rented by foreigners was merely looted. Happily no lives were lost, and within a short time the city calmed down.‡

Evangelistic work

These troubles affected the C.M.S. Mission, for it was deemed advisable to withdraw the missionaries from Yungchow, 180 miles south of Changsha, and they were unable to return to their station before the autumn. But for this interruption, the work proceeded peacefully. The attendance at the meetings held in the preaching-halls was good; and when the missionaries itinerated crowds of people usually gathered to listen to what they had to say. This was the case even at Hingan, an out-station of Kweilin, where there are more than 200 devil exorcists in the city and district who pay for a licence to carry on their trade. In some of the country districts, however, there was an evident dread of the foreigner; men would not buy gospels until they had been assured not only that the doctrine which they contained was good for the soul, but also that the ink with which they were printed could not possibly injure the body; and in one case after a purchase was made the book was returned in sheer terror, without any demand for the return of the money which had been paid for it—a remarkable thing in China! But while there was less pronounced opposition than in former years, the attitude of the people was hardly cordial, and it has been described as one of 'watchful examination of the lives' of those who profess and call themselves Christians.

Heng-chow and Siangtan occupied

Two new stations have been opened. In December the Rev. T. Goodchild took up his residence at Hengchow, the chief city of southern Hunan, and the home of a large number of officials; and early in 1911 the Rev. J. Holden proceeded to Siangtan, a county city, thirty miles south of Changsha, the provincial capital of Hunan, where work hitherto carried on by the Protestant Episcopal Church of America has been handed over to the C.M.S. It is an important commercial centre, and a terminus of steamer communications. A new out-station, Chuanchow, in the Yungchow district, was opened in the summer. Two children of Christians were baptized at Kweilin, where there were also several catechumens and inquirers.*

Pastoral work

Twenty-four persons were confirmed at Yungchow, where the services were better attended than in 1909, and nine at Kweilin. At the latter station disappointment was caused by the school teacher, a convert, giving up mission-work for secular employment, while two of the Christians married heathen widows.

Educational work

An Anglo-Chinese school for boys was opened at Kweilin at the Chinese New Year with four pupils, a number which gradually increased to fifteen, but the removal of Mr. Holden to another station obliged it to be closed in the summer. A similar fate befell the schools for boys and for girls at Yungchow, owing to the temporary retirement of the missionaries.

FUKIEN MISSION *

THE PAST HISTORY

The Fukien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Foochow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the first-fruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Foochow City. In that year and the following other large cities were occupied by Chinese evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts were baptized. Funing was occupied by European missionaries in 1882; Kutien, 1886; Loyuan, 1889; Kienyang, 1891; Hinghwa, 1893; Kienning, 1894; Ningteh, Futsing, Kengtao and Kosangche, 1896; Lienkong and Tungtai, 1897; Sienyu, 1901; Hotung, 1903; Doshun, 1904; Sungki, 1906; Singtsun, 1910. In 1906 Archdeacon H. McC. E. Price, a C.M.S. missionary in Japan, was consecrated first Bishop of Fukien. The province had previously formed a part of the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The work of the Mission is carried on at Foochow, the capital, and at many cities and villages scattered over the northern half of the province of Fukien. Three of these, besides Foochow, are 'fu' (i.e. prefectural) cities, viz., Funing and Kienning, north of the Min, the river on which Foochow stands, and Hinghwa, south of it. The other chief stations are Lienkong, Loyuan, Ningteh and Kutien, north of the Min; and Futsing and Sienyu, south of that river. The work at Funing and some of the educational work at Foochow is largely supported by the Dublin University Fukien Mission.

Besides the Bishop, who resides at Foochow, the mission staff comprises nineteen European clergymen, nine laymen, twenty-three missionaries' wives and fifty single women. Of these twelve are qualified doctors and thirteen are nurses. There are eighteen Chinese clergymen, and 535 male and female Chinese Christian evangelists and teachers.

The chief institutions are at Foochow, some of them in the city and some of them on the island of Nantai, in the River Min, where is the European Settlement. They include a divinity college and normal school, the Stewart Memorial School for Bible-women, St. Mark's College, a high school and a boarding-school for boys, a boarding-school for girls, a hospital and class for students, and a school for blind boys.

There are also theological classes at Hinghwa and Kienning; women's schools at Funing, Ningteh, Hotung, Hinghwa, Kienning and Lienkong; high schools for boys at Funing and Kienning, and boarding-schools at Kutien, Loyuan, Futsing, Hinghwa and Sienyu; girls' boarding-schools at Kengtao, Ningteh, Funing and Hinghwa; and elementary schools at a great number of villages.

Medical work is represented by hospitals, with in some cases classes for students, at Futsing, Ningteh, Funing, Hinghwa, Sienyu and Kienning, besides dispensaries at several stations. Work among lepers is carried on at Foochow, Futsing, Loyuan, Kutien and Kienning.

A number of the women missionaries devote themselves almost entirely to evangelistic work, in which also the missionaries engaged at the institutions named above take part from time to time. Ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. co-operate with the Society's missionaries in work among the women.

Diocesan Synod

THE first session of the Synod of the diocese of Fukien took place at Foochow in February, 1910. The tentative Constitution and

* In the names of provinces, towns, etc., in China the spelling of the Imperial Post Office is followed. Fukien is written for Fuh-Kien; Doshun for Du-sung; Foochow for Fuh-chow; Funing for Fuh-ning; Futsing for Hok-chiang; Hinghwa for Hing-hwa; Hotung for Huok-leng; Kengtao for Keng-tau; Kienning for Kien-ning; Kienyang for Kien-yang; Kosangche for Ko-sang-che; Kutien for Ku-cheng; Lienkong for Lieng-kong; Loyuan for Lo-ngwong; Ningteh for Ning-taik; Sienyu for Sieng-iu; Sungki for Sung-ki; Tungtai for Deng-doi.

Canons of the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui (Church of China)* were discussed and approved, and by way of dealing with the pressing problem of Church finance a scheme was adopted establishing a Central Clergy Sustentation Fund. This consists of two parts —an Endowment Fund, which it is sought to raise to at least $13,000 before using any of the interest, and a Current Expenses Fund, for which each Church council will be assessed annually.

Reinforcements

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. John Hind, M.A., Trinity College, Dublin, who has rejoined the Mission, having worked in it from 1902–9; Miss Helen Margaret Mullens, of the New South Wales Association; and Miss Elsie Frances Pitt, a trained nurse, who received her training under the C.M.S. at Highbury and The Olives. Miss A. K. Wolfe, who was in local connexion, has been accepted as a missionary in home connexion. The name of the Rev. Ding Cong-Mi, who has been admitted to deacons' orders, has been added to the list of Chinese clergymen connected with the Society. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Revs. J. R. S. Boyd and J. J. Butler, Dr. F. Sanger and Miss C. M. Taylor. Notwithstanding the reinforcements just recorded, the supply of ordained men falls far short of what is required. The work which falls on individual missionaries is often overwhelming, and such as cannot be properly managed. Thus, during the year under review, the Rev. J. Martin had to act as principal of the divinity college at Foochow and superintendent of the boys' high school and the normal school, and also to supervise the work in the Futsing district, and, in conjunction with the Rev. J. B. Carpenter, that in the Loyuan and Lienkong districts; and the latter, in addition to the work just mentioned, is responsible for the oversight of the Kutien and Bingnang districts, thus having, as he puts it, 'four counties to walk about in.' The number of Chinese clergymen, too, is far short of what it should be. Connected with the eleven Church councils there are sixty-seven pastorates with 274 places of worship, but there are only fourteen Chinese clergymen engaged in pastoral work, whereas at least seventy are needed.

'Four counties to walk about in'

It was in evangelistic work among men that the shortage of the European staff was most keenly felt, for with but few exceptions the men missionaries were able to do little more in that way than supervise the work of the Chinese catechists. It was not that there were no opportunities. In Foochow, it is true, there was some latent hostility towards Christianity among the upper classes, but both there and throughout the province as a whole the people in general were friendly and apparently tolerant of the preaching of the Gospel. At the same time, and there is remarkable unanimity among the missionaries on this point, few signs appeared of any desire to embrace Christianity. The words of two experienced workers may be quoted. Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe, whom the C.M.S. Committee have appointed a Vice-President of the Society, says that the people of Foochow are 'absolutely indifferent' to what is said, and that there is a strong feeling against entering the Church, and he adds that in the country districts in his charge the same 'aloofness' from the Church exists. The Rev. C. Shaw writes to much the same effect of the Hinghwa district. He says :— Indifference

> We have good congregations on Sundays at many of the churches, especially in the city. There are 'open doors' everywhere. By this I mean there is a readiness to hear the Gospel, and a general acquiescence with all one says, but if we go deeper down there is much to cause sorrow. We have not the numbers attaching themselves to the Church that we once had. Our colporteur reports a decided falling-off in the sale of Bibles, Prayer-books and hymn-books. People listen to our preaching, but they do not attach themselves to any Christian Church, nor do they leave off Heathenism.

At the same time, and especially in connexion with the work among women, there are a number of reports which tell of the accessibility of the people, without adding the reservation as to their unwillingness to accept Christ as their Saviour. In a Buddhist temple in the Foochow district the nuns sat in front of their idols, and listened to the Gospel story as related to them by two missionaries, and in the native city good receptions were accorded to the workers. Among the boatwomen and girls on the River Min there were good opportunities of preaching, and some of the women appeared likely soon to break through the bonds of their customs and confess Christ. Open doors are reported at Kengtao, where 137 villages, constituting only one part of the district, were visited during the year ; and a village is mentioned in which at one time the missionaries were received but coldly, but where now there is a church, erected largely by the people, with an attendance of more than fifty at the Sunday services. At Futsing the outlook is bright. The services were better attended than ever before, the station classes had a larger membership, the people were more willing to listen to the Gospel and more eager to learn to read Christian books, and a Sunday-school was set on foot, through which many besides the children were reached. Miss J. H. Poulter writes of it as follows :— Preaching to Buddhist nuns in a temple

> The school was held in the open guest-room of a Chinese house all through the summer until the end of October. The room was not clean, and I had no right to speak on that point, but that did not matter ; in one corner was a big paper house with servants in attendance, waiting to be burnt when the right day came, but that could not prevent the Bible-story being effective, and it was sweet, in the midst of such surroundings, to see all the children, clean and nicely dressed, singing, 'Jesus loves me' with great fervour. The singing of the children naturally attracted a great many heathen people. At the end of the summer the owners of the house began to object strongly to the work, and the teacher told me that we ought not to hold Sunday-school there any more. It was no wonder that the school was objected A Sunday-school amid strange surroundings to, as the owners of the house were Taouist priests; and, of course, they hardly liked to see the children kneel and pray to the God in Whom they themselves did not believe.

Again, the anti-foreign spirit which marked the inhabitants of Sienyu ten years ago and led them to greet the Rev. S. J. Nightingale with mocking cries, has passed away, and now fifty mission school-girls can be taken through the streets from the Methodist mission-compound to that of the C.M.S. without any remark being heard beyond one to the effect that they were 'going to the other church for worship.' Some of the change there is perhaps due to the fact that Mr. Nightingale has of late taught a little elementary English to the gentry and their sons, and now has more than 100 non-Christian pupils. The fear of the terrible evils which foreigners were supposed to bring has vanished in that district, though it still survives in that of Sungki, where work has not been carried on for so long and where in 1910 an elderly woman meeting Mr. J. Blundy was so frightened that her son had to support her, while a man, when accosted in Chinese, fell over backwards in astonishment. Gospels were sold freely, however, in the neighbourhood of Sungki, and upwards of 1,000 were disposed of in four successive days; while in Kienning a policeman told one of the Bible-women, 'We all used to hate you Christians, and think you were here to harm us, but now the whole city believes that Christianity is good.'* Some lengthening of the cords of the Mission took place during the year in the reoccupation of the city of Lienkong by European missionaries for the first time since 1897, and the occupation by Miss E. J. Harrison in April, 1910, of Singtsun, in the county of Chungan, in the Kienning Prefecture. A house, once a tea-warehouse, was obtained at a low rental, because it was said to be devil-possessed, dispensary work was set on foot, and several patients began to attend Sunday services. The county of Chungan, which contains 924 square miles, lies on the border of the Kiangsi Province, and the city of that name enjoys the distinction of being the only one of the seven hsien cities in the Kienning Prefecture which has allowed a preaching-hall to be opened in it without any riot. This may have been due to the fact that, situated in the Bohea hills, it is a great centre of the tea industry, and the riches of the people have come through their trade with foreigners. It is as a stepping-stone to Chungan, where at present no site for a mission-house can be obtained, that Singtsun has been occupied.†

Although, according to the general opinion, there was less inclination than in past years to embrace Christianity, several of the missionaries were privileged to admit men and women into the visible Church. In the Kengtao district a man was baptized who used to be the head man in all that concerned idol processions, and on the island of Haitan a woman seventy-three years of age, who has to walk more than a mile over a loose, sandy road to get to church, and often falls down while doing so. Two widows in Foochow, each with one little boy, gave up the charms which they had hung round the children's necks, and became regular in their attendance at services, while at Sungki a Buddhist priest burnt all his idolatrous papers.

Medical work

Most of the mission-hospitals, that in Kienning, perhaps, being an exception, received more patients than in 1909, and in some cases the growth of the medical work in late years has necessitated the provision of more accommodation. A new out-patient department of the Foochow hospital was opened;* a ward was added to the hospital at Sienyu;† a dispensary with accommodation for a few in-patients was erected in Lienkong city and registered 900 visits of out-patients in its first month; and at Hinghwa a gateway and reception room were added to the hospital, towards the expenses of which liberal contributions were made by rich patients living in the city.‡ A new hospital was also in process of erection at Ningteh, where the accommodation is lamentably insufficient.

Patients from the upper classes

The patients in the last named city included several belonging to the upper classes, and at Hinghwa the grandson of the chief military official was received as an in-patient, while the chief official of the district in his illness called in the Chinese doctor of the mission-hospital.§ On many of the sick a deep impression was made by the kindness with which they were treated, and which must stand in strong contrast to the indifference to suffering often shown by the Chinese, as in the case of a woman who broke her leg and was allowed to remain for three weeks, without any steps being taken to alleviate her pain, before she was carried to the Lienkong dispensary.

A message of love

Even the appliances of the hospitals have their message to the Chinese. One day a woman at Doshun took up a new roll of eye bandages which had just been opened, and on hearing that such things were made by people in England, some of whom themselves were in pain, she exclaimed, 'What love they must have in their hearts to work for us, not even having seen us!' Four former patients in the hospital at Kienning were baptized during the year, and three women there showed clear signs of conversion; a woman was received into the visible Church at Kosangche, the fruit of the work at the dispensary; and three workers and two patients at the Futsing hospital were to be baptized at the end of November.‖

another was appointed to Funing; and two others went out as probationer catechists. Theological Classes are conducted also at Hinghwa and Kienning, a graduate being among the men in the latter; and a study class for catechists was held for ten days in the autumn at Kengtao. Five of the Foochow Normal School students received appointments in the Mission as schoolmasters. The preparation of Bible-women takes place at the Stewart Memorial School at Foochow and at the Women's Schools which are held at several stations in the Mission. The first named institution had twenty inmates in the autumn. The stories of some of the members of these schools are sad to a degree. Thus Miss E. S. Goldie, of Foochow, mentions a poor woman whose husband constantly threatened to sell her, and who entered the women's school in order to escape from him. Miss Goldie writes :—

Ill-treatment of women

> While at school she felt safe; when the holidays came she hid herself in a house near the school. At length, having been told that her husband was reforming and attending church and had sent for her, she was induced to return home. Not long afterwards, when her husband was ill-treating her little girl, she stretched out her hands to save the child, whereupon the man, becoming very angry at her interference, dashed the child on the floor, and the babe was killed before the mother's eyes. Is it any wonder that we hear of women who have such brutal husbands taking opium to end their lives of terror and misery ?

The missionaries at Lienkong had an anxious time in connexion with the women's school in that city. Miss M. Searle narrates the circumstances as follows :—

Threatened riot

> Suddenly, without any warning, we found ourselves face to face with serious trouble, which threatened for a few hours to culminate in a riot. It was caused by the enemy spreading dreadful reports as to what was going on in the school, together with a story that a woman had hanged herself the night before, that a coffin was seen being brought into the compound at early dawn, and that we had given her family $800 to hush the matter up. Hundreds flocked out from the city to try and get into the compound, and we had a very uncomfortable and anxious morning, as we did not know what minute the mob would break all bounds and burst in. It was simply marvellous how an 'Overruling Hand' restrained them. Both our servant and the women in the school behaved splendidly, for it was an anxious time for them all, and I thought it was wonderful that no one suggested leaving and going to the shelter of their own homes. It was also a matter to be thankful for that the reform party were largely on our side, and helped very much by addressing large crowds, denying the reports, and exhorting them to disperse. Eventually we had to appeal to the mandarin to put up notices denying the reports and threatening any who dared to further circulate them; also he sent out 'runners' to scatter the mob, and by evening all was perfectly quiet.

A Normal Class for women has lately been set on foot in Foochow City and now has nine members.

Secondary schools

The teaching in most of the secondary schools in the Mission is of a nature calculated to enable the pupils in after years to become school teachers and Church agents. Several boys passed from the High School at Foochow into the divinity school, and three of the lads belonging to the Boarding-school at Sienyu joined the theological class at Hinghwa, while several former pupils at the Kienning school took up work as schoolmasters. Some of the elder lads still in the latter institution engage in evangelistic work, and a good tone is said to pervade the school. Fifteen of the children attending the Girls' Boarding-school at Foochow* were baptized during the year, and ten were confirmed. In former days early marriages were the custom for the girls, and it was difficult to retain any in the school up to the age of eighteen, but now nearly one-quarter of the 230 girls are eighteen or older. Moreover, about three-fourths of the girls are unbetrothed, in striking contrast to a decade ago when almost all the pupils had been betrothed in infancy. The girls both at the Foochow boarding-school and at the similar institution at Kengtao denied themselves food in order that they might contribute to work among the Jews. One of the senior girls at Ningteh entered the hospital for training.

Besides the secondary schools there are a number of Primary Schools in the Mission, fewer than in previous years but of better quality, and a good many of them with teachers drawn from the normal schools or boarding-schools. At Futsing a marvellous change was evident in most of the pupils in a new school which was opened during the year, and at Foochow three girls declared their desire to become Christians, and one of them, formerly devoted to idol-worship, entirely abandoned it. A day-school for little boys belonging to literary families, under the charge of Miss Bushell, has lately been set on foot in Foochow.

Primary schools

Writing in January, 1911, Bishop Price refers to the fact that in each of the three years since 1906 (the statistics for 1910 were not available when he wrote) a decrease in the number of communicants, of baptized Christians and of catechumens had been recorded. The number of communicants had fallen from 5,234 to 4,723; of baptized Christians from 12,020 to 10,469, notwithstanding that 2,299 persons were baptized in the three years; and of catechumens from 1,674 to 1,139; and the only halt in the decline had been in the number of catechumens, which increased by twenty-four in 1908, only to fall by 359 in the following year. Bishop Price attributes the decrease in part to the exercise of greater care in keeping the registers, and in part to the falling away of persons who had joined the Church from mistaken motives, especially that of getting help in lawsuits. The annual letters of the missionaries do not afford much ground for expecting that the statistics for the year under review will show any arrest in the falling off. One speaks of a 'lack of spiritual vitality in the Church'; another of a desire to be rich which chokes the seed and hinders fruitfulness among the converts; a third says that the spiritual life of the Church seems to be at a low ebb; and several workers have to record serious cases of backsliding. It must be remembered, however, that the converts suffer under many disabilities. There is the lack of the means of grace which has already been referred to. There are village fights which sometimes prevent the Christians from being present at services. There are the opposition and, in some cases, persecution which they have to face. At one place in the Hinghwa district the leading Christian was killed because of a difficulty about water during a drought which prevailed, and his death made many of the adherents afraid to attend services. The picture, however, has its bright side. The contributions of the people have increased, and in the Hinghwa district they support about twenty catechists, and only one evangelist is paid by the C.M.S.; several backsliders were reclaimed; many of the Christians in the Kienning district were 'drawn closer to their Lord and strengthened' by some special services which were conducted; and the Rev. S. J. Nightingale, of Sienyu, says that the Church there is much 'stronger in true strength' than ten years ago, and that 'there is a greater desire for reality rather than for dauleh, a Chinese expression which literally means "hot and bustling," but which rather corresponds to our English word "the crowd."' Cordial testimony is borne to the character of some of the converts. The Rev. H. S. Phillips reports that the ex-fortune-teller whose baptism was recorded in the Annual Report for 1905–6* conducts regular services in Mandarin in a chapel specially rented for the purpose, and that several persons have been admitted to the catechumenate as a result of his work. A woman at Ningteh remarked on the improvement in her husband's life since he embraced Christianity, saying, 'What other power could have changed him from being a gambler, opium-smoker and quarrelsome into the kind, good, patient man he now is?' And concerning the catechist at Doshun and his wife Miss E. E. Merchant writes:—

A greater desire for reality

'What other power could have changed him?'

> It has made my heart rejoice to see the power of God in Sing San's life—the quiet, earnest sincerity in the home, the continual, fervent prayers on behalf of his little flock. He watches them, visits, exhorts and prays with them. In the time of trial he is there, and by prayer and loving sympathy endeavours to keep them from falling. Then in the dispensary, he earnestly speaks and tells where alone can true life and peace be found. He loves to tell of the Gospel story. In the street he goes delivering well-chosen tracts in the houses; when he can get a hearing he preaches, and if possible he accompanies me when I am called out to a patient, for there a crowd will gather, and there is an opportunity to give the Gospel message. His wife is quite young. She was a pupil at the Foochow girls' boarding-school, and is so bright and happy, ever ready to speak to the women as they crowd in, and tell them of Christ's power to save.

A good definition of prayer

Once more, among the thirty-five women confirmed on the island of Haitan was a woman who, when asked to say what prayer was, replied, 'Getting quite close to the Lord.'

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY FUKIEN MISSION

In the past the Dublin University Fukien Mission has been responsible only for the work in the Funing district, but in the year under review it took over that at St. Mark's College, Foochow, while from the beginning of 1911 it has also assumed the charge of the men's normal school and the high school in that city.

St. Mark's College, Foochow, owing to lack of accommodation, has fewer pupils than a year or two ago. About one-fourth of the boys are Christians, including several of the senior students whose influence over their schoolfellows is said to be very good. One boy, the first fruits of the school, was baptized in 1910 and another entered a class for preparation for baptism.* The High School and Boys' Boarding-school at Funing between them had some sixty pupils, but the poverty of the Christians, which makes the money which their sons can earn a serious consideration to them, causes some difficulty in inducing the lads to enter the latter. For the first time in its history some of the elder pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school, to which heathen children are seeking admission in increasing members, passed out to take up higher grade work in village schools. As in other parts of the Mission the day-schools have diminished in number, but their efficiency under former high school boys has improved. When the villages in which the schools are situated are visited by the missionaries the children gladly lead them to their homes, in many of which the Gospel is willingly listened to. Educational work Boys' schools Girls' Boarding-school

The people of Funing showed greater trust in the skill of the European doctors, and a keener desire to learn about Christianity, and several former patients joined the women's school. A small building was erected for maternity cases. The Rev. Dr. S. Synge was the recipient of a large lacquered board bearing an inscription in gold letters as an expression of the county mandarin's gratitude for his kindness in healing several subordinates who had been seriously wounded: and the mandarin also showed his appreciation of the hospital by applying for treatment both for himself and for his family when they were ill. † Medical work

New work was set on foot at a place called Maiong, six miles from Funing, and one or two inquirers were gathered together at Langa through the earnestness of a Christian living there, while at another place, the name of which is not given, a women's vegetarian hall was offered as a Christian school, which those connected Evangelistic work with the hall said they would join. But although the people are ready enough to listen to the preachers, and even to buy Scripture portions and Christian books, it is said that everywhere in the district it is hard to lead them to feel their spiritual need; 'they admire without accepting the precious Gospel gift.'

Pastoral work

At one of the out-stations the catechist married a heathen woman and had to be dismissed, and in general the work was hampered by the lack of suitable Chinese agents. Some of the private Christians, however, showed a good deal of zeal. At Lungtan, the lives of the converts, who have a native doctor as their leader, gives much cause for thankfulness; the change in her daughter-in-law led to the acceptance of the Gospel by an old vegetarian lady in the Fuang district who had long resisted it; and in the town of Sangsua the patient and persistent witness of an aged Christian woman induced several people to abandon their old faiths and bad customs.

MID CHINA MISSION *

THE PAST HISTORY

China, north of lat. 28°, became the sphere of a separate episcopal jurisdiction, 'North China,' in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first Bishop. In 1880, after his death, it was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the latter see; he retired in 1907, and was succeeded in the following year by Dr. H. J. Molony. The Protestant Episcopal Church of America appointed a missionary Bishop to China in 1844, who reached Shanghai with a band of missionaries in the following year. In 1901 the same Church appointed a Bishop of Hankow. In 1908, by an agreement with the American Bishops, the province of Chekiang was recognized as Dr. Molony's sphere of episcopal jurisdiction, and his title was changed to 'Bishop in Chekiang.' The first C.M.S. missionaries reached China in 1844, and Shanghai was occupied in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hangchow, 1865; Shaohing, 1870; Taichow and Chuki, 1892. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chuki district from Hangchow, and again in 1886 into the district of Taichow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian stedfastness and zeal.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Excepting at Shanghai, in the province of Kiangsu, the commercial metropolis of China, where the Society has an Anglo-Chinese school for non-Christian boys and several day-schools, and also maintains general evangelistic work and work among women and for the blind, the operations of the Mission are carried on in the province of Chekiang. Ningpo, one of the first five ports in China to be thrown open to foreign trade, and Hangchow, another treaty port, are the chief stations, the others being Taichow, to the south, and Shaohing and Chuki, east and south-east respectively of Hangchow.

The more important educational institutions are Trinity College, Ningpo, with its theological and preparandi classes and normal school, a women's school, also at Ningpo, a Bible-women's class at Taichow, an Anglo-Chinese school at Shaohing, the Mary Vaughan High School for girls at Hangchow, and boarding-schools for boys and for girls at Ningpo, Taichow, Hangchow and Chuki. The great majority of the pupils in these institutions are the children of Christians.

Medical work is represented by hospitals at Hangchow, Taichow and Ningpo, the two first named having classes for students. In connexion with the Hangchow hospital there are a lepers' home, maternity home, etc. The pastoral care of the Native Christians is mainly in the hands of twenty-two Chinese clergymen, who, in co-operation with the foreign missionaries (Bishops Molony and Moule, eighteen other clergymen, eight doctors, four other laymen, twenty-one missionaries' wives and twenty-seven other women missionaries, including four nurses) and 130 Chinese Christian lay agents, also engage in evangelistic work. The Chinese Church Missionary Society has an ordained missionary and two lay evangelists in the Hangchow district.

Archdeacon A. E. Moule

ARCHDEACON and Mrs. A. E. Moule, after half a century of devoted and self-sacrificing work in this Mission, have taken up parochial work at home. In 1908 the former was inducted to the rectory of

* In the names of provinces, towns, etc., in China the spelling of the Imperial Post Office is followed. Chekiang is written for Cheh-Kiang, Chuki for Chu-ki, Kiangsu for Kiang-Su, Shaohing for Shaou-hing, Taichow for T'ai-chow, and Tzeki for Z-ky-i.

Burwarton, near Bridgnorth, in Shropshire, having accepted the living on the condition that the Bishop of Hereford would sanction his temporary absence from the parish so that he might return to China for a time and give the help of his long experience to Bishop Molony, especially in the task of Church organization and in developing evangelistic work. Archdeacon Moule went out in 1909 with Mrs. Moule, and at the end of 1910 once more returned home. But they both ask the Committee to bear in mind their willingness to go out again if circumstances of peculiar strain or difficulty should arise in which their influence and help may be of service. The Committee, in recognition of his conspicuous services, have appointed Archdeacon Moule a Vice-President of the Society —the highest honour which it is in their power to confer. Before leaving China Archdeacon and Mrs. Moule were the recipients of several tokens of the affection and esteem in which they are held by those among whom they have laboured so long. Two dark purple scrolls which were presented to them bore the inscriptions in Classical Chinese: 'He came to the East carrying the Doctrine, and for fifty years has endured hardships on behalf of the saints in China'; 'We escort him on his return to the West and for hundreds of generations the people of Chekiang will speak of his virtues and celebrate his labours.' *

Death of Rev. Wong Yiu-Kwong

Reinforcements

The recruits assigned to Mid China have been Mr. Charles Frederick Strange, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., of the New Zealand Association, who from 1899–1902 worked in India under the Poona Village Mission, and Mrs. Strange; and Miss Geraldine Charlotte Madden, a trained nurse, who received her training under the Society at The Willows. Miss Madden is a first cousin of Mrs. Gurney, who, as Miss M. P. V. Gregg, formerly worked in the Japan Mission. Mr. H. B. Morgan and Mrs. E. A. Walker, who were in local connexion at Ningpo, have resigned.

Appointment of two Archdeacons

Bishop Molony has appointed the Rev. W. S. Moule and the Rev. Sing Tsae-Seng‡ Archdeacons in Chekiang. They have been assigned jurisdiction over the same area so that the Bishop may get a true Chinese as well as an English version of diocesan affairs.

Manifestation of Christian unity

The desire for Christian unity has lately been manifested in Mid China in two different ways. First, by an arrangement with the American Presbyterian Mission as to its sphere and that of the C.M.S. in the Chuki district, which has involved the handing over of two chapels by the C.M.S. and of one by the Presbyterians; and second, by joining with other societies in united meetings.

‡ See Gl., April, 1911, p. 51, for an account of Archdeacon Sing's career.

A union Bible school was held at Shaohing in December, 1909, which was attended by Christians connected with the C.M.S., the China Inland Mission and the American Baptist Mission; and at Lukiao, in the Taichow district, three meetings took place in the following summer, in which C.M.S. and China Inland Mission workers of the district, Chinese and foreign, took part.

Pastoral work

Besides these special united gatherings for the agents of the Missions named, others were held regularly at intervals of two months for the C.M.S. catechists and colporteurs in the Taichow district, and others, again, every month for those belonging to the Chuki district; while at Shaohing a series of services for the deepening of the spiritual life was conducted in the autumn and resulted in many being drawn closer to God. Miss M. E. Gillard mentions the case of one woman in particular, and writes :—

Services for the deepening of the spiritual life

A backslider reclaimed

She had been a backslider for more than two years, and we almost feared she had given up Christianity for ever. She was led to come and see us just a few days before the mission commenced. We forthwith invited her to stay with us during the time, but she said she could not possibly leave her home for so long. She promised, however, to come on the Sunday, and she faithfully kept her word. Her home is in the country, thirty li (ten miles) away, and, being anxious to be in time, and fearing to wait until daylight to make the start (she had no timepiece to guide her), she got up in the middle of the night and set off, and had walked nearly half the way by the aid of a lantern before dawn appeared. Consequently she reached the church hours before any one else. God's Holy Spirit that day mightily convicted her of her sin of backsliding, and brought her to a state of true repentance. The tears streamed down her face as she told us how wicked she had been, and it seemed so hard for her really to believe that God could forgive such grievous sins as hers. She stayed with us until Tuesday morning, attending all the meetings in the meantime, and then went away rejoicing and fully determined, in God's strength, to lead a new life.

The witness of individual Christians

At Hangchow the Christian women showed more eagerness than before to win others; at Shanghai the Rev. Dzing Kyi-Doh organized evangelistic bands among his flock;* and here and there individual Christians faithfully bore their witness for Christ, as in a village in northern Taichow, where an old man was found to have put up a cross in the place previously occupied by his kitchen god. At several of the stations, however, there is great need of revival. For example, the Rev. E. Thompson writes as follows concerning the Christians at Taichow :—

The air is full of the Parliament scheme and the local government scheme, the latter of which especially is to be the panacea for all the woes of an inefficient way of carrying out the system of government. Probably it will not be, and the mandarin will stay with us yet, but the heads of Christians as well as Heathen are turned with it. It is evinced in coldness towards the Church, and especially in the keeping of the Sabbath. As one examines the registers of chapel after chapel and hears reports from the pastors, one is almost thankful to note even a monthly attendance. Constant, unremitted visitation and persuasion avail but little, the faith of men seems growing dim; they come, when they come, to oblige the clergyman, and the day is no longer a day given to God, but a couple of hours are extracted, and that grudgingly, from a working day.*

* Gaz., March, 1911, p. 87. The Rev. C. J. F. Symons, the secretary of the Mission, now acts as honorary curate to Mr. Dzing in the church where, at one time, the former himself was for some years the pastor.

Faith growing dim

There are several hindrances to the evangelistic work. At Taichow the weapon of ridicule, a most potent weapon against the Chinese, is used by the Evil One with deadly effect, while the size of the district brings it to pass that the efforts of the missionaries are, to quote Miss A. O. Stott's words, 'far too sporadic to tell in the face of the huge, unbroken area of heathen darkness'; the active opposition of non-Christians, leading a father to beat his boy if he attends services, and the extreme poverty of the people, which makes it necessary for them to work so long and late that they have little time to devote to being taught, are other obstacles. At Chuki, also, the missionaries are faced with overwhelming work, for the district is about sixty-three miles from north to south and forty-seven from east to west. At one time it looked as though there might be serious trouble in that part of the Mission, since floods destroyed the crops on the low-lying lands, and for the second year in succession food was scarce and a rice riot appeared to be within the range of possibility. Happily the fears which were felt were not justified by events, but it was deemed desirable for the women missionaries to leave for their summer holiday rather earlier than usual, and their absence, of course, affected the work adversely. Throughout the Mission as a whole the opportunities for preaching the Gospel were good. In the Hangchow River district the use of a public steam launch for itinerations instead of a private hired boat afforded facilities for reaching students, travelling merchants, shopkeepers, etc., from most of the provinces of China; and these people, as well as those in the villages and towns which were visited there and elsewhere in the course of itinerations from the various mission-stations, listened attentively to what was said by the missionaries and readily accepted gospels and tracts. At the suggestion of the agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Rev. Yu Hyien-Ding undertook to distribute New Testaments among the Buddhist and Taouist religious houses in the neighbourhood of Hangchow. He visited more than 200 monasteries and convents. In most of them the occupants listened with civility and even keen interest to the Gospel message, and some seemed to find in it that for which they had previously been seeking in vain; but to some places he was absolutely refused an entrance, and from one or two he was violently ejected with curses.†

Another comparatively new branch of work at Hangchow, that among students, developed during the year. Classes for the study of the New Testament and of English were held for them, and also social gatherings and magic-lantern meetings, while at the Chinese New Year a 'winter school,' during which English lessons on such subjects as repentance, faith, salvation, etc., were given, was conducted and was well attended.* Among those who received baptism in 1910 were twelve adults at Chuki, including a family of four persons, † and five adults at Shaohing. There were thirty inquirers in the Chuki district; one was the wife of a tailor, who feared that her husband on his return home would forbid her to attend services, but found that he himself partly believed in Christianity; another was a woman who when oppressed by her sisters-in-law had prayed to the God of Heaven to help her in her misery—her prayer was answered, and when a Christian preaching-place was opened in her village, and she heard that it was for the worship of the true God in Heaven, she felt that she must go and worship Him to Whom she had cried in her ignorance.

Forty new boys, bringing the total number up to ninety-one, were admitted to Trinity College, Ningpo, where a new building for the theological class and practising schools was being erected. There are two Anglo-Chinese Schools in the Mission. The number of names on the roll of that at Shanghai rose to 130, the highest figure in its record, and a former pupil was received into the catechumenate; and at the Shaohing school, which has sons of many of the pastors and catechists among its pupils, there was evidence of a real spiritual life in many. In the summer the independence which characterizes the students and schoolboys in China was shown by eight of the boys leaving in a body because they were dissatisfied with something in connexion with their Y.M.C.A., but two of them were afterwards readmitted on their making confession of their fault before the whole school.‡ In order to relieve Trinity College of a certain amount of preparatory work, it has been decided to have a 'higher elementary' boys' school at each station, and the Boys' Boarding-school at Taichow has accordingly been raised to that grade. Eight of the twelve lads in residence passed the college entrance examination.

The training of Bible-women is carried on in the Women's School at Ningpo, where two women were under preparation, and in a Training Class at Taichow, one member of which went out to take up work in the district.§ Some trouble was experienced with the girls of the Mary Vaughan School at Hangchow, where many of the children are the daughters of officials, but happily it passed over, and the leader in it was led by a passage in one of the Rev. James Vaughan's Children's Sermons which was translated at evening prayers to realize her sinfulness and seek for pardon. Miss L. H. Barnes wrote in December of this girl and of some of the other children as follows :—

Mission school-girls present Bibles to their relatives

> The girl who was under deep conviction is now a bright, earnest Christian, and she has already had the joy of helping more than one to believe in and accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour. After weeks of prayer she has now received her father's permission to be a Christian and be baptized, and three weeks ago she received her catechumen's card. She long ago decided, if her father were willing for her to be baptized, that she would choose the name of 'Mary.' This speaks for itself. Her first real work among the girls was to be a 'peacemaker.' The week after she received her catechumen's card, God sent Pastor Ting from Shantung to the Hangchow College (Presbyterian). I invited him here, and he gave two most searching and helpful addresses. All the girls who were at school on the Sunday begged me to take them to hear him, which I did; and that evening when taking prayers it seemed right to take the message, 'Choose you this day whom ye will serve.' Several, I believe, really decided to choose Christ. Nearly all our girls are now praying definitely for their parents, brothers and sisters, and only yesterday I sold twelve expensive Bibles in Classical Chinese, which six girls (including the one of whom I have written) have bought to give their parents and brothers, for whom they are daily praying.

Girls' boarding-schools

The two matrons of the school also asked for baptism, and were admitted into the catechumenate. At each of the chief stations, with the exception of Shanghai and Shaohing, there is a Girls' Boarding-school; at Chuki there are two, a new one having been opened in 1910, and there is one also at Wangdza in the Hangchow River district. Two of the girls attending the day-school at Haopo, in the Shaohing district, received baptism.

Medical work

There was some falling off in the number of patients at Hangchow owing in part to the existence of an anti-foreign feeling among the educated classes, and in part to a steady diminution in the number of those seeking admission in order to obtain help in breaking off the opium habit. At Ningpo, too, towards the close of the year the anti-plague measures adopted by the health authorities in Shanghai aroused the suspicions of the Chinese, and the medical work diminished by one-half. Many of those who applied for treatment remained apparently unaffected by the Gospel message, but many also seemed to be impressed by it, and even to accept Christ as their Saviour. One patient was baptized in the men's hospital at Hangchow; another would have been had not death carried him off a few days before that fixed for the service; and there were several promising inquirers. Among the women patients, too, the year was one of reaping. An old lady, who had learnt in the hospital to put her trust in the Saviour instead of in Vegetarianism, was baptized at her home; two young women, who died shortly afterwards, were also baptized; and four of the hospital amahs were under preparation for baptism. In the Ningpo hospital

A year of reaping

one woman gave up all her 'papers of merit,' saying, 'I have heard of Jesus now, and I trust Him and do not want these things'; another showed much interest in the Gospel and joined the women's school; and a third was admitted into the visible Church.*

Literary work

Bishop G. E. Moule continued his work of rendering the Prayer-book into Classical Chinese. Archdeacon A. E. Moule turned into Chinese the Bishop of Durham's Jesus and the Resurrection, and his own treatise on the evidences of Christianity, entitled The Reason of the Hope that is in us. Archdeacon W. S. Moule prepared for college use commentaries and expositions on the Law of Sacrifice and on one of the Epistles. And Mr. A. J. H. Moule translated the following books into Chinese: Heart Purity, Thoughts on Christian Sanctity, and Daniel, or the Secret of Continuance, all by the Bishop of Durham; Christianity is Christ, and The Claims of Christianity, by the Rev. Dr. Griffith Thomas; I Believe, by the Dean of Manchester; Our Lord and His Bible, by Prebendary H. E. Fox; A Buried City and its Witness, by the Rev. Harrington Lees; and several other books, a full list of which is given in Appendix C to this Report.

WESTERN CHINA MISSION *

THE PAST HISTORY

The province of Szechwan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. The cities of Chungpa, Anhsien, Sintu, Mienchuh and Mienchow received resident missionaries in 1894; Shihchuan in 1895; Chungkiang and Tehyang in 1903; Mowchow in 1906. In 1895 the Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on Oct. 18 in that year.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The district which constitutes the sphere of the C.M.S. may be described as an oblong, some 150 miles long and 80 miles broad, covering an area of about 10,000 square miles.

Both Mienchow and Chungpa are on the Fu River, while Mowchow is on the Min River, another tributary of the Yangtse, farther west. The remaining stations lie in the intervening area. Much territory is waiting to be occupied, especially in the north and west of this district.

The work is still for the most part directly evangelistic, and is carried on by means of meetings in preaching-rooms, lantern lectures, receiving the people in guest-halls and visiting them in their homes, bookshops and colportage.

The majority of the schools are junior primary day-schools. There are, however, a diocesan training college at Paoning, in which the C.M.S. co-operates with the China Inland Mission, and a women's school and boarding-schools for boys and girls at Mienchow.

The work of the Mission is in the hands of Bishop Cassels, sixteen other clergymen, seven laymen, sixteen missionaries' wives and sixteen other women missionaries. One of the above is a doctor and one a nurse. With these are associated fifty Chinese Christian lay agents.

Reinforcements

THE Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Alexander Greenhow Lee, B.A., Liverpool University, and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of St. Chrysostom's, Everton, and Mrs. Lee (a sister of Mrs. W. E. Reeve of the Japan Mission); and Miss Victoria Caroline Mannett, of the Victoria Association (a cousin of the Rev. A. F. Ealand of the Bengal Mission). Miss Clara Emma Player, a trained nurse, has been accepted on special agreement for one year for work in Western China, and takes the place of Miss A. J. Pownall, whose term of service has expired. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Mrs. A. Lawrence.

Development of diocesan organization

A good deal of progress has been made of late in the organization of the Church in Western China. The diocese has been divided into parishes, each with its own vestry: groups of parishes have been formed into districts, each with its own council; and a diocesan council, elected by the district councils, has been established, which

* In accordance with the spelling of the Chinese Post Office the following have been adopted as the names of the stations: Anhsien for Ngan-hsien; Chungkiang for Chong-kiang; Chungpa for Chong-pa; Mienchow for Miencheo; Mienchuh for Mien-chuh; Mowchow for Mao-cheo; Shihchuan for Shih-ts'uen; Sintu for Sin-tu, and Tehyang for Teh-yang. The name of the province hitherto known in C.M.S. Reports as Si-Chuan is now spelt Szechwan.

advises and assists Bishop Cassels in the administration of the diocese, and especially in the management of the Diocesan Sustentation Fund.

'Their God protected them'

The Diocesan Theological College, at Paoning, of which the Rev. H. H. Taylor, one of the C.M.S. missionaries, is vice-principal, has some thirteen students, six sent by the C.M.S. and the remainder by the China Inland Mission, and in addition a couple of catechists connected with the latter Mission were in residence for a time, reading for ordination. Another C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. R. Stewart, is on the staff of the Anglican Hostel at Chengtu, which has been founded with the object of getting into touch with the students connected with Chinese colleges. Turning to the exclusively C.M.S. institutions, the Women's School at Mienchow had eight members, all of whom gave hope of future usefulness as Bible-women. The annual nine days' school for those already at work in that capacity was attented by twenty-four women, and it was apparent that since the previous school was held many of them had made great progress both in their knowledge of the Bible and also in their grasp of spiritual truths. Three of the sixteen lads belonging to the Boys' Boarding-school at the station named had to be expelled for insubordination, a step fraught with good consequences for their schoolfellows. The Girls' Boarding-school had twice as many pupils as that for boys, and others had to be refused admission pending the completion of the buildings in course of erection. Many of the children profited by some special services which were held at the station, and two of them were baptized at Christmas. In response to the request of some Chinese ladies and gentlemen a school for their daughters was opened at Chungkiang, which bids fair to be popular. The children pay fees, which will cover all expenses when the school is full. The other primary schools are still small, but some of them had a rather better attendance than in 1909, and at Mowchow the teacher and one of the elder boys were admitted to the catechumenate, and six other lads asked to be enrolled as hearers. At Shihchuan an incident occurred which might have had untoward consequences. The roof of the guest-hall, which was in temporary use as a boys' school, fell in while the children were assembled; many of the smaller boys were hurt and three were buried under the débris. They were soon rescued, and since happily none of them were seriously injured they speedily recovered. It was feared that the disaster would lead to the closing of the school, but all the pupils, with the exception of one small boy, who suffered only from fright, returned; and the Chinese, instead of blaming the missionaries, as might have been anticipated, seemed to recognize God's hand in the wonderful escape of the children from serious injury, saying, 'Whoever saw such a lot of stuff fall on the top of people and yet not kill them? Their God protected them.'

Medical work

The medical work in the Mission was still confined entirely to dispensaries, which were held at several of the stations, in some cases with but a small attendance, but a regular medical mission is to be established at Mienchuh* as soon as Dr. J. H. Lechler has passed his language examination. At that station nearly 4,000 visits of out-patients were recorded, some hundreds of the people hailing from a market town about fifteen Chinese miles distant. One of the patients at Chungpa was enrolled as an inquirer, and at Tehyang an old man, first influenced through the medical work, was led on step by step until he was able to say, 'I once worshipped "Heaven," but now I know there is One greater, the Supreme Ruler.'

Evangelistic work

The year under review happily was free from any Boxer troubles such as those which in 1909 hindered the work of the Mission. There was, however, one instance in which trouble appeared possible, for early in the year tribesmen (aborigines intermarried with Chinese), dissatisfied at the increased taxation to which they were subjected, assembled at Mowchow to the number of 1,000 to seek redress from the local mandarin. The authorities, afraid that the malcontents might attack the missionaries, sent soldiers to guard them, but the Rev. W. Kitley declined their protection, preferring to show confidence in the tribesmen. He had fires lighted for them and tea provided in the mission-courtyard, and was rewarded by seeing 300 of them at a Sunday service, at the close of which they quietly dispersed, each receiving a gospel and a tract as he left. On many other occasions the missionaries enjoyed abundant opportunities for delivering their message. At the times of heathen festivals a number of women were reached by the work in guest-halls at Chungkiang and Anhsien; evangelistic meetings, both in the preaching-halls and in the open air, were well attended at many centres, though at Shihchuan the audiences were rather smaller than in the previous year; and in the course of itinerations large crowds of people often assembled to listen to the Gospel. This was especially the case at some of the out-stations. Thus at Hopachang the courtyard of the largest temple was thronged by people, packed closely together, who for two hours listened to the story of redeeming love, illustrated by lantern slides. One or two examples of the openings which presented themselves may be given. Lungan, the chief city in the Chungpa district, was visited by Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Whiteside, who spent a fortnight there at the time of the annual festival of the city god. The former writes:—

Preaching in a temple courtyard

> Every day we had crowds of people at the house we rented and in the city temple itself to listen to the preaching of the Word. A fair number of Scripture portions, tracts, etc., were sold and distributed, and as most of the people came from the hills far and near for the festival, it is hoped they carried the message with them—if not in their hearts at least by the tracts and literature they received. At the close of our time there we received the names of some thirty people who wished to join the Church. They have since rented a house on the street for themselves, where they now meet regularly for prayer; and I have arranged for an evangelist to visit them and occasionally to teach them, but as he already has his hands full he cannot go very often. The officials and gentry are all most friendly, and offered to help in securing premises if only we would stay on or come back and open up work there. Alas! in spite of the urgency of the request and the necessity of opening work in the city, I had to put them off. I have since paid another visit, and there are now some fifty or sixty men enrolled as hearers, and they have quite a good preaching-hall on the main street of the city.

A promising opening

Another case, remarkable not so much for the desire of the people to hear as for the gradual removing of opposition, is that of Lokiang, a city thirty miles from Mienchow on the road to Tehyang. About twenty years ago the Roman Catholics bought some premises in the town but they were compelled to retire to another centre ten miles distant. Since then many endeavours had been made by the C.M.S. workers to open a mission-hall in the city, but a 'sullen and effective' opposition was maintained. At the end of 1909 a Mr. Lui, a tradesman of the place, was baptized. He gathered round him some twenty or thirty men, whom he taught almost daily, and owing largely to the good character which he bears, a shop to serve as a preaching-hall was hired in 1910.

A tradesman's good work

Requests for a teacher were received from several places, notably Hsiushuiho, a large market town eighteen miles from Anhsien, where a catechist was sent once a week in response and soon gathered a class of twenty inquirers, and a place (not named) in the Chungpa district, where a band of forty men asked Mr. Whiteside to take over for mission purposes a house formerly used for the preaching of the Sacred Edict. Once more, in the summer Mr. Kitley itinerated among the Mantsi tribes who occupy almost exclusively a tract of mountainous country, 120 miles long and 100 broad, with the result that the attitude of some of the people was changed from one of doubt and suspicion to one of friendliness, and that they found their way to the mission-house in greater numbers than before when they visited Mowchow. Over against these cheering events must be placed one or two of a different character. At Liyamiao, one of the Chungpa out-stations, a good deal of opposition was shown by the wealthier inhabitants; and it appears that at several places where there is no active antagonism much indifference is shown, while at others, in spite of a readiness to listen to the Gospel, there is little manifestation of any desire to accept it. From Anhsien the report is, 'There is a scare abroad which hinders the people from freely coming to classes and thus joining our ranks'; from Mienchow, 'We seem to be entering upon a phase of less inquiry and greater indifference on the part of the people generally'; from Chungpa, 'We have not added many to our list of women hearers';

from Mowchow, 'We have been much disappointed at the smallness of growth in the Church'; from Tehyang, 'The novelty is wearing off'; while concerning Chungkiang Mr. P. J. Turner writes:—

> Every day fresh people are hearing the Gospel, but the ground is very hard and the Gospel plough seems not to have ploughed very deep, while the seed sown seems only too often to be choked by the thorns and thistles of self-interest, false religious ignorance and indifference, and much is caught away. If the message promised material benefits it would attract many! The leisured and educated are too exalted by pride to let it be thought they are influenced by a foreign religion, though quite willing in many cases to acknowledge that they are followers of their great teachers in name only and fall short of their moral standards. The business people are so absorbed in their calling, and the working-classes so occupied in the struggle for existence, that until the Holy Spirit awakens them to spiritual things, they are content to hear as if listening to a story that is very pleasant but not for themselves.

Baptisms

Adult baptisms took place at six of the nine stations, but the total number—forty-eight—was smaller than in 1909. Only one of those admitted into the visible Church calls for special mention, viz., Mrs. Heo, baptized at Hopachang, in the Anhsien district, the schoolmaster's wife who was roughly handled by the Boxers in 1909.* By her side at the service stood her little child, with two scars on its face showing where attempts had been made to cut out its eyes. A certain number of the inquirers fell away, but at Mowchow the adherents remained steadfast in spite of threatening placards which were posted up, and throughout the Mission a number of persons were admitted to the catechumenate or enrolled as hearers. Thus at Mienchuh, where no adult baptisms took place, more than twenty persons became catechumens; among them were a blind woman, won by the influence of her son, and another woman, attracted to Christianity by what she heard at the mission-hall; while at that same station were several hearers, i.e. people in preparation for the catechumenate, one of them a very poor woman who, though she could not afford to buy rice for her own consumption, brought a basin of it for presentation at the harvest thanksgiving service. The story of some hearers at Chungkiang may be given as showing how great is the opposition which sometimes has to be faced by those who propose to confess Christ openly. Miss C. Carleton says:—

Inquirers

A generous gift

> A young woman of the name of Lu, a country-woman, has suffered much persecution from her family and the people of her clan. She has witnessed so brightly for Christ and has led such a changed life this past year that she has been the means of her mother-in-law and an old aunt putting themselves under instruction. Two months ago two more aunts began to come as well, but these two soon gave up when they found it meant persecution. One fairly sufficient proof of young Mrs. Lu's reality was shown a few months ago, when she refused a fairly good position as needlewoman in one of the better-class families because they would not give her permission to come to Sunday services. She is poor, and this meant much. Her people are very bitter against her and they say if it had not been for her the other women would not have come here, which is quite true. They have lately turned her out of her home, and say they do not wish to own her as a member of their family unless she gives up Christianity. Her husband is a domestic servant in one of the big Chungkiang families. The persecution has been going on for some months now; it is the men who object so much to the women coming here; they are very anti-foreign. Young Mrs. Lu's faith has been bright and steadfast, in spite of all the opposition. Her aunt, an old lady of seventy-two years of age, first came in June; she took in the Gospel as simply and believingly as a little child. She has come to Sunday services and classes in spite of the opposition of her family; she started at 6 A.M. one Sunday so as to get off before the others saw her. Her husband, who was friendly at first, will not allow her to come now.

Bright faith in spite of persecution

Another of the new hearers was a vegetarian woman at Shihchuan, nearly seventy years of age, who broke her vow and became very zealous in advocating Christianity. She, in her turn, showed much determination in overcoming difficulties, though they were of a different character from those experienced by the adherents at Chungkiang. The old woman in question lives outside the walls of Shihchuan, and during the wet weather which prevailed in 1910 was sometimes unable to get into the city, since, according to Chinese custom, the gate was closed to keep out the too-abundant rain. Mrs. Lu, however, was not daunted, and one Sunday morning she walked in to the class which was being held. She had persuaded some men who were using ladders on the wall to help her climb up the outside and then down into the city, and this notwithstanding that the wall was twelve feet high, and that she had tiny bound feet and was unable to walk without the aid of a stick! 'I knew it was God's day, and I must come,' she said.

A dauntless old woman

In connexion with the pastoral work the outstanding events were the revival meetings which were conducted in February, 1910, by Mr. Lutley, of the China Inland Mission, and Mr. Wang, both hailing from the province of Shansi, at Mienchow and Mienchuh, and were attended by men and women from other stations as well. At Mienchuh more than 300 persons from the surrounding districts were boarded and lodged on the mission-premises for a week. Bishop Cassels, referring to these meetings, which were conducted also at several of the C.I.M. centres, says, 'Everywhere the people were broken down in a most marvellous way by the spirit of conviction, and the Chinese, whom we regarded as so stolid and unemotional, gave way to weeping and lamentation for sin such as we have never seen before anywhere. Lives were thrown open before God and the most secret sins were laid bare. Confessions which no amount of torture in a Chinese law-court would have extracted, now flowed from hearts which had been melted by the Spirit of God, even when no address or exhortation had been given.' Writing towards the end of the year the missionaries were able to some extent to gauge the results of the special effort. In some cases there was not that increased earnestness and devotion which had been anticipated, but in others the effects of the work in the hearts of the Christians remained, and their lives witnessed to a real growth in grace. Unhappily there were not a few instances in which the exercise of discipline was called for. At Tehyang the work is much hindered by the conduct of those who have lapsed into Heathenism; at Shihchuan many of the men have ceased to attend the services, even though they reside in the neighbourhood of the station; at Mienchuh the 'lives of some who bear the name of Christian are a grievous hindrance to the true growth of the Church'; and at Mienchow the master of ceremonies at the autumn sacrifice to Confucius, which was conducted on a more elaborate scale than for many years past, was a man who had been baptized when a teacher in a mission-school. There are, however, some bright witnesses for Christ. Several of the Chinese agents of the Mission are highly spoken of, and one old evangelist is mentioned who receives his board and 800 cash a month as his wages, and brought the whole of one month's earnings as his offering when the harvest festival was held.

Bishop Cassels worked at the revision of the Mandarin Prayer-book, and the Rev. W. L. L. Knipe, besides engaging in the same task, translated a number of hymns into that dialect of Chinese.

JAPAN MISSIONS

THE PAST HISTORY

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was practically closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed Empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new Constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this Constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker. In 1899 new treaties came into operation by which the country was thrown completely open to foreigners.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly. Since 1873 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka was occupied in 1873; Tokyo, 1874; Matsuye, 1888; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama, 1891; Hamada, 1893; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896. Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896; Yonago was occupied in 1902; Sakai, 1904; Kure, 1907; Saigo, 1908; and Choshi, 1909. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Kagoshima, 1895; Kokura, 1898. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; Sapporo, 1892; Otaru, 1897; Muroran, 1907; and Asahigawa, 1909.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and his successor, Archbishop Benson, nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated on October 18, 1883; but in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the then Bishop of Exeter. In 1893 the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern islands respectively. Accordingly, in 1894 and 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated—the former Bishop in Kiu-Shiu, and the latter Bishop in Hokkaido; they retired in 1909 and 1908 respectively. In 1909 Dr. A. Lea, a missionary of the Canadian C.M.S., was consecrated Bishop in Kiu-Shiu, and Dr. W. Andrews, a former C.M.S. missionary, Bishop in Hokkaido. In 1894 Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the Main Island into the dioceses of North and South Tokyo, Kyoto and Osaka. Bishop Awdry was appointed to the diocese of Osaka in 1896, and was transferred to South Tokyo on the death of Bishop Bickersteth in 1897, being succeeded at Osaka by Bishop Foss, of the S.P.G., which Society undertook to provide their stipends. Dr. Awdry retired in 1908, and has been succeeded by Dr. Boutflower.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The Society's work in Japan is carried on in three sections. One comprises the stations on the Main Island and the island of Shikoku; another those on the island of Kiu-Shiu; and the third, those in Hokkaido.

I. The chief stations on the Main Island are Osaka, the centre of native trade in southern and western Japan; Fukuyama, to the west; Hiroshima, a large city on the Inland Sea; Kure, a naval port, a few miles distant; Hamada, the chief town of the western province of Iwami; and Matsuye and Yonago to the north-east. Tokushima is on the island of Shikoku, and Saigo on the Oki Islands. All these are in the diocese of Osaka. In the diocese of South Tokyo, Tokyo, the largest city in the Empire and the seat of the Emperor's Government, is occupied, as also are Gifu, Nagoya and Toyohashi, to the west, and Choshi to the east.

The educational institutions include a divinity school, the Momoyama School for boys and the Bishop Poole Memorial School for girls at Osaka, a Bible-women's training home at Nagoya, and a training home and school for the blind at Gifu. There are hostels for Chinese students at Tokyo.

Evangelistic work throughout Japan is prosecuted largely by means of English and other classes. Public meetings of an evangelistic character are regularly held at the Whidborne Hall, Tokyo, the Warren Memorial Hall, Osaka, and at all the stations and out-stations; special services are frequently conducted in, or in connexion with, the various churches; and preaching tours are made in the country districts as opportunity offers.

II. In Kiu-Shiu, Nagasaki, Fukuoka and Kokura, to the north, Kumamoto to the east, and Kagoshima, in the south of the island, are the stations. At Nagasaki there is a hostel for high school girls.

III. In Hokkaido, Hakodate, Sapporo, Otaru and Kushiro are the chief stations, the last named in the east of the island. There is an Ainu girls' home at Sapporo for boarders attending Government schools, and a rest-house for Ainu at Asahigawa.

The staff engaged in the Mission consists of twenty-four European and twenty-three Japanese clergymen, twenty-two missionaries' wives and forty-seven other women missionaries. The Japanese lay teachers and evangelists number 154.

Progress of Christianity in Japan

'WILL Japan become a Christian nation?' In one form or another this question, which was discussed in the Church Missionary Review for July, 1910,* is constantly exercising the minds of missionaries in Japan and of home students of foreign missions. A large number of facts have to be considered in the endeavour to arrive at a conclusion on the subject. On the one hand there are more than 160,000 Christian adherents in the Empire, of whom some 60,000 are Protestant Church members, and this notwithstanding the tremendous prejudice with which Christianity was confronted on its reintroduction into Japan half a century ago. Moreover the people have been widely evangelized. The Rev. H. J. Hamilton states that when travelling he has often been struck with the number of people he met who knew something of Christianity. 'Now it is the man next to one in a tram-car who turns out to be a Christian,' says the General Review of the Central Japan Mission; 'now it is the guard of the train; again, it is the steward on the steamboat or a fellow passenger or perhaps the son or daughter of the host at the inn where one puts up for the night.' It is said, too, that there are many Japanese, not avowedly Christians, who look on the Lord Jesus as their ideal, and yield admiration and even assent to the teaching of the Sermon on the Mount. The influence of Christianity on the people of Japan is apparent in many directions, and the efforts to deal with the problem of student immorality, and possibly the desire that the stigma of commercial unreliability should be removed from their nation, are due in some degree to Christian influence. Not long since the Kokumin, a leading daily paper published in Tokyo, expressed itself as follows:—

The development of Japan largely due to missionaries

> The development of Japan to a first-class Power within the past fifty years is to a great extent attributable to the trouble taken by missionaries who, by either establishing schools or preaching the Gospel of Christ in the churches, have cultivated the minds of the Japanese and enhanced the standard of their morals.

An instance of the appreciation by non-Christians of the good influence of Christianity has lately been afforded in connexion with the work at Hamada. The necessity for retrenchment had suggested the withdrawal of the missionaries from that town, which is small and from its position never likely to become influential; but when the proposal became known a petition that the C.M.S. would continue its work in their midst was signed by the leading men—the mayor, head-masters, doctors, merchants, etc.—who, though they admitted that they could not speak from a Christian standpoint, yet pleaded that the presence of the missionaries among them was an influence for good, both social and moral.* There is encouragement also in the changed attitude of the Buddhists towards Christianity. Until a few years ago it was the custom of the priests to slander Christianity as a bad religion, but now that it has become better known among the educated classes that is hardly possible. The priests are even said to be afraid that their religion will sooner or later be displaced by it. One of them when asked why the authorities of the Central Temple at Kyoto were so active in soliciting subscriptions, replied that the ostensible reason was to obtain funds for the repair of various buildings and for masses for the soul of Kenshin Taishi who died 650 years ago, but that he himself thought the real reason to be that they expected the downfall of Buddhism and were preparing for the evil day by saving money.

Petition against withdrawal of C.M.S. from Hamada

Downfall of Buddhism expected by the priests

Over against these hopeful signs are to be set a number of facts which seem to point to an opposite conclusion. As was stated in the Annual Report for 1908–9† not only are a number of converts lost sight of through the frequent removals which are so characteristic of Japan, but there is also reason to suppose that relapses among the Christians are sadly common. There can be no doubt that a love of the world, and the cares and riches and pleasures of this life, are as potent to choke the good seed as in the days of our Lord on earth. Another source of weakness among the converts is the character of the doctrinal views of certain of the leading exponents of Christianity in the Empire. 'Some of the views propounded are distinctly Unitarian in tone. There is something in a non-miraculous Christianity that appeals to the modern Japanese mind. Orthodox Christianity seems in his view to be superstition, and he has had more than enough of that. Sin loses its awfulness if it is only a factor in our ethical development and not the evidence of a fall from purity and a barrier to God. The ministers of the evangel called "The New Theology" attract large audiences of young students and business men. This dethronement of our Lord Jesus Christ from

His unique Sonship, and the modern view of sin, allowing as they do an easier acceptance of Christianity and making fewer demands on personal holiness, are a grave danger to not a few among the Japanese Christians.* Beyond this weakness, which must militate against the general acceptance of true Christianity by the Japanese, is the opposition which is being put forth in increasing degree by the adherents of Buddhism and Shintoism, of which religions there has been an undoubted revival of late years. Many missionaries speak of the vitality shown by the former. A Buddhist of high rank on his return from foreign travel lately emphasized the need of attention by his co-religionists to the training of their priesthood and to their methods of disseminating their faith if they would retain the position of influence handed down to them, and it appears that as concerns the second matter his advice is being followed. The Rev. O. H. Knight, of Matsuye, returning from furlough after an absence of two years, observed that Buddhism had been galvanized into activity by the example of the Christian Church. He writes :—

> Everywhere our methods are being imitated. There are Buddhist orphanages, Buddhist young men's societies, Buddhist working parties. The raucous tones of the ubiquitous baby-organ may be heard emanating from the doors of the Buddhist temple. Buddhist religious ceremonies have been introduced into native weddings. Buddhist preachings take place everywhere. Only this summer a tent mission was conducted in the larger towns of this district by a band of priests, including a young university graduate.

The Rev. G. Chapman refers to the same matter. When visiting Yonago for a series of special meetings he noticed a placard advertising some Buddhist meetings—'Tent meetings for the propagation of Buddhism.' The preaching, he states, was noteworthy; it was to the effect that both Christianity and Buddhism are good and that they are fundamentally the same, though there are minor differences, but since Buddhism had been in Japan a long time and suited the people there was no need for the introduction of Christianity.† The revival of Shintoism is due to a different cause. To quote Mr. Knight again :—

Revival of Shintoism

> One of the legacies of the recent war with Russia was undoubtedly in some ways an increased openness of attitude towards foreigners, and especially towards England; but side by side with this went a newborn sense of virility and self-dependence which found its expression in a new veneration towards the past and all those national forces and traditions which are implicit in the expression 'Shinto.' The spectacle of his Majesty announcing in State to the Imperial Ancestors at the great shrines of Ise the declaration of war and the conclusion of peace, the ascription in dispatches from the front of all victories to the virtues of the Son of Heaven, and the solemn visit of the great

Another hindrance to the extension of Christ's Kingdom in Japan consists in the belief that the Japanese are descended from the gods. A certain Dr. Hiraiwa lately made a speech in which he based on this belief an appeal (1) that his nation should have a strong religious faith; (2) that its life should be marked by purity and holiness; (3) that his people should be distinguished for their kind-heartedness and brotherly feeling; and (4) that it should set before itself high ideals. These injunctions are of course worthy of praise, but, as Mr. Knight says, it is foolish to try to build a 'superstructure of truth on a foundation of fallacy,' and absurd to 'expect high and spiritual ideals from a basis of Materialism and myth.' Nevertheless, while there are not many who really hold this theory of the divine descent of the Japanese, there is somehow a public opinion on the matter against which few dare to fight, and a professor in the Imperial University quite recently was forced to resign his chair because he advanced a really scientific theory as to the origin of the people. Another foe is the attitude of superiority which is assumed by some Japanese, who maintain that 'only unenlightened and ignorant people bow to the authority of priests or ministers of religion,' and that while religion may be necessary for such, it is not needed by those who are truly enlightened. Lastly, in the way of the progress of Christianity stands the giant foe of gross and unblushing Materialism. Not long since when a religious census was taken among the students of a middle school at Gifu, every one declared that he had no religion, and even the sons of priests were ashamed to own their connexion with it. The situation is well summed up in the General Review of the Central Japan Mission as follows :—

Theory of a divine descent of the Japanese

Gross Materialism

> What as Christian propagandists we have to contend with is a sort of blind, unreasoning nationalistic sentiment which, while welcoming Western arts, deems Western religious thought inimical to the traditions and ideals which the lapse of centuries has endeared to it. Some of the traditions may be untenable in the light of modern knowledge and some of the ideals unworthy in the light of Christian Theism, but yet so great is the conservatism of the community at large, and so great the pressure of the will of the community upon the will of the individual, that in very many cases the courage of the inquirer fails him or the faith of the believer is quenched.
>
> The opposition is in reality more a matter of national sentiment than of religious faith, and more than one cause may be given for its increased and increasing intensity. One of them is the growing sense of independence bred of Japan's military and naval successes, even when pitted against a European nation. This feeling tends to exalt Japan's past as the factor which has contributed to Japan's present, and to resent new or foreign ideals and beliefs as an insult to or slur upon that which seems to have shown itself so sufficient to the country's needs.
> But yet, once again, along with this pride of spirit there is a real and discomforting sense of danger. Educational authorities discover that with the extension of Western learning the old moral sanctions are giving way among the rising generation, and self-assertion and some other ugly traits are too much in evidence. Again, political authorities discover the existence of anarchic ideas even in this, of all lands, involving in a recent instance a diabolical plot to destroy the Emperor and his staff. The authorities have cause for alarm and their efforts to meet it are pathetic. They are too dim-sighted to see wherein, as we Christians perceive, a true antidote can be found—namely, in such a religious faith as the reason can give assent to; nay, more than that, Christianity is probably looked upon by many who ought to know better as in some way responsible for socialistic and anarchic ideas, inasmuch as all three come to them from over the seas. And so it comes about that instead of welcoming the faith which can really help them in their need, they are found merely endeavouring to stimulate the sense of reverence towards the Imperial house.*

Deaths of the Rev. G. Ensor

The Rev. G. Ensor, the first missionary of the C.M.S. in Japan, died suddenly at Gibraltar on July 13, 1910. He went out in 1868, and during his four years of service he was permitted to win several converts. In 1909 he went back to Japan independently, and, notwithstanding the long period since he had worked there, he was able to be of real assistance. His Home-call came while he was on his way to England.†

and Mrs. H.L.Bleby

Another former worker in the Mission, Mrs. H. L. Bleby, passed away at Woking on July 28, 1910.

Reinforcement

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. John Joseph Scott, L.Th., Durham University, of Islington College. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. C. T. Warren and Miss O. Julius (after twenty-one years' service each), the Revs. G. H. Moule and G. C. Niven and the Misses O. M. Crawford and H. G. Langton.

The needs of the Missions

In response to inquiries as to the supply of agents required for the efficient prosecution of the work in Central Japan, the Rev. H. J. Hamilton, the secretary of the Mission, emphasizes the need of more Japanese workers of the right kind, but adds that at the present time they are not forthcoming. Speaking of European missionaries, he says that two men and two women are needed for the maintenance of existing work; while there are a couple of centres in the Yamaguchi Prefecture—Shimonoseki and Yamaguchi—to the extreme west of the Main Island, and one in the north-west of the Island of Shikoku, which call for occupation by Europeans. In Kiu-Shiu also reinforcements are greatly needed, since there are but ten clergymen (Japanese and foreign) to a population equal to that of Scotland and Ireland combined; one clergyman has to superintend three stations, and another two.

Literary work

The Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, who has been appointed Archdeacon of the Church of England in Kiu-Shiu, spent some time in translating Collett's Scripture of Truth into Japanese; the Rev.

* Mr. Knight's annual letter, from which some quotations have been made, deals in extenso with the points which have been referred to. Cf. Gl., April, 1911, p. 52.

D. Marshall Lang translated Emblems of the Holy Spirit into that language; Miss A. C. Bosanquet wrote several tracts; and the Rev. P. Y. Matsui acted as editor of Yo No Hikari ('The Light of the World'), of which 7,000 copies are circulated monthly.

I. CENTRAL JAPAN

Educational work

Divinity School

Bible-women's Training Institution

FOUR of the students at the Divinity School, Osaka, finished their training and passed out to work in Osaka, Hamada and Hokkaido. There were no fresh entries in September, and at the end of the year the number of men in the school was eleven, three of whom were preparatory students. Three women, having completed their course at the Bible-women's Training Institution at Nagoya, took up posts in the Mission in the spring of 1910, and five new students entered, but one of them, a trained nurse, was subjected to great pressure by her friends and relatives and withdrew, leaving ten students resident in the institution, while one other attended daily. The last named is the daughter of a high official; at one time he regarded mission work as quite beneath her, but he has since given his consent to her being trained for that purpose, and at the dedicatory service for the out-going students he spoke of the high privilege of being set apart as a worker for God. The daughter, it is said, sometimes takes the closing prayer after a Bible-reading for society ladies at her mother's house—not an easy thing for a girl to do, but she is 'so deeply humble and selfless, and all have such a genuine admiration for her consecrated life,' that it is possible for her. Gratifying testimony to the success of the efforts not to denationalize the students was borne by a lady lately led to Christ by the matron and one of the students. The lady remarked to the former, 'Judging by one or two Christian workers whom I knew, I always thought I would not like to be a Christian, because it would mean having to give up good Japanese behaviour and become foreign and loud in manner and appearance, but since I have known you and the students I have seen that it is possible to be an earnest Christian and yet be really gentle and well-mannered.' *

Christians gentle and well-mannered

Momoyama School

Of the 450 boys belonging to the Momoyama School at Osaka about eighty per cent. voluntarily attend the Bible-classes which on four mornings in the week are held for half an hour before the regular school work begins. The teaching in these classes is systematized and graded, so that during the five years' course a day boy gets a thorough grounding in the teaching of the New Testament, while the boarders receive instruction in the Old Testament at the daily chapel services. Once a week all the masters meet for united Bible-study. Twenty-seven of the boys and one of the teachers were baptized during the year, as well as three or four former pupils.*

Bishop Poole Memorial School

The number of girls at the Bishop Poole Memorial School increased during the year, and in December was 188, of whom all but thirty-nine, it was found, had had some contact with Christianity before entering the school. Seventy of the girls are baptized Christians, thirteen are under instruction for baptism, hoping to obtain the consent of their parents, and about twenty-seven others seem to be earnest Christians, but have no prospect of being allowed to confess Christ in baptism. Seven girls were baptized in 1910, but the opposition of parents to their daughters receiving that rite increases rather than diminishes. Many of the children were greatly helped by some special meetings conducted in October, and Miss K. A. S. Tristram says that hardly a day passes without some fresh evidence of real heart-work and changed lives. One of the most evident results of the meetings was the upspringing of a spirit of intercessory prayer and of a desire to win others for the Saviour. Miss Tristram gives an example :—

Baptism of pupils

> One of the older pupils has suffered much persecution from her parents on account of her faith ; she was taken away from a former school, made to work in the fields, shut up by herself, etc., and at length ran away from home. She was deeply stirred at the meetings by hearing that the Japanese Government had stated its intention of exterminating the aborigines of Formosa, as it could not govern them, and that no Christian missionary had yet been to them. She came one night to say that she could not spend her time studying while they were left like that, and that she must go and tell them of Christ, even if she were killed. I pointed out the importance of preparation ; but she said she could not stay quiet while souls were dying. I reminded her of the factory girls and Sunday-school children and her own class-mates, whom she could help while preparing for future service. 'Oh, that difficult fourth year, those proud, critical girls ; I cannot do anything for them !' Then, almost at once she saw the situation, and laughed at herself for being willing to face unknown difficulties among savage people abroad, and being a coward in the presence of those at hand. I have seldom heard anything more touching than her prayer dedicating herself to pray for and work for that class.

Missionary zeal

A teacher baptized

Of the two teachers mentioned in last year's Report,† the one who 'received the seed in an honest and good heart' was baptized in December, 1909, and the other was hoping to be baptized at the end of the year under review. Twenty-eight girls left the school in March, 1910, having completed their course. Two of them entered the Bible-women's Training Institution, and four others at once took up evangelistic work. Excellent work is done at Tokushima by a former pupil of the school, 'a thoughtful, capable, trustworthy girl of a strong personality,' who is a great power for good among the girls of that town. Four inmates of the Blind School at Gifu received baptism in 1910, while four others were convinced of the truth of Christianity but were deterred by fear of their relatives from seeking baptism.

Pastoral work

A few cases of backsliding among the converts are reported; there was some unhappy dissension among the congregation at Hiroshima; and there is said to be a good deal of 'spiritual laziness and lack of knowledge' among the Christians in general. Many of them are sadly deficient in missionary zeal, a fault which it was sought to remedy at Sakai by holding prayer-meetings in the homes of the converts in turn, and looking to the host to invite the neighbours to be present. On the other hand not a few Christians endeavoured with success to win others, while at Osaka several backsliders were reclaimed. The catechist at Kure is said to be working earnestly and faithfully; the Bible-woman at Fukuyama, a rather discouraging place, manifests 'a brave spirit which will not own to feeling lonely'; and Miss J. Mackie writes appreciatively of Mr. and Mrs. Teramoto, of Tomioka, saying that in the former the men have one whom they can respect and honour for his sincerity and earnestness, while in the latter, who was called to her eternal rest towards the end of the year, the women found a friend, companion and sympathizer.*

A 'brave spirit'

'Special' evangelistic meetings do not appear to have been as numerous in Central Japan as in some previous years, but at the beginning of 1910 the Churches in Osaka combined to hold a series of services and meetings for non-Christians, after which about 1,300 persons gave in their names as inquirers;† and the Protestants at Nagoya united in similar work during the ninety days of an industrial exhibition which was there held, and are estimated to have reached about 60,000 people.‡ At Tokyo a general 'mission' for women was conducted; and some special gatherings took place also at Matsuye when the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Church was celebrated, as a result of which several persons became definite inquirers.§ In this connexion may be mentioned a service which was held at Tokyo in memory of King Edward VII. and was attended by the Crown Prince and Princess as representing the Emperor; and the opportunity which on two occasions during the autumn was afforded the Rev. A. Matsushima, the pastor of St. Paul's, Tokyo, of addressing the whole police force in the Kyobashi division of that city. Meetings are conducted regularly at the Whidborne Hall, Tokyo, the Warren Memorial Hall at Osaka, and at a new hall built at Ogaki, a Buddhist stronghold. In the last named town an association was formed twelve years ago to prevent the spread of Christianity, which was termed an 'evil religion'; each member placed a sign outside his house to signify that he belonged to the association, and a number of those signs still remain on the doorposts.

English and other classes

Much of the evangelistic work is more or less individual in character and is carried on by means of classes. By these all sorts and conditions of people are influenced. Among those attending classes conducted by Miss E. M. S. Huhold at Nagoya were doctors, officers, school teachers, medical students, students at the high school, a banker and a merchant. Other missionaries held classes for students at a higher normal college, for high school girls, for girls from sewing schools, for the wives of officers and of judges, for high school mistresses and for other school teachers. At Gifu the Rev. H. Woodward taught English at a Buddhist theological college, and at Takatomi in that district Miss A. M. Henty had an English class for the police. The Rev. L. P. Hill at Tokushima conducted a similar class, the members of which were the Governor, the Commissioner of Police, the Superintendent of Police, the Commissioner for Education, etc.; while at Matsuye the Rev. O. H. Knight complied with a request that he would teach English at the middle school. His doing so had important results, for not only did three of the boys become definite inquirers, but also a party of English-speaking masters visited him once a week to read Ruskin's Sesame and Lilies; a more friendly attitude towards him was adopted by the members of the official and educational world; and, last but not least, he received an invitation to teach English at the middle school at Kizuki—a town where four years ago he was obliged to discontinue his visits under circumstances which were narrated in the Report for 1906–7.*

A once-closed door opened

Although at several stations there were many openings for direct evangelistic work, so much so at Kure that the missionaries had to leave unvisited a number of persons who expressed their desire for teaching, and although at Hamada more earnestness was displayed than in the past, and the long-prevailing indifference to religion gave place to a spirit of restlessness and dissatisfaction, while elsewhere the open-air work was marked by the quietness and attention of the audiences, yet the workers had to cope with many difficulties. Some arose from the frequent removals of the people, others from the opposition displayed towards those who showed signs of a desire to embrace Christianity, and others, again, from the inadequacy of the staff of missionaries and Japanese agents. The Hiroshima district, for example, where two ordained missionaries and one woman missionary were at work, has a population of 2,500,000; while in Tokyo, which contains 2,000,000 people among whom 260 missionaries are at work, so many of the latter are engaged in educational institutions and special efforts that not more than fifty are available for evangelistic work, and it was possible to assign to Miss Sander, who during the year was transferred to that city, a district in which were 100,000 people without any resident missionary. Some of these and other difficulties are referred to by Miss A. C. Bosanquet in the following passage from her annual letter :—

There are many willing to listen passively, and some to begin to believe and love; but very few are willing to give themselves wholeheartedly to Christ, or to take up the Cross, or to identify themselves with the Church. For instance, there are seventy names on the roll of my class for higher normal college students; they listen thoughtfully, but only one has come forward to ask for baptism this year. And it is the same with the homes we visit and the women and girls we teach (although one girl has borne a great deal, and has been baptized at the cost of having to leave her school). Among the few who do ask for baptism hindrances arise constantly. Thus, a man whose baptism was fixed for Easter Sunday drew back sorrowfully at the last moment because his wife threatened to get a divorce if he became a Christian, and to leave him with a baby on his hands. A girl who had got leave at home to be baptized was, instead, married off to a non-Christian on the very day, and though she lives only two miles and a half away, we can seldom see her and never teach her now, for her husband's family are zealous Buddhists and she is entirely under her mother-in-law.

Hindrances to baptism

Such opposition as there was to the work, as distinguished from that shown to inquirers, was met with chiefly at the hand of teachers and appeared in connexion with classes for schoolgirls, children's meetings and Sunday-schools, which in many cases are largely attended. At Gifu and its out-stations four meetings for the young are held regularly, which in 1910 had average attendances of 128, seventy, fifty and thirty-three respectively; and at Choshi and towns in the district six meetings were conducted, and in connexion with one of them 220 names were on the list. At the last named town some of the children were led to discontinue their attendance by the action of the school teachers, who at Sakai positively forbade the young people to attend the Sunday-school; and at another place, through the antagonism of the same class, it came to pass that when the girls left the building in which the Sunday-school was held they were surrounded by some forty boys who jeered and threw dirt at them. Happily the attitude of the teachers is not invariably antagonistic, since at an out-station in the Sakai district, where the children fill to overflowing the house which is hired for the meetings, it is said that the 'teachers are a great help, as they quite agree to the work going on.' The Sunday-schools and children's meetings bore a good deal of fruit. A former pupil at the Hamada Sunday-school was under preparation for baptism; a second girl, removing to another place, there gathered some of her friends to study the Bible with her; and a third, who is being trained as a normal school teacher, wrote asking for a Prayer-book and hymn-book and said that she 'had faith in God.' At Kure two requests were received that the children should be taught more frequently, since they were so much more obedient after Sunday-school; the mothers of many members of a class for officers' children began to attend a meeting set on foot for their benefit; the parents of those connected with another class are said to be nearly as interested as the children; and the members of a class of girls aged from ten to thirteen showed much earnestness in seeking to win others. Miss E. D. Preston writes of the last named as follows:—

Children seek to win their companions for Christ

> They have set themselves to win the others in their school, and are most earnest in bringing their companions to the meetings. They tell Bible stories themselves first, and then have an address from my helper, and are most diligent in plaiting straw in odd minutes at home to sell it and buy Sunday-school magazines for those whom they are trying to win. They sent in a special request to have no Christmas treat themselves, but to be allowed instead to invite non-Christians to a Christmas entertainment they are preparing, in which they tell the whole story of our salvation in a way all can understand. The leaders of them seem to pray over everything, and only the other day my helper discovered two of them kept notes of their prayers with spaces left for the answers, which were duly recorded when they came.*

Something has already been said incidentally as to the results of the evangelistic work which has been briefly described, and the statistical table at the end of the chapter gives the number of adults and children baptized at each station, but the record of the Central Japan Mission will not be complete without some reference to individual cases among the converts and inquirers. These, as in former years, were drawn from all classes of society. Among those baptized during the year were a lady at Yonago who afterwards showed herself diligent in trying to lead her husband to the Saviour; the daughter of a retired officer at Tokushima; at Nagoya, a judge of the Court of Appeal; the daughter of another judge, led to put herself under instruction by the study of her dead mother's Bible; the wife of a bank manager; the wife of a music teacher; and a doctor who after his baptism exclaimed, 'Now I have peace, now I have joy!' At Hojo the grandmother of a Christian was received into the visible Church, giving her testimony, 'Since I began to trust God as my Father nothing troubles me any more.' Among the twelve persons baptized at Kure was the daughter of a Buddhist priest who, after refusing for some months to consent, at last said that he was afraid to continue to resist such faith as his daughter had. The converts in the Tokushima district included the wife of the principal of a middle school, whose two daughters were baptized in 1908 and 1910 respectively.† Other converts were two students and the wife of a middle school master at Wakimachi; a master in an elementary school, who was kept back for a time through yielding to the blackmailing efforts of a Buddhist priest;‡ two women, one of whom had been an inquirer more or less definitely for twenty years and had met with a good deal of opposition from her husband; a middle school student at Toyohashi; a woman first influenced by being visited while in a hospital, and a girl artist and others at Tokyo; and nineteen adults at Shimo-Shibuya, a suburb of that city, where a little Church grew up in 1909.* The Rev. W. P. Buncombe gives the story of one of these nineteen converts as follows:—

A former Buddhist priest baptized

Among those baptized were a (late) Buddhist priest and his family. He belonged to one of the largest temples in Kyoto, and all his relatives are of priestly families. When he announced his decision to become a Christian they expostulated with him strongly, and at first he wavered. Then his little child became very ill, but, in answer to the prayers of some of the Christians, was wonderfully healed, and this thoroughly confirmed his faith, and he wrote to his people announcing his final decision. They wrote in reply excommunicating him from temple and family. After the service one morning (Sunday) he got up and said he wished to make a statement; he related his religious experiences, confessed how he had wavered, and spoke of his repentance and his present firm decision. Then he produced the letter he had received the day before from the head of his clan excommunicating him, and read it to the congregation. The Christians heard it with much joy and thanksgiving. Of course he loses all financial support from the temple.

Some of the most interesting cases are those in which the new converts were won by Japanese Christians, or themselves, after their baptism, showed zeal in bringing others to the knowledge of the Saviour. For example, the wife of a judge of the local court was baptized at Christmas, 1909, at a town in the Nagoya district, and she made her husband's conversion her first aim. Miss D. S. Wynne Willson says:—

Her splendid faith has just compelled her husband, who was in a quagmire of doubts and questionings, to clear faith in Christ. She used to arrange for me to go and talk to him when he came back from the law courts, and, struck by her deep earnestness and beautifully changed life, he began to seek in very real earnest. Then came a sudden change. He was seized with severe illness on his way home one day in April, and for a month lay hovering between life and death, too ill to speak or move or see any one. His wife scarcely ever left him, and, watching for a moment when she felt he could bear it, she would talk very gently and clearly of Christ and His salvation. When I saw him again, at the end of that month, physically he was an utter wreck, but his soul was full of new-born life; all the old doubts and criticisms had gone, and he was trusting in a very childlike way in his Saviour. His great hope was to be able openly to confess his faith in baptism when the new church at Ichinomiya should be built. But this was not to be. I have just heard by letter that he was baptized in his house in October and passed away very peacefully three days later.

Converts win their relatives and friends

In Osaka the wife, daughter and son-in-law of a Christian were baptized, having been led to seek the Saviour by their relative's peaceful and happy life and death; and at Fukuyama a family of four persons, influenced by a visit from the elder son and brother in it who had embraced Christianity while living away from home, were received into the visible Church. Among the other converts of the year were the daughter of a doctor at an out-station in the

* Annual Report, 1909–10, p. 230.

Choshi district, who makes opportunities of speaking about the Saviour to her father's patients while they wait to be examined, and who has succeeded in influencing both her mother and brother for Christ; four persons at a small hamlet in the Toyohashi district, brought in by the consistent lives and earnest witness of some illiterate Christians; and at Sakai a student who was afterwards instrumental in restoring a backslider among his companions and in leading others to seek after the truth, and a bank clerk and his wife who are described by the Japanese pastor as a 'very great help to the young men, and to both Christians and others with whom they come in contact.'*

Inquirers

Considerations of space prevent more than a comparatively brief mention of a few of the inquirers of whom the missionaries speak. One of those at Nagoya is a hairdresser who has talked to two of her customers to such purpose that they are both very near the Kingdom; and others are the father, mother and sister of Mrs. Hirose, Miss E. M. Trent's helper. At Kure a member of an English class put himself under instruction, saying one day that he had been reading a book which pointed out that to enter the Kingdom one must become as a little child, and adding, 'That's just what I've become; I have become a baby!' In the Hamada district a school teacher seeks for baptism who has incurred the opposition of the principal of her school by her eagerness in bringing others within the sound of the Gospel; at Choshi several girls belonging to some sewing schools are inquirers, one of whom said that her chief joy is that Jesus Christ is her Saviour, and who purposes to leave her home, where her stepmother is opposed to Christianity, so that she may be baptized; while at Tokyo Mrs. W. H. Elwin came in contact with a young Japanese of whom she writes as follows:—

'I have become a baby'

> He is a member of a good family, most courteous in his manner and grateful for being taught. During the summer holidays he wrote to me: 'As you said to me, I have made the throne, and I am now walking to and fro to seek the King, but I cannot find Him easily and early.' His last production is a picture postcard painted by himself. On it is a Japanese boy, with a Bible in his hand, hurrying after footprints in the sand which disappear mysteriously round a corner, while underneath is written, 'Oh, I have found His footprints, I must seek after Him.' †

Work among Chinese students

It was outside the ordinary course of her work that Mrs. Elwin was brought into touch with this youth, for the special sphere of her husband and herself is among the Chinese students resident in Tokyo. About 140 of them have been baptized during the last four years in connexion with the Chinese Student Church, and fourteen by Mr. Elwin himself. Many others are studying the Bible, and model Bible-classes are conducted under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., of which Mr. Elwin is a secretary. In some of the men there is a spirit of deep earnestness and a desire to preach Christ in their own land. Thus one day a student remarked, 'Christ suffered, I must suffer. Christ shed His blood, mine may have to be shed. Christ was crucified, I may be too'; and then referring to his purpose to return to China and make the Saviour known to his fellow-countrymen he added, 'I am not rich, and in order to preach far and near I may have to beg my bread. I am willing for this.' There were six men in the hostel; one has been baptized and confirmed and is an active Christian worker, two are asking for baptism, and two others are described as 'experienced inquirers.' A second house was rented for the purposes of the hostel for girl students, and by the end of the year there were eight inmates. Although none of the girls have made a definite confession of faith in Christ, yet there is a real Christian tone among them.*

* See also Gl., July, 1910, p. 99; May, 1911, p. 77.

II. KIU-SHIU

A brighter outlook

ALTHOUGH the number of baptisms in the diocese of Kiu-Shiu shows but little increase, the outlook was rather brighter in 1910 than has been the case of late years, since, according to Bishop Lea, 'the sense of unity was deepened among the Christians; a general desire to advance and a willingness to learn were shown; and places considered dead gave some signs of life.' This fact rendered the duty of retrenchment exceptionally painful, and the Rev. J. Hind, the secretary of the Mission, says that the standing sub-committee which had to decide where the expenditure should be curtailed sat for more than fourteen hours before their melancholy task was completed. In order to bring the expenditure within the limit assigned, it has been necessary to dismiss two catechists and a Bible-woman and to close the work at Oita and Beppu on the east coast and at Yatsushiro, Takachiho and Nobeoka, out-stations in the Kumamoto district.

Sunday-schools and children's meetings

The most cheering part of the work has been that among the young. In most of the districts the Sunday-schools have prospered and children's meetings have been well attended; and this notwithstanding difficulties in connexion with the former due to Sunday being the only school holiday in the week, and consequently being selected for the holding of athletic sports; and, in connexion with the latter, to the action of the teachers at the day-schools, who represented to the children that attendance at the meetings hindered their school work. At Kagoshima itself the children's gatherings opened many houses to the workers, while at Nagasaki a little pupil in his illness bore witness to the comfort which he experienced from the knowledge of the Saviour's presence with him. Among those who would rather be described as young people than as children, work was carried on by meetings for school-girls on Tsushima, the island off which Admiral Togo's great victory was won; by Bible-classes and English classes for girls attending high schools and for others who have lately left such institutions; and, notably, by means of the hostel at Nagasaki. That institution was opened in 1908 for girls attending the high school. The school has 400 pupils, but only 100 of them can be received into the school boarding-house, and the remainder, unless their homes are in the town, have to go into lodgings, where they are exposed to unspeakable temptations. The hostel can accommodate twelve girls, but although it was opened with the full consent of the head master, there was at first a good deal of opposition to the new venture. Much prejudice had to be overcome; notwithstanding the influence of a Christian master and mistress in the school the head master was persuaded by the rest of the staff to forbid the girls to listen to Christian teaching, and the first hostel inmates were pelted and jeered at. Now, however, the school has a different head master who, though not a Christian, takes an interest in the hostel; and it is hoped that through his influence the number of inmates will be increased in the immediate future. The lives of the girls in the hostel showed that they were being influenced for good, but little could be said to them about baptism, since they are young and belong to heathen homes. At some of the English classes a good deal of interest in the Bible was shown,* while at Nagasaki two of the women normal school students who attended a Bible-class held for their benefit asked and obtained the consent of their parents to their baptism. Visiting the people in their homes continued to be uphill work, excepting at Kagoshima, for though rather more houses were open to the missionaries than of late years, and though the people listened readily and some of them seemed really to be interested in Christianity,† difficulty was still experienced in getting into touch with non-Christians; few of them appeared to have any sense of personal need of a Saviour, and where conviction of sin was realized the abandonment of the worship of ancestors, which involves taking a distinct stand in opposition to relatives, proved an insuperable stumbling-block. However, there were a certain number sufficiently in earnest to be regarded as definite inquirers—four women, one of whom had to endure much opposition, at Hakata, a suburb of Fukuoka; an old lady at Wakamatsu, in the Kokura district, once a devoted idol-worshipper, for whose teaching it is not easy to arrange seeing that she divides her time between six married daughters, four of whom are opposed to Christianity; a couple of women at Kogoshima originally influenced through the work among the children; a member of a band of young women at Mijayi, an out-station of Kumamoto, who have joined together to study the Bible; and at Omuta and Takase, other out-stations in that same district, several adults, including a young woman who, on hearing of the promise of forgiveness to all who truly repent and turn to God, exclaimed, 'A load is taken off my heart. Oh, why didn't I hear this before?'

'A load is taken off my heart'

Among those admitted into the visible Church by baptism during the year were ten adults in the Kagoshima district;* a couple of men at Nobeoka on the east coast, where the Rev. S. Painter resided some years ago, one of them at that time in his Sunday-school; eight persons at Omuta, already mentioned; another former Sunday-school pupil in the person of a school teacher who relinquished her post to become housemaid to Miss A. C. J. Horne at Kokura, so that she might receive regular instruction; and some converts in the coal-mining district of Nogata, whose story Miss Horne, writing in November, tells as follows:—

Baptisms

Converts in a coal-mining district

> The Hojo coal-mine at Kanada has been visited for some years, but, the Christians having scattered, the work there had dropped until last winter when a new catechist was sent to that district. From him I heard that a nurse in the mine hospital wished to be taught, and when I went to teach her practically the whole hospital staff assembled to listen. This did not continue long, but the doctor, while saying that he 'had no time to listen' himself, asked me to teach his wife. This was last February, and from March until now (with the break of the summer holidays) I have gone each week to teach from seven to nine ladies and the doctor himself in four different houses. I believe that several who have not yet openly come out have received the truth in their hearts. The catechist also holds meetings in the mine, and when Bishop Lea and Mr. Hind lately visited it we had the happiest service at which I have yet been present in Japan. The doctor, his wife and a young man were baptized; another official's wife, who has been sharing their lessons, was admitted as a catechumen; and the only Christian woman in the mine was confirmed. The most beautiful part of the whole thing was the overflowing joy of the doctor and his wife, which is already having its effect in attracting others. The doctor himself told me that the lady admitted to the catechumenate that evening had come to them in tears a day or two before, saying, 'Oh, that I had your faith! You are saved and I am not, and I want to have the same joy.' The doctor's wife came all the way to Kokura (several hours' journey) the day before to tell me that they were going to be baptized and to ask me to come. She said she had never in her life known such joy, and I have seldom seen such a radiant face.†

Overflowing joy

As concerns the character of the baptized Christians the missionaries are not able to speak very hopefully, though their reports are perhaps a little brighter than a year ago. One writes that very few of the Christians at Kagoshima seem to 'realize that they have any responsibility to the unsaved'; the Rev. J. Hind describes some of the converts at Wakamatsu as '"sickly" instead of energetic,' and one of his colleagues remarks that 'spiritual life seems at a very low ebb' among the Christians of that place; while the Church at Kumamoto is said to be characterized by apathy and a lack of earnestness—'half the members on the Church roll never show their faces at services,' and the converts do not appear to read their Bibles. On the other hand, at several places a good deal of interest was shown in missionary work, and at Kagoshima missionary boxes were introduced with good results;* in the Nagasaki district some isolated converts, far removed from Church privileges, are yet leading earnest and consistent lives;† in the Nogata district the Christians are seeking to win others; and at one or two stations there appears to be rather greater effort than hitherto in the direction of self-support.

Organization of the work in Hokkaido

At a conference of C.M.S. missionaries which was held in the spring of 1910 at Sapporo a scheme for strengthening the work in the diocese of Hokkaido by placing on the Japanese a large measure of responsibility for building up the Churches was formulated and adopted. One district of the four into which the island has been divided for mission purposes, that of Kushiro, is now worked directly by the Diocesan Board and is under a Japanese presbyter, and the Society is responsible for three – viz., Hakodate, Otaru and Muroran,—but in these the Diocesan Board directs the work in the towns of Hakodate, Otaru and Sapporo. The newly formed district of Muroran contains the majority of the Ainu, and includes the south of Hokkaido and the southern half of the island of Saghalien, which, it will be remembered, was ceded to Japan at the close of the Russo-Japanese war in 1905.

Pastoral work

One great object which the new scheme has in view is to stimulate the Christians to self-support, and by the close of the year under review it was evident that in some quarters there would be at least an attempt to attain that end. Some individuals among the converts, too, showed a good deal of zeal. Miss M. R. Jex-Blake tells of a girl, twenty years of age, who was baptized a year or two ago, and since then has tried to lead others in her dressmaking class to a knowledge of the Saviour. Miss A. M. Tapson speaks of a young man led to Christ while studying in Tokyo, but baptized at Hakodate, who holds a Bible-reading for men, through which a schoolmaster has been won; she refers also to a postmaster and his wife in a country place who said to her one day, 'If we were not both so "slow of speech" we would be workers; as it is we work without words,' and adds that through this 'work without words' three persons have become Christians, others are under instruction, and others again regularly attend the little service which is held at the post-office every Sunday. At Sapporo the women's prayer-meeting grew rapidly;* and at Usu the young Ainu women formed a society among themselves for mutual help in the Christian life—the first real Ainu society that has ever been founded.† On the other hand, in many places where once were flourishing little colonies of Christians but few converts are now to be found. This, it is true, is largely due to removals, as at Wakkanai, a village in the Otaru district, where eight or ten years ago there were some thirty communicants besides several inquirers, but now there is only one Christian in the whole place; but at the same time the Rev. D. Marshall Lang says that in most cases the converts at outlying spots do not make much effort to meet regularly or to induce others to join them. Of some places a darker report is given. A large percentage of the Christians at Otaru have become indifferent and have renounced all Church privileges; at Sapporo they have a 'terribly low standard' of life and appear to be lacking in any sense of responsibility towards their heathen fellow-countrymen; and at Piratori even professing Christians sometimes have recourse to witchcraft in times of trouble or sickness.

'We work without words'

Christians have recourse to witchcraft

Among the hindrances to the evangelistic work, besides the frequent removals to which reference has already been made, are the scattered nature of the population; the extreme difficulty of travel and communication, which, however, is gradually being lessened by the construction of railways; the scarcity of Japanese workers; and a general spirit of apathy among all classes in some parts of the diocese. There is, however, little direct opposition to the workers save on the part of some school teachers, and in remote districts such as Rumoi, a port in the Otaru district, large gatherings assembled when a missionary was present. One visit was paid by the Rev. Dr. Batchelor (who has since been appointed Archdeacon) to Saghalien, where the population includes about 18,000 Japanese, 1,600 Ainu, 263 Oroks, 185 Giliaks, and 30 Santas, besides a certain number of Russians, Poles and Chinese. Work among the children was carried on with diligence and with promise. The attendance both at the kindergarten at Otaru and at the various Sunday-schools and classes and meetings for the young was good, and these efforts, it was found, attracted not only those for whom they were more immediately intended, but also the mothers, brothers and sisters of the children, and even a few men. Two members of an English class at Muroran were baptized during the year; at Asahigawa, where a rest-house for Ainu has been opened, three Ainu women and an old lady, once an 'intensely earnest Buddhist,' who for eighteen years had resisted the efforts of her son to win her for * Christ, were admitted into the visible Church; and at Kushiro the wife of a Christian school teacher, and another teacher. Among the inquirers were the young servant of one of the missionaries and four other persons at Muroran; a schoolmaster at Hakodate; and several young men belonging to an English class at Kushiro. One of them wrote to Miss A. M. Hughes, 'I became at this day to believe the God and Jesus Christ. I had not courage to decide my heart to be Christian in fighting many troublesome matters. But here I settled my own heart to believe Jesus Christ. Help me to become a Christian heartily, if you please.'

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS

THE PAST HISTORY

The Society's work in North-West Canada is among the remnants of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. Now the Red River District is the flourishing colonial province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the cathedral of the diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese was divided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca and Saskatchewan. In 1875 these dioceses were constituted an Ecclesiastical Province with the Bishop of Rupert's Land as the Metropolitan. In 1884 the Provincial Synod divided the diocese of Athabasca, forming the new diocese of Mackenzie River, and at the same time the diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan. In 1887 the diocese of Calgary was formed out of Saskatchewan; in 1890 Selkirk (now known as Yukon), on the west of the Rocky Mountains, out of Mackenzie River; and in 1902 Keewatin out of Rupert's Land and Moosonee. Rupert's Land had for its first Bishop Dr. Anderson (1849), then Archbishop Machray (1865), and now Archbishop Matheson (1905); Moosonee, Dr. Horden (1872), Newnham (1893), Holmes (1905), Anderson (1909); Keewatin, Dr. Lofthouse (1902); Saskatchewan, Dr. McLean (1874), Pinkham (1886), Newnham (translated from Moosonee, 1903); Qu'Appelle, Dr. Anson (1884), Burn (1893), Grisdale (1896); Calgary, Dr. Pinkham (1887); Athabasca, Dr. Bompas (1874), Young (1884), Holmes (translated from Moosonee, 1909); Mackenzie River (now vacant), Dr. Bompas (1884), Reeve (1891); Yukon, Dr. Bompas (1891), Stringer (1905). The present Bishops of all these dioceses, except Rupert's Land and Calgary, have been missionaries of the C.M.S.

The Society labours in all the above-named nine dioceses except that of Qu'Appelle. In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; and Rainy Lake district was occupied in 1874. In KEEWATIN DIOCESE, York was occupied in 1854; Fort Alexander, 1864; Churchill, 1886. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Fort was occupied in 1851; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Lake Harbour, 1909. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1852; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1877; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermilion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1886; Upper Peace River, 1888. In MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort McPherson, 1871; Fort Resolution, 1875; Fort Norman, 1885; Herschel Island, 1893. In YUKON DIOCESE, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892; Moosehide (Klondyke), 1897; Carcross, 1900.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

The majority of the Indians in North-West Canada have by this time embraced Christianity, and the work among them is largely pastoral. Many Eskimo, however, are still unreached by the Gospel, and an Arctic Mission, worked from Canada and not England as its base, was established in 1909 at Lake Harbour in Hudson Strait.

The Society makes a grant of £110 per annum to St. John's College, Winnipeg, and gives also £137 per annum in scholarships. Homes for Indian children are found at some stations. Medical work is caried on at Fort Pitt, in the diocese of Saskatchewan.

The Society continues to be responsible for the salaries of the missionaries in home connexion (four Bishops and eight other clergymen), and assists by an annually diminishing block grant the work in eight dioceses.

Thanks accorded to the C.M.S. by the Synod of the Rupert's Land Province

At the Synod of the province of Rupert's Land, which was held at Prince Albert in August, 1910, the following resolution was passed unanimously:—

The members of the Provincial Synod of Rupert's Land assembled in session desire to convey to the Church Missionary Society its very cordial thanks for the splendid work the Society has done in the past for the evangelization of the Indians in North-West Canada, and for the measure of help which it still continues to offer.

Death of Mrs. W. Spendlove

Mrs. Spendlove, who with her husband, the Rev. W. Spendlove, spent twenty-two years as a missionary in the diocese of Mackenzie River, died suddenly at Banbury on April 7, 1911.

The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. J. Hines after thirty-seven years' work in North-West Canada. He has been permitted to see ten men who have been associated with him as school teachers admitted to holy orders. The Rev. G. E. Gale has accepted a living in East Calgary, and Macleod, his station, disappears from the Society's list in consequence of the reduction of the block grant, which is responsible also for the removal of the name of the Rev. A. S. White, of Fort Vermilion. The Rev. E. Thomas, the Indian clergyman at Fort Alexander, has retired. Bishop Lofthouse describes him as a 'wonderful type of the "noble red man,"' and says that he has great influence with his own people.

Literary work

Archdeacon J. W. Tims and Canon H. W. G. Stocken were engaged in the revision of the Gospel of St. Matthew in Blackfoot; the Rev. E. J. Peck wrote Points Bearing on Eskimo Syntax in English, and compiled The Word of the Cross in Eskimo, and began a catechism in the latter language; the Rev. W. G. Walton made some progress with a Commentary on the Sermon on the Mount; and the Revs. E. Richards and C. E. Whittaker translated some hymns into Ojibbeway and Eskimo respectively.

I. DIOCESE OF RUPERT'S LAND

'A spirit of worldliness'

Archdeacon R. Phair, reporting on the work at the old C.M.S. stations in the diocese, which he visited in the autumn, speaks of marked earnestness and eagerness to hear the Word of God among a little band of Indians at Sandy Bay, in the Fairford district, but says that a spirit of worldliness prevails at Lower Fairford, and it is difficult to get the people to leave their amusements so as to attend services. The Indians at Scanterbury are diligent church-goers, but there is little real spiritual life among them.

II. DIOCESE OF KEEWATIN

Although he did not visit any of the distant northern parts of his diocese in 1910, Bishop Lofthouse travelled 15,500 miles during the year, mostly by train. He was in three railway accidents, two of them serious, but mercifully he escaped without injury.

The work at the C.M.S. stations is carried on in the face of many difficulties. York Factory is very isolated and much sickness prevailed there; at Lac Seul, where eight adults were baptized during the year, the opening up of the country brought the Indians into contact with the vices of civilization, notably drunkenness and immorality; and at Long Sault certain unscrupulous white men organized a conspiracy, in which most of the Indians were implicated, to defraud the Government by presenting imported prairie wolf skins for bounty, pretending that they had been trapped by the Indians. There was some immorality, too, at that station; but, on the other hand, the Christian Indians were more regular in their attendance at services, and the Heathen showed a decided liking for wigwam meetings. At York Factory the people made special thankofferings amounting to $113 when they received their Treaty payments, some giving as much as one-fifth of the money which was paid to them in compensation for the surrender of a portion of their lands.

III. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE

In the diocese of Moosonee work is carried on among both Indians and Eskimo. The services at Fort Hope were better attended, but many of the people were lax in their observance of the Lord's Day; and at Fort George, where the Rev. W. G. Walton has a 'small but splendid band of Christian workers, who are simply on fire to win souls for Christ,' 500 of the 600 Indians and 200 of the 400 Eskimo are attached to the Church.

Indians 'on fire to win souls for Christ'

The Rev. E. W. T. Greenshield was obliged by unforeseen circumstances to abandon his intention of working his way southwards from Blacklead Island to Lake Harbour.* Leaving Dundee on July 29, 1909, in the Jantina Agatha, a Dutch vessel manned by a Dutch and German crew, he met with such stormy weather that the coast of Baffin Land was not reached until September 24. Not long afterwards, when near the mouth of Cumberland Sound, in which Blacklead Island is situated, the ship encountered a heavy stream of ice-floes driving against it by the force of wind and current. The crew were not accustomed to ice or ice navigation, and one night when Mr. Greenshield went below for a moment the vessel collided with a small iceberg. Providentially the berg slid off, and the ship righted herself, but she was badly damaged and it was soon found that she was sinking. Hurriedly the lifeboat and another boat were lowered and some food and clothing placed in them, and the ship was abandoned. Mr. Greenshield writes:—

A missionary ship-wrecked

> We pulled all the remainder of that day and all night. We were again in much danger of losing everything, a heavy squall striking us and nearly capsizing the heavily overladen boats. We were shipping water badly and hardly expected to make the land. In God's great mercy, however, we were preserved, and reached land in the morning, a small, rocky and barren island, where we put everything ashore and camped, making a tent with a tarpaulin. It was impossible to remain here, however, with insufficient provisions and the winter rapidly coming on. We therefore determined to reach Blacklead Island if possible, and obtain what assistance we could there. The captain, second mate, a sailor and myself therefore set off in one of the boats to find Blacklead. Having traversed the coastline for some distance I recognized our position and was able to take the boat safely on to Blacklead.

* See last year's Report, p. 243.

Kindness of Eskimo to shipwrecked sailors

The Eskimo received Mr. Greenshield and his companions with much kindness, and volunteered to accompany him to the rescue of the men who had been left behind. A time of much hardship ensued. The provisions which had been left at the mission-house in the previous year had not been touched by the people although they had endured acute privation during the winter, but these, together with what had been saved from the ship, were only sufficient for the needs of one man and there were ten to be supplied. The Eskimo, however, supplied the shipwrecked men with food —seal's flesh, seal's blood and seaweed—so far as they were able, together with the warm clothing of which the sailors stood sorely in need. At times even native food was scarce, and when the supply of fuel failed, the walls and ceiling of the mission-house became coated with ice. In spite of these privations Mr. Greenshield, with the help of Peter Tooloogakjuak and Luke Kidlapik, two Eskimo teachers, was able to carry on the work without intermission. He wrote on August 25 :—

Baptisms

We had Sunday services and Sunday-school, week-day school in which the scholars have made the most excellent progress, week-night services which were always splendidly attended and I believe resulted in much blessing, social evenings, and services for men on Wednesdays. There have been fourteen adult baptisms in Blacklead, and several other candidates are to be baptized shortly. We have several candidates for baptism in Kikkerton who would have been baptized this summer only I was unable to reach Kikkerton lately for lack of food. We have a young Christian teacher there, Oneoksaga, who is doing very well. We have now in the different settlements along the coast six men to whom I have given authority to act for the time being as teachers, as I have every reason to believe that they are earnest Christians and possess the ability to teach their fellow-countrymen.

The Queen of Holland honours a C.M.S. missionary

Two other adults were afterwards baptized farther north. Eventually, there being no prospect of a fresh supply of stores, Mr. Greenshield returned to England in the autumn. The Queen of Holland has conferred on him the order of Orange-Nassau in recognition of his services to the crew of the Jantina Agatha, who, it may safely be said, now think highly of missionary work, though once they had very hazy ideas concerning it.*

Good progress was made at Lake Harbour, the station of the new Arctic Mission,† notwithstanding much difficulty and personal hardship due to the supply of coal falling short and to starvation among the Eskimo and scarcity of dog-food.*

IV. DIOCESE OF CALGARY

An improvement was noticeable among the Indians on Sarcee Reserve in the form of better attendance at services, larger contributions and diminished drunkenness, and one adult was baptized there. At Blackfoot Crossing, the head chief, 'Yellow Horse' by name, who for some years has been regarded by his people as a Christian and has set them a good example by his diligent attendance at services, at length was baptized. Many of the Christians at the station lead exemplary lives, but some of them suffered themselves to be persuaded to take part in the heathen dances, and Daniel Little Axe† has 'allowed his greed for this world's goods to deaden his conscience.'

V. DIOCESE OF SASKATCHEWAN

A new church was built at Sturgeon Lake, in the Prince Albert district, where in the past the Indians have always shown themselves averse to Christianity, but where most of them now listen to the Gospel willingly.

VI. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA

Bishop Holmes describes the Indian congregations as having been 'at a standstill both numerically and spiritually.' The people, he says, as church-goers have no rivals in any nation and they are reverent and attentive, but unhappily they fail to practise what they learn. There are still a good many Heathen in the Wapuskaw and White Fish Lake districts, whom the missionaries visit as far as they are able. The Rev. C. R. Weaver tells of one man whom he met who had some poles, painted in stripes, outside his house. He said that these poles reminded him of certain spirits, and added, 'We pray to these spirits, because they are in the presence of God, and we are weak and sinful. God is holy and they can present our prayers in a way we could not do ourselves.' He was pointed to Jesus Christ, the one Mediator, and was told that he had no need of his 'praying sticks.'

VII. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER

The tide of civilization has not yet reached the Mackenzie River district, and the workers, though spared many trials in consequence, suffer from great isolation. Archdeacon J. R. Lucas, for example, when he received his mail at Fort Simpson at the beginning of the year had had no news from the outside world since leaving civilization on his return from furlough six months before. There was little that was encouraging at that station; but at Hay River, where a new church, at which the Indians had worked well, was opened, there were fewer superstitious observances among the Christians. From Fort McPherson the Rev. C. E. Whittaker visited the Eskimo of Mackenzie Bay. He was privileged to baptize thirty-two persons at Arctic Red River, fifty-three at a village called Kittigagzyooit, and twenty-eight on Herschel Island.

VIII. DIOCESE OF YUKON

In his report on the work in his diocese Bishop Stringer mentions the completion (with the exception of seats) of the Bishop Bompas Memorial Church at Moosehide. Several Indians have done good work among their fellow-countrymen as catechists. More workers, however, are needed, for Bishop Stringer adds that he is often asked by the Indians for teachers, but is unable to comply with their petitions.*

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION

THE PAST HISTORY

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. Great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours, and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. After the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians was so excellent that the Government Commissioners, sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts, stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879, and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the northern division. The C.M.S. mission-stations, with the exception of that at Alert Bay, are situated in the latter diocese. Bishop Ridley resigned the See in 1904, and was succeeded in that year by Bishop Du Vernet.

Kincolith was occupied in 1866; Massett, 1876; Alert Bay, 1878; Hazelton, 1880; Giatwangak, 1882; Aiyansh, 1883; and Kitkatla, 1887.

SUMMARY OF PRESENT WORK

Metlakahtla, the headquarters of the Mission, and Kitkatla are on the coast; Hazelton and Giatwangak lie on the Skeena River; and Kincolith and Aiyansh are on the Naas River. At Massett, on Queen Charlotte Islands, the work is among the Hydah Indians. Alert Bay, on Vancouver Island, is far south of the other stations. There is an industrial school for boys at Alert Bay, and at Metlakahtla a hostel and the Ridley Home for white and half-breed children who attend the Government school.

The missionary staff consists, besides Bishop Du Vernet, of seven clergymen, one layman, nine missionaries' wives, and three single women, besides twenty-seven native Christian lay agents.

Death of Bishop Ridley

THE death of Bishop Ridley, which occurred at Pulham, Dorset, on March 25, 1911, has removed one whose name will always be remembered in connexion with the British Columbia Mission. He was ordained, after being trained at Islington College, in 1866, and sailed for the Punjab, where he laboured at Peshawar until early in 1870, when failure of health drove him home. In 1879, on the division of the diocese of Columbia, he was appointed to the northern portion, named Caledonia, the field of the Society's British Columbia Mission. The early years of his episcopate were marked by many difficulties and conflicts, but the persistent patience with which he faced them, aided as he was by the sympathy and co-operation of his wife, enabled him to triumph over them all, and he was permitted to witness great expansion of the work, and the Christianization of practically all the Indians. He retired in 1904, and accepted a living at Compton Valence, Dorchester, in 1908.

Privations of missionaries

The year was remarkable for the number of missionaries who were called upon to endure personal trials. The Rev. A. E. Price twice very narrowly escaped from drowning; the Rev. J. Field had a serious fall on the ice, and injured his head; and the Rev. J. B. McCullagh, besides many of his other possessions, lost the MSS. of translations of Scripture portions and of a Nishga grammar and dictionary (the labour of years) in a fire which destroyed the mission-house at Aiyansh.*

Pastoral work

The dissatisfaction of the Indians with the lands apportioned to them as reserves† showed little abatement, and the consequent unrest at some places prevented them from paying much attention to their own spiritual welfare, while the presence of white men in their midst involved them in many temptations. At Giatwangak a distinct advance in spiritual life was observable, and the outlook is hopeful; while at Alert Bay there were many proofs of the grace of God working in individual lives.‡ Several of the Christians are diligent in work for Christ, especially at Metlakahtla. One adult was baptized at Giatwangak.

Christians diligent in work for Christ

Literary work

The Rev. J. H. Keen, on whom an honorary Canonry has been conferred by Bishop Du Vernet, continued his translation into Tsimshean of the more instructive portions of the Book of Genesis.

EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS, ORPHANAGES, ETC.

The first table in the following list includes all Institutions in which men are trained to be clergymen, catechists or evangelists, or women are prepared for work as Bible-women; and the second gives those where school teachers are trained.

Hostels maintained in connexion with schools where only an elementary education is given are not included in the list.

Colleges are entered as first grade when they prepare for the B.A. and higher degrees, and second grade when they fail to attain to the B.A. standard, although preparing students for University examinations above that for matriculation.

Upper Secondary Schools are those which read up to a University entrance examination or reach a corresponding standard, and in most of them English is taught. Other schools in which the education imparted is higher than that in primary schools at home are entered as Lower Secondary Schools. The teaching in the secondary schools in Fukien which are marked † is of a nature calculated to enable the pupils in after years to become school teachers and Church agents.

The institutions are arranged in alphabetical order of the stations in the various Missions.

*The mark * denotes that the institutions to the names of which it is prefixed do not belong entirely, if at all, to the C.M.S., though in many cases they are manned by the Society's missionaries, and in some are managed by them. Most of the institutions for lepers are wholly or partially supported by the Mission to Lepers in India and the East.*

It has not been possible in all cases to obtain exact information as to the number of students, etc., but, failing that, approximate figures are given. The statistics may be taken as indicating the number of students, etc., at the end of 1910.

NOTICE TO TREASURERS AND SECRETARIES OF ASSOCIATIONS

End of Financial Year, March 31st.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY beg to remind the Treasurers and Secretaries of Associations that the Society's Financial Year ends on the 31st of March, and all amounts in the hands of Treasurers should be forwarded to Headquarters on or before that date.

Branches.

Where an Association has Branches connected with it, the Money and Accounts of the Branches must be forwarded to the Association Treasurer or Secretary (and not direct to the Parent Society) a reasonable time before the latest date for forwarding to London.

Contribution Lists and Accounts.

Lists and Accounts (if not sent with the money) must be forwarded not later than April 6th, as in the Annual Financial Statement the Committee must credit all receipts to the General Fund unless they are advised by that date that they are appropriated for some special object.

Special and Appropriated Funds and General Fund.

The Contribution Lists should, after deduction of any necessary disbursements, agree in total with the amounts actually paid to the Society during the year.

Local Officers, &c. Accurate information essential.

At the head of the List should be furnished the name of the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Deanery in which each parish is situate, with the date at which the accounts of the Association are closed, and the names of the Local Officers. It is very essential that this information should be given accurately to ensure correct entry in Annual Report.

Governors.

Life and Annual Governors. The names of Governors (which should be furnished by the Treasurers and Secretaries) will be printed at the head of each diocesan List of Contributions.

The Contribution Lists should be written legibly to avoid mistakes in printing, and made up in the manner in which the same are printed in the Parent Society's Report. Forms of Account and ruled paper with directions for filling up the form may be had on application to the Lay Secretary at the Society's House. Where the Account or the List is a printed one, two copies should be forwarded. In compiling Local Reports it would greatly facilitate the work at the C.M. House if under each of the several classes of contributions (e.g., Annual Subscriptions, Boxes, &c.) the items were divided into two parts and printed separately, thus:—

Forms of Account.

Printed Lists.

(1) Items of 10*s.* and over (In alphabetical order.)
(2) Items of under 10*s.* } With separate totals for each.

Remittances should be made early in Financial Year.

Association Treasurers should remit to the Parent Committee at the end of every month any sum in their hands over and above the amount required to meet disbursements, &c., the balance being remitted when the Association accounts are closed for the year. Similarly, Branch Treasurers should remit from time to time to their Association Treasurers. This course would tend to equalise in a greater degree the Income and Expenditure in the earlier months of the Society's Financial year, and save the Society a large yearly sum.

RESPECTING REMITTANCES.

Remittances.

Remittances may be made through Local Bankers, and their correspondents in London, to the account of the Society at WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK, Limited, 20 Birchin Lane, London, in which case it is requested that advice of the same be sent by post addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Or Cheques may be forwarded direct to the C.M. House, payable to The Church Missionary Society, and crossed WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK, Limited.

Post Office and Postal Orders should be drawn on the General Post Office, and be made payable to The Church Missionary Society, and should be crossed 'WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK.' (Postal Orders should not be sent through the Post without 'Church Missionary Society' being filled in as 'payee.')
